ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The team of Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota squared off today for the 1964 presidential battle with thundering Democratic convention acclaim behind them as the party nominees.

All that remained to kick off the hostilities with the Republican Goldwater-Miller ticket was President Johnson's formal acceptance tonight of the presidential nomination he won by acclamation Wednesday night. Humphrey also will formally accept the vice-presidential nomination.

Johnson was expected to tell delegates assembled for a session at which the late President John F. Kennedy was to be memorialized, that his will be a campaign aimed at achieving prosperity and peace.

He might also give the party faithful something to yell about by jibing at GOP presidential nominee Barry Goldwater and his running mate, Rep. William E. Miller.

In a dramatic turn to a convention that had followed form so closely it was on the dull side, Johnson broke a string of precedents.

The President had held on to his secret that Humphrey was his choice for the vice presidential nomination until he was ready to board a plane to Atlantic City. Humphrey, who had flown to Washington at the President's command, was at his side.

Taking the senator by the arm, Johnson walked over to newsmen standing behind a barrier and said: "Meet the next vice president."

The world thus learned of the selection, about three hours before many delegates to this convention knew that it had been made. No modern president had

Hurricane Cleo Plows Devastating Path Across South Florida Areas

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Cleo smashed into the rich and thickly populated southeast coast of Florida today, caused heavy damage and plowed a devastating path northward.

The storm, a small but vicious killer, churned across Miami with surprising fury, lashing the city with winds up to 115 miles an hour, torrential rain and damaging tides.

Unofficial estimates placed damage in the millions from the first hurricane to hit Miami in four years, and one of the worst since 1926.

Looters raided damaged shops and stores throughout the city.

Numerous injuries — most from flying glass—were reported, but there were no known fatalities. Hospital held staffs overtime to treat the injured.

Miami and Miami Beach, a city of plush homes and swanky resort hotels just across storm-tossed Biscayne Bay, were plunged into darkness by power failures.

Minutes after the hurricane struck, the only electric lights in the normally brilliantly lit cities shone dimly from hospitals and other buildings with auxiliary power.

The eye of the storm, which has left a rising toll of dead in the Caribbean, moved directly over Miami, after indications it would pass out at sea.

Then it swirled slowly on to batter Fort Lauderdale and Palm Beach, famed play place of the wealthy, some 65 miles to the north.

The Weather Bureau said it was expected to continue its northward course at 11 miles an hour through the day, then veer away from the mainland on a northeasterly track tonight.

Hurricane warnings were hoisted all the way to Cape Kennedy, site of most U.S. space launchings, 190 miles north of Miami. Gale warnings extended another 50 miles north to Daytona Beach, and on huge Lake Okeechobee in south central Florida.

The Weather Bureau warned tides may reach five feet to seven feet above normal.

Windows in hundreds of Miami homes and stores were smashed. Fallen power lines started dozens of fires. An 85-foot luxury yacht broke loose from its mooring and drifted helplessly without a crew in crashing waves. Trees were toppled, roofs ripped off.

Miami enjoyed a long period of calm while the eye was over the city and police Lt. James Ford said dozens of looters raid-

Nationwide Rail Strike Is Threatened by Union

CHICAGO (UPI)—The breakdown of contract talks between the railroad industry and six shop craft unions has raised the possibility of a nationwide walkout of 140,000 union members.

Michael Fox, president of the AFL - CIO Railway Employes Department, said Wednesday the railroads "rejected" six recommendations made Aug. 7 by the presidential emergency board.

"They (the railroads) offered us nothing," he said.

Fox said he was not threatening the industry with a strike, but said one was possible at midnight Sept. 6 — one month from the date the emergency report was released.

"We're legally free to strike then," Fox said. "It looks like we may have the choice of submitting or striking."

J. E. Wolfe, chief railroad bargainer, said the unions broke up the negotiations.

"They (the unions) would not discuss anything other than their own proposal," Wolfe said. "Their proposal goes far beyond the report of the emergency board and in some respects goes beyond their original demand."

Wolfe said a member of the National Mediation Board, Francis O'Neill, would be in Chicago Monday "to discuss further procedures with the parties."

Since the emergency report was issued, the unions and the railroads have studied it and exchanged drafts explaining their understanding of the recommendations, Fox said.

Two Large Forest Fires Are Battled in Wyoming

By United Press International

Reinforcements were thrown into the battle Thursday against large fires burning uncontrolled in two national forests in Wyoming.

The fires by dawn Thursday had blackened an estimated 450 acres.

A "hot shot" crew of 25 fire-fighting specialists from Fort Collins, Colo., was sent to northwestern Wyoming Thursday to join more than 50 others already on a fire line in the Shoshone National Forest north of Dubois.

The fire was pinpointed along a quarter-mile front in the Brent Creek area in heavy stands of fir and spruce. Efforts to control the fire were further hampered by fallen scrub timber left behind by loggers more than 30 years ago.

There have been no reports of injuries.

A cold front moved into the area with strong winds, preventing attempts to set up fire breaks.

Weather also was preventing reconnaissance flights over a larger fire in the Medicine Bow National Forest of northern Albany County. A Forest Service spokesman said the flames, which destroyed more than 300 acres of timber Wednesday, were shrouded in fog Thursday morning.

Much of the southeastern corner of the state was doused by rain Thursday, but the Forest Service said there had been no rain in the fire area. He called the situation critical.

The official said slurry drops of bentonite would be attempted if the weather cleared.

Severe Quake Reported in Soviet Union

MOSCOW (UPI)—An earthquake possibly stronger than the Alaska shock of last March has struck in the Laptev Sea north of the central Soviet Union, radio Moscow said today.

It said the Moscow central seismic station recorded an earthquake of force 8 to 10 on the Richter scale at 78 degrees north and 127 degrees east.

This would put its epicenter well north of the nearest town of Tiksi.

The Alaska quake had a Richter rating of 8.9.

Red Political Prisoners Are Being Set Free

BONN, Germany (UPI) — Communist East Germany has quietly begun releasing West Germans and West Berliners held as political prisoners, it was learned today.

No figures were disclosed, but it is estimated that about 1,000 of the 12,000 political prisoners believed held in East Germany are West Germans or West Berliners.

Informed sources said the releases may be the result of an unannounced agreement between the East and West German governments. It was noted that West Germany freed an East German publisher, Guenter Hofe, on Monday. He had been held 10 months on suspicion of espionage.

Triumvirate Named to Run Strife-Torn South Viet Nam

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Diplomatic sources said today military leaders named Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh and two other generals to run South Viet Nam for 60 days amid new riots in which troops reportedly killed three demonstrators.

There was no immediate confirmation from the government of the new triumvirate.

The ruling military junta has been trying for two days to name a chief of government to fill the vacancy left when Khanh stepped down as president and scrapped the constitution in the face of mounting demonstrations from Buddhists and student groups.

Today's casualties were reported when government troops fired on a mob of 2,000 which tried to enter a compound where junta members were meeting to choose a new head of state.

The demonstrators demanded that the council resist Buddhist and student demands that it step down and pave the way for civilian rule.

Reliable sources said that Lt. Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, former minister of defense; and Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, former president, were named with Khanh as members of the triumvirate.

An announcement received in Saigon by diplomatic sources said the three would rule until a national congress elects a head of government.

Earlier, it appeared that council members would be unable to agree on a leader to form a new government to supplant Khanh's seven-month-old regime.

Khanh stepped down Tuesday in the face of widespread student demonstrations. Minh had been figurehead chief of state until 11 days ago when Khanh proclaimed himself president under a new constitution.

Minh was ousted in the shake-up touching off student charges that Khanh had made himself head of a military dictatorship. A popular Buddhist leader, Minh had directed the overthrow of President Ngo Dinh

Springs Adds 2,800 More Acres to Area of City

The City of Colorado Springs continued to spread its boundaries into outlying areas this year adding 2,800 acres through August to bring the total city area to 20,384 acres.

Officials said this would be increased even more before the end of the year. Several areas are in the process of being annexed.

However, they did not expect the new annexations to equal the 1963 total of more than 7,000 added acres.

The 20,384 acres compares with 17,579 to start 1964 and 12,502 acres on Jan. 1, 1963.

Original townsite of Colorado Springs back in 1872 contained 3,868 acres of land.

This had increased to 4,780 acres in 1900, to 5,612 acres by 1917 and jumped to 7,734 acres by Jan. 1, 1955.

Growth of Colorado Springs was rapid after 1955 because its size had increased to 10,586 acres by Jan. 1, 1960 and to 11,915 acres by Jan. 1, 1962.

In just the last 9½ years, the city has increased in size from 7,734 acres to 20,384 — or a growth in that span of 12,650 acres.

Jacqueline Will Attend Demo Party Reception

By FRANCES LEWINE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy, wife of the assassinated president, comes here today for a reception in her honor to which 5,600 Democratic convention delegates have been invited.

The affair is so big, it had to be divided into three shifts over a five-hour period from 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The reception, given by W. Averell Harriman and Mrs. Harriman, longtime friends of the Kennedys, precedes a convention session at which a memorial service will be held for the late president.

Mrs. Kennedy will not be there, however.

Spokesmen for the former first lady said the memorial, at

Striking Toronto Printers Reject Offer of Papers

TORONTO (AP) — Striking printers at Toronto's three daily newspapers overwhelmingly rejected the latest settlement offer from the publishers Wednesday night and decided to continue the search for an "honorable" end to the strike, now in its 49th day.

The strikers, members of Local 91, International Typographical Union, voted 588 to 5 in a closed meeting to reject the publishers' proposals.

In a second motion, adopted unanimously, the printers authorized the negotiating committee and union counsel David Lewis to continue the search for a settlement with the Globe and Mail, a morning paper, and the Star and the Telegram, evening papers.

The papers have continued to publish since the strike started July 9 at first using supervisory and non-union personnel to carry out composing room work. However, about 20 strikers have returned to their jobs and an undisclosed number of outside employes have been hired.

Lewis said the overriding factor in the membership decision was that the publishers' proposals were presented to the employes as a non-negotiable package.

BUYS ENGLISH PLANT

WAKEFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Transitron Electronic Corp. announced it has bought a plant at Maidenhead, Berkshire, England, which will house a subsidiary, Transitron Electronic, Ltd., and will make transistors, diodes, integrated circuits and other electronic products for the European market.

Leaky Gas Tank Is Blamed for Crash of Plane

BOSTON (UPI)—A leaky gas tank was blamed today for a plane crash which killed two honeymoon couples.

The Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission Tuesday attributed the June 30 crash on an abandoned Nantucket Island golf course to a "power failure caused by a lack of fuel."

Killed in the crash of the twin-engine Beechcraft Bonanza were Everett T. Jones, 40, of Canston R. I., the pilot, and his bride, Beverly.

The other honeymoon couple was Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Cavanaugh of Englewood, Colo. The 28-year-old Cavanaugh was a research assistant at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT).

The commission said the less than two hours of flying done by the Bonanza between Providence, R.I., Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard would not have exhausted her 37 gallon supply of gasoline.

There was no evidence of gasoline in the tanks at the crash site. Investigation showed that portion of the parking apron at Nantucket Airport where the plane had been tied down was heavily stained by gasoline.

"After a last minute decision, the pilot lost control during a steep turn close to the ground while attempting a power off course," the report said.

"There was circumstantial evidence that the power failure was caused by lack of fuel."

Teenagers Have Own Ideas About Driving

DENVER (UPI)—A group of teen-agers met in Denver Tuesday and made some pretty surprising observations on a controversial subject—teen-age driving.

Gene Beatty, 17, of Wichita, Kan., urged that the minimum driver licensing age be raised to 18. He made his comments at the National STUDENT Traffic Safety Conference.

"We're not old enough to drive," said Beatty, president of the KANSAS Teen-Age Traffic Safety Association. "We have better sight and quicker reactions, but we're not emotionally capable."

Beatty received a qualified backup from Daryl Johnson, a 17-year-old from Oklahoma City. Johnson said he believed only those under 18 who have completed an approved driver training course should be permitted to apply for a driver's license.

CEA Withdraws Its Support of Burglar

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado Education Association in a tersely worded statement Tuesday withdrew its support of a La Junta, Colo., teacher convicted of burglary.

The statement read:

"The CEA board of directors and Commission on Professional Rights and Responsibilities have made further investigation in the case of Patrick J. Vigil, an investigation which it believes to be thorough. The board has come to the conclusion that it was under some misapprehensions when its previous statement in support of Mr. Vigil was issued. The board has declined any further participation in this case."

Shortly after the 27-year-old teacher was convicted of a $1,400 burglary in an East Denver home, the CEA offered its support to Vigil. Vigil now is free on bond, appealing a one-to-three year prison sentence which he was given last March.

RECOVERY PROGRESSES

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — President Eamon De Valera, 81, recuperating from an emergency hernia operation Monday, was reported making steady progress toward recovery Wednesday.

Swim, Water Skiing Banned at Dillon

DENVER (UPI)—Robert Millar, secretary-manager of the Denver Water Board, said Tuesday the group would not consider lifting a ban on swimming and water skiing at Dillon Reservoir until 1965.

Millar, who had indicate he would bring up the matter in July or August, said it was now too late in the season for the matter to be taken up this year.

The dam is located on the Blue River, west of Denver in Summit County. Filling operations, begun at the reservoir only this year, are expected to be completed in 1966 when some 262,000 acre feet of water are contained.

Republic Steel Plans Improvement Program

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Republic Steel Corp. plans to spend a whopping $50 million for an improvement program at its Canton plant to meet current and anticipated demand for alloy and stainless steel for the aerospace, defense and automotive industries.

Work will start immediately and is scheduled for completion early in 1967.

The huge outlay in Canton for new equipment and facilities means the third-ranked steel giant, a pioneer many years ago in alloy and stainless steel, seeks to strengthen its position in this expanding field.

"The new units," said Thomas F. Patton, chairman of the firm, "will make Republic's Canton plant the first in the nation to melt, de-gas and continous-cast large alloy steel billets."

Boardwalk Was Built Because Of Complaint

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — The famed "Boardwalk At Atlantic City" was built because of a complaint.

Back in 1870, city council voted to build a 10 - foot wide wooden walk for two miles along the beach after hotel and railroad officials complained their guests were tracking sand into their lobbies and parlor cars. They claimed it was ruining their carpeting.

The initial cost was $5,000—more than half of the city tax income of the previous year. Mayor John J. Gardner advanced the city $1,000 of his own money so work could get underway.

The walk was only two feet above the beach, and it was folded up and tucked away each fall. But the first boardwalk was an immediate success.

One of the daily papers of the day, the Atlantic Review, reported in its edition of Aug. 15, 1885, "nearly every day somebody falls off the Boardwalk. In nearly every instance the parties have been flirting."

Since then the boardwalk has been rebuilt four times. The present structure is 60 feet wide and nearly six and a half miles long. The wear and tear from strollers, sand and weather results in an annual maintenance cost of about $200,000 a year.

The boardwalk is like a glittering necklace when viewed from off shore at night. There are auction shops, amusement piers, hotels, motels, novelty shops, portrait galleries, antique shops, jewelry stores, hot dog stands, stock brokers, furriers, drug stores, phrenologists, popcorn and peanut stands and a multitude of other gaudy attractions to delight and entertain visitors.

SIGHTING FOR CAMP SITES

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The popularity of camp sites for vacationers has been growing by leaps and bounds in national and state parks of the Northwest, according to the Montana Highway Commission. Every information is directed toward camp sites and their accessibilities by car.

Because barnacles grow tough slimy shells, zoologists long classified them as mollusks, along with clams and oysters. Actually barnacles are crustaceans and related to shrimps and crabs.

Ancient Roman Temple May Be Discovered

By ELIAS N. ANTAR

BEIRUT (AP)—A new archeological mystery has cropped up with the unearthing of a jumbled pile of Roman columns near the historical town of Baalbek high in the Lebanese mountains.

A team under an American University of Beirut archeology professor, Haroutioun Kalayan, painstakingly digging for two years, has uncovered ruins dating from the time the Romans were in Lebanon in the First Century A.D.

The experts think the ruins might be the remnants of an inn or a stable brought down by an earthquake, but they are not sure. Prof. Kalayan said it will take more than a year until work is completed and the ruins identified.

The fine decorations on some of the discoveries and the massive size of the pillars, however, has brought speculation the find might be the lost temple of Mercury.

The Romans in Baalbek worshipped three gods, Jupiter, Venus and Mercury. Standing on a flat plain ringed with mountains are the remains of two gigantic temples dedicated to Jupiter and Venus, with soaring 60-foot columns topped by finely carved capitals and lintels. Baalbek is one of Lebanon's main tourist attractions and the backdrop for an international music festival every year.

The temple of Mercury has never been found, though its location is known to be in the general area of the new diggings, a short distance from the existing temples.

The area unearthed measures about 75 by 70 feet and is strewn with broken columns, pedestals and capitals piled atop one another. Fragments of pottery and other earthen vessels have also been found.

Three of the 18-foot columns have been restored to an upright position and work is continuing on the rest. The pillars are over three feet in diameter and made of smooth stone.

Buried in the rubble, the archeologists found a marble basin, with finely sculptured images of prancing animals, bunches of grapes and twisting vines clearly visible. The same decorations are found in the temples of Jupiter and Venus.

Springs Woman Held in Pueblo After Holdup

PUEBLO (AP) — A 20-year-old Colorado Springs woman was held in jail here today following the holdup of a service station and a police chase in which her car was wrecked.

She was listed as Irene Rose File (of 19 Westview Pl).

Police Capt. Harold Jones gave this account of the incident:

The woman entered the station just before midnight and asked the attendant, John Stephens, for change. When he opened the cash drawer she pulled a pistol and ordered him to put the contents into a bag.

As the woman fled in her car, Stephens called police who began a chase which ended when the car hit a curb and crashed. A pistol and a bag containing $73 was found in the car.

Capt. Jones quoted the woman as saying she needed the money to pay for her car.

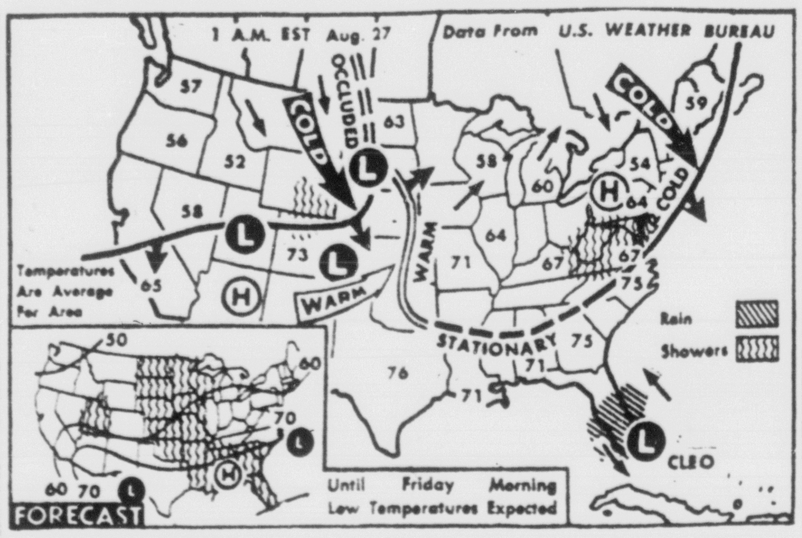

Shed, Grass Blaze Calls Out Firemen

A grass fire on a vacant lot in the 800 block E. Fountain St. today was extinguished by Company 4 of the Colorado Springs Fire Department.

A shed at the residence of Mrs. Mary Roberts, 441 E. Kiowa St., was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin Wednesday. Destroyed also were miscellaneous articles stored in the building. Companies 1 and 4 fought the blaze.

CONGRESSMAN WITH SON

DENVER (UPI)— Rep. Basil Whitener, D-N.C., said he hoped to return to Washington by Friday if his son, injured in a traffic mishap last Sunday, was ready to travel. The boy, John Morgan Whitener, 18, of Gastonia, N.C., was injured when his car flipped over about 17 miles north of Granby. He suffered a fractured neck. The elder Whitener said the boy would be returned to Gastonia, but he would travel to Washington. The youth was reported in very good condition at St. Anthony's Hospital.

LBJ Picks Humphrey As Running Mate

ever kept counsel about a running mate so long.

Johnson, Humphrey and Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., who also had been summoned to the white house from Atlantic City, then boarded a plane. Johnson watched on television while Gov. John F. Connally of Texas placed his name in nomination.

The reason for Dodd's quick trip remained a mystery. The Connecticut senator said he had told the president to "include me out" of consideration for the vice presidential nomination.

Speculation among high party officials was that the Connecticut senator had been offered appointment as Attorney General when Robert F. Kennedy steps out of that office to make the race for the Senate in New York. This might bring National Chairman John M. Bailey into the picture as a possible successor if Dodd accepted the Cabinet post.

Johnson hadn't been scheduled to visit the convention until today. But as soon as his nomination was acclaimed with a tumultuous, banner waving, flag-flying demonstration, he strode to the platform.

Flanked by his wife and two daughters, he said he was happy about the honor done him. He said he would be back to tell the delegates, who bulged the hall to overflowing, about his plans for "an overwhelming victory for our party and our nation" in the November balloting.

He said that what had begun four years ago with Kennedy's nomination was being carried out.

"We have fulfilled his program without flinching for one moment," he declared.

He complimented the delegates on a platform "on which I am proud to stand" and on their settlement of delegate seating squabbles in the Mississippi and Alabama delegations.

Then the President laid low another precedent by launching into a stem-winding nominating speech for Humphrey. He said he had spent "long and prayerful hours" and had consulted with party leaders from every section of the country before deciding on "the man best qualified to assume the office of the President of the United States should that day come."

Then, after holding back the name for tantalizing seconds, he came out with the name: "Senator Hubert Humphrey."

Something akin to genuine pandemonium broke out as the convention learned officially for the first time the answer to the big question which had been in every delegate's mind for days.

Humphrey, accompanied by his family, marched up to the podium and Johnson, stepping aside, let his running mate have his time in the spotlights.

But protocol had to be observed and the routine of calling the states for nominations went ahead. An Alabama delegate put the name of Gov. Carl Sanders of Georgia. Sanders, a Johnson supporter, promptly took it down.

When there were no contestants, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, Humphrey's colleague, started a string of nominating speeches. He praised Humphrey and Johnson and took occasion to get off a few cracks at Goldwater.

Goldwater, he said, "lives in a strange world" in which "the calendar has no year, the clock has no hands and his glasses have no lenses." He nominated Goldwater as "the greatest nosayer in history."

While all of this was going on Johnson was upending another precedent. When he left the platform, he walked around to a balcony box where Mrs. Johnson and the girls had been sitting. There, beaming benevolently, he watched the show. Presidents usually get in and out of conventions fast and don't hang around to see what's going on after they have had their say.

After the convention had adjourned for the night Johnson flew back to Washington, obviously cherishing the belief that he had the strongest possible ticket and an nearly unified party behind him.

Politically the choice of Humphrey offered the party liberals a glittering prize to offset all of the efforts the President had made to keep Southern conservatives in camp and to prevent a walkout by Southern dissidents.

Johnson, it was said somewhat cynically by the political pros, was giving an almost unprecedented demonstration of being able to eat his cake and have it too.

By trade a druggist and by instincts a politician, Humphrey brings indefatigable eagerness, energy and exuberance to the ticket. Seasoned in the 1960 primary wars with the late President John F. Kennedy, Humphrey knows the byways as well as the airways of the country.

A forceful — and sometimes seemingly interminable — speaker, he can talk glibly on almost any subject. He was in the thick of the fight to get the civil rights bill passed. He helped get Johnson's poverty program approved. He contributed to a farm bill compromise. His has been a forceful voice in support of the administration's foreign policies.

Johnson's name was formally placed in nomination by Govs. Connally and Edmund G. Brown of California.

To complete the over-all national picture, seconding speeches were made by Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, Gov. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa, Patricia Robert Harris of Washington, D.C., Gov. Edward G. Breathitt Jr. of Kentucky, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas and Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York.

Chicago Sailer Leads Luders Championship

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Thomas E. Broeckl of Chicago won Wednesday's fourth race in a five-race series and held the lead in the international Luders 16 sailing championship.

Broeckl has won three of the four races, but before Wednesday's event on Long Island Sound his fifth-place finish Tuesday was erased when he was disqualified on a protest by Rod Lippold of Newport Harbor, Calif.

Broeckl, however, remains in front with 33 points while Southerner Whittelsey of Indian Harbor, Conn., is second with 31 points after a third place finish Wednesday.

Arthur Bolton of Huntington, N.Y., is third in the standings with 30 points. Russell Moon of Chicago, the 1948 winner, has 29 points.

Lippold and Arthur Seaver Jr. of New Orleans are tied for fifth place, each with 27 points. Ralph Christman of New Orleans has 21 points.

Garage, House Windows Broken, Report Says

Two cases of malicious mischief were reported to the sheriff's office Wednesday.

Mrs. Ted Clutter, 105 Esther Dr., told Deputy Sheriff Wayne King that seven glass windows on her garage door had been shot out with a BB gun causing $25 damage.

A. G. Billings, 1931 S. El Paso St., reported that a ball had been thrown through one of his windows. Damage was $12. According to Deputy Sheriff Lee Quein, it appeared to be the work of children and apparently the house was entered and the ball retrieved, but not until the intruder had taken time out to eat a sandwich in the kitchen.

North Pole Store Window Broken

A. C. Hertzberger, 1700 Mesa Ave., reported to the sheriff's department Wednesday that someone had broken into one of the buildings at the North Pole, Cascade, but nothing appeared to be missing.

Deputy Sheriff Lee Quein said entry was made by breaking a window. He also said there was no money in the cash register and that several pieces of jewelry had been knocked on to the floor.

Five sets of car keys were stolen from some trucks belonging to the Seven-Up Bottling Co., Garden of the Gods Road, the sheriff's office said Wednesday.

Hurricane Cleo Plows Path of Destruction

ed the damaged shops and stores, carrying off liquor, clothing, food and other items.

"We've got more than 150 officers out there and we can't catch 'em," he said. "They're in and out before we can get there."

Behind the hurricane lay a swatch of death and destruction in the Caribbean, with 14 dead in Guadeloupe, at least 60 in Haiti and the toll expected to rise.

The Bahamas islands, east of Miami, also took a pummeling from blinding rain and winds of more than 60 m.p.h. Water ran two feet deep in some streets of the capitol city of Nassau.

Only an hour before Cleo struck Miami, the Weather Bureau estimated its highest winds mat only 85 m.p.h. — just 10 above hurricane strength.

Its approach to this city of a million people was slow. For hours it probed with gales, then gathered its force for a staggering assault.

The wind gauge at the National Hurricane Center blew away at 110 m.p.h.

All the huge plate glass windows in the lobby of the Deauville Hotel, on Miami Beach's oceanfront, were blown out. Other plush beach hotels suffered wind and water damage.

The WIOD radio tower was blown over and crashed into Biscayne Bay.

Residents began boarding up early Wednesday after Cleo left the north coast of Cuba and began its march across the Florida Straits.

By sundown, downtown Miami streets were virtually deserted, following one of the most monstrous traffic jams in the city's history.

Key Biscayne, a low-lying residential island just off Miami, was ordered evacuated for fear of an eight-foot tide.

Long distance calls between residents and anxious relatives and friends in other parts of the nation jammed Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., lines.

Several hospitals offered free lodging for persons with heart ailments and expectant mothers.

More than 3,400 persons were sheltered in 40 Red Cross refugees in the Greater Miami area. Other thousands sought shelter with friends, in hotels and sturdy buildings.

Some 250 government troops fired over the heads of the demonstrators but some shots went wild. A 15-year-old boy was killed, apparently shot.

The wounded included an old woman, a teenage girl and a boy.

An officer ordered the shooting be halted when the crowd fell back.

which a film will highlight Kennedy's administration, would be too much of an emotional ordeal for her.

Mrs. Kennedy planned to fly in just for the day and to return later to Newport, R.I., where she has been spending part of the summer at her mother's farm estate.

Many of the Kennedy clan and members of Kennedy's New Frontier family have had a hand in the plans for the afternoon reception in her honor.

Sisters-in-law Jean Kennedy Smith and Pat Lawford, a member of the California delegation, will accompany Mrs. Kennedy on her flight aboard the Kennedy family plane Caroline from New York City.

Guests on each shift will be greeted by Mrs. Kennedy in a receiving line in the ballroom of the Deauville Hotel and she will speak briefly from the stage.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and his wife, Ethel, and Joan Kennedy, wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, will take turns in the receiving line.

They'll be joined at the second session, around 2:30 p.m., by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, who succeeded Mrs. Kennedy as the nation's first lady.

A program of dramatic readings by actor Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, will feature favorite selections of the late president.

The reception poses problems of logistics and some 75 hostesses, including New Frontier wives, and longtime Kennedy friends from New York, Boston and Washington, will have the task of steering the thousands of guests in and out of the complicated schedule.

Broadcast Will Feature Welsh

The twelfth program of the Constitution series "inquiry" sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Pikes Peak will be broadcast over Radio Station KRDO Saturday at 12:30 p.m.

Matthew E. Welsh, governor of Indiana, is the guest this week, responding to questions posed by Dr. Bergen Evans of Northwestern University.

The basic question in this interview is: Are not the states becoming more and more administrative units of the federal government?

Gov. Welsh concedes there is a trend toward national solutions for our problems, but believes there is a reason for this: "We are becoming more and more a homogeneous economic unit as a nation; we are approaching more or less a common point of view." He believes that federal assistance is going to be necessary in financing our system of free public schools, but he believes that the field of education is the area in which the states have traditionally had responsibility and wish to retain it: "Federal control of education would be extremely unwise."

The 13 programs of the Series are being presented by the Kiwanis Club of Pikes Peak and Radio Station KRDO as a public service.

Kiwanis President Del Tolle suggests: "After hearing the present discussion, we suggest that you form your own discussion group to talk over and to think through the Contitutional problems which concern you."

Doctors Declare LBJ Physically Fit for Office

By LEE GARRETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, 56 years old today, has his party's overwhelming endorsement for another term in office and his doctors' assurance he is physically fit for "an active vigorous life."

For a birthday party, he was assured a rousing reception from the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City, where he goes tonight to accept formally the full-term nomination handed him without contest Wednesday night.

The verdict of four doctors on his physical condition was disclosed by the President Wednesday as he led newsmen on a 4½-mile hike, talking as he circled 15 laps around the back driveway of the White House.

Loping easily along in the high-humidity heat Johnson convinced less-athletic newsmen of the doctors' finding that his "exercise tolerance continues to be superb" despite a serious heart attack in 1955.

He took a few more fast laps later with his choice for a running mate, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota; took time out for an informal birthday party at which his staff presented him with a desk; and capped an active day with a flight to the convention city which lasted into the early morning hours.

In the course of the 90-minute afternoon marathon, Johnson:

— Foresaw a Democratic victory in November, saying various polls show "we run, generally speaking, 60-70 per cent" compared with 25 to 3; per cent for Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee.

— Declined direct comment on what a reporter said were contentions that Goldwater had been guilty of improprieties in his public discussion of some foreign policy issues. Johnson's reply: "As a matter of fact, he's conducting himself to suit me right now."

— Said he plans campaign trips for one, two or three days a week where possible but for the most part will "stay right here in this house and do my job."

— Predicted the Democrats will pick up from three to six Senate seats from Republicans, but mentioned only New York and Maryland races specifically.

— Announced he plans to send to Congress next January another budget below $100 billion, and said he issued orders that advance estimates be made on that basis.

— Lauded the party's Atlantic City convention, saying there were "no roll calls, no fights, no knock downs and drag outs, and no personal charges."

The physical examination which Johnson announced was the first he had reported since taking office last November. He underwent it on Monday, after a 9-lap tour of the White House driveway which had set his record up to that time.

Two of the participating doctors had treated Johnson after his 1955 heart attack. They are Dr. J. Willis Hurst of Atlanta, Ga., and Dr. J. C. Cain of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

The others are Dr. George G. Burkley, a Navy rear admiral who is official White House physician, and Dr. James M. Young, an Army doctor on the White House staff.

They said Johnson has "no symptoms," that his blood pressure is normal, and that all other aspects of the examination were normal.

Woman Charges Man With Grand Larceny

Michael Dean Brenneman, 21, 601 Manitou Ave., was booked into County Jail Wednesday following a signed complaint alleging grand larceny, the sheriff's department said.

Accodring to Deputy Sheriff Franklin T. Ripley, Brenneman was one of a group of men who were at the home of Mrs. C. Lutz, 1008 Jupiter Dr., laying some new carpeting Aug. 20.

Mrs. Lutz told Ripley that after the men had gone she noticed a roll of 100 five cent stamps were missing and further investigation showed a diamond ring worth $425 had also disappeared.

Chrysler Corp. Singled Out as Strike Target

9 if no settlement is forthcoming by that time.

Reuther said Chrysler, General Motors and Ford — the auto industry's Big Three — all had adopted a "narrow, selfish attitude" in negotiations and are denying workers their fair share of record breaking profits.

The union's contracts with all three firms expire Monday, but Reuther said the strike deadline was set beyond Labor Day to allow several extra days at the bargaining table in efforts to avoid a walkout.

President Johnson is expected to open his campaign in Detroit's Cadillac Square on Labor Day.

Observers have pointed out that with a auto strike in progress, the President might have found such an appearance before a labor rally to be embarrassing.

Reuther visited President Johnson in the White House Wednesady, but he denied that the President's Labor Day plans had any influence on the decision to set Sept. 9 — two days after the holiday — as the strike date.

Pointing out that Chrysler is the nation's seventh largest corporation, Reuther said the firm was selected because it had what he termed "a economic and moral obligation," to repay the UAW for 1961 contract concessions.

At that time, he contended, Chrysler was in deep financial trouble and there was a question of whether the company was going to survive.

Chrysler is now the second most profitable company in the auto industry, Reuther said, earning $114.4 million after taxes during the first six months of this year. This, he said, was a 26 per cent return on its investment.

UAW has rejected as inadequate virtually identical offers from the Big Three automakers for three-year contracts embodying higher wages, earlier retirement, larger pensions and other benefits.

An industry spokesman described the proposals as the most generous ever made to the union.

John Leary, Chrysler vice president — administration, declared that Chrysler would make every effort to reach an agreement fair and equitable to all concerned.

"The proposal we placed on the table a few days ago is most generous and fair for all of our employes," Leary said. "We are confident that, with bargaining that is conducted with responsibility and good faith, we can reach a second agreement without interruption to our operations."

Bottling Firm Employe Named in Complaint

Larry Doolin of the Grapette Bottling Co., 1308 Manitou Ave., signed a complaint against a former employe alleging larceny by bailee, the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

He said he had hired a man on commission basis to work for him and supplied him with a truck and merchandise. The employe went to Pueblo and did not return. Doolin then went to Pueblo and found the truck in an alley. He also located the man and told him to bring the truck back and the money he owed.

On Wednesday Doolin found his truck outside his office. There was $40 in the back seat and a note saying the rest of the money had been spent.

Vocational Training Planned for Youths

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Manpower Advisory Committee has endorsed a proposal for special vocational training projects for 450 unemployed youths in Denver and Southern Colorado.

The committee's action was taken Tuesday at a meeting with representatives of the State Employment Department, the State Board of Vocational Education and the U.S. Department of Labor.

The manpower group is headed by Dr. William L. McDivitt, president of Otero Junior College.

Subject to final federal approval, the proposal calls for basic education and mult-occupational training to prepare the youths, between 16 and 22, for employment.

Training projects would be established for 200 youths selected from Pueblo, Walsenburg, Monte Vista, Trinidad and Alamosa. The Denver metropolitan area would supply 250.

McDivitt said Candidates would be recruited from active files of local employment offices.

The federal government would finance the start of the program but the state would be required to supply matching funds beginning July 1, 1965.

Methyl Alcohol Cause Of Prisoner's Death

CANON CITY (UPI)—The preliminary report on an autopsy held on a 20-year-old convicted murderer who died Sunday at Colorado State Penitentiary showed he had absorbed methyl alcohol, a doctor said Tuesday.

Dr. Gene Townsend, attendant physician at the prison, said methyl alcohol was poisonous. It is commonly known as wood alcohol and frequently is one of the ingredients in illegally made liquor.

The victim was Alonzo C. Pennington, who was serving a 12-17 year sentence for killing a man in a bar fight in Gunnison County. He entered the prison in April.

Officials at the penitentiary said a complete investigation of the death was underway. The full results of the autopsy were expected by Thursday.

U.S. Architecture Is in a Mess, Architect Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Architect Edward Durell Stone deplores what he calls "the colossal mess we've made of the face of this country."

In his off-the-cuff appraisal of American architecture Wednesday he said: "Everything betrays us as a bunch of catchpenny materialists devoted to a blatant, screeching materialism. If you look around you, and you give a damn, it makes you want to commit suicide."

He did not single out any particular buildings, but said his remarks applied to "the scorched earth policy you see all over the country."

Stone made his indictment in remarks before his address to the Building Stone Institute, which named him its architect of the year.

Among the buildings he has designed in his 35-year career are the Gallery of Modern Art in New York City, the U.S. Embassy in New Delhi and the proposed John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

Stone said the most important aspect of architecture is "permanence, which is my obsession."

"We have betrayed," he said, "the future generations to whom we should have felt an obligation."

In his address to the institute's convention he said that "permanence is associated with the use of stone, not with glass or tin, or architectural frills."

He referred to the Egyptian pyramids and the temples of ancient Greece, called architecture "the most permanent of the arts," and added: "Those temples and pyramids have lasted and they have made their periods important, because all great periods of history are great only because of the art they produce."

Cattleman Hits Back at Farm Boycott Move

DENVER (UPI)— Brooks J. Keogh of Keane, N.D., president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, took another verbal swing today at the National Farm Organization (NFO).

Keogh, as he did Monday, criticized the NFO's 23-state campaign to withhold livestock from the market in an attempt to raise prices.

"The NFO action may not reduce actual numbers of livestock slaughtered during the period, but the psychological effect of diversion of animals to non-customary channels of trade is quite unsettling to an already delicate market," Keogh said.

"The livestock market, particularly for cattle, is only now beginning to show recovery from the worst 18 months in recent history. Among the reasons cited for the prolonged depression was the disruption caused in the fall of 1962 by a relatively light supply of cattle of a particular weight and finish, as now, upon which the NFO capitalizes to on one's long-run gain," he said.

Keogh said leaders in the cattle industry fear the stage might be set for a repetition of a similar situation when "overdone" animals compete with oncoming supplies of normally finished cattle.

"We also view the contracts being sought with packers as being unrealistic and merely another cost added to the expense of marketing livestock," Keogh said.

"And we deplore the reported violence and possibly inhumane treatment of livestock confined too long or turned loose on the streets during the melees," he said.

Boy's Puppy Killed By Two Automobiles

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — David Peck is only 7 years old but he knows about tragedy. His small world has been shattered twice in eight months.

Last January David's older brother, Darryl, 8, died of leukemia. Last Saturday Pepp, David's 3-month-old puppy, was struck and killed by a car — or cars.

"Something should be done to get these drivers to slow down," the youngster told his mother. "I'm going to write a letter to The Plain Dealer.

This is the letter David printed nearly on lined paper to the morning newspaper.

"Dear editor:

"My name is David Peck.

"My puppy's name was Peppy.

"He was killed by two cars Saturday afternoon. My dog was the smartest dog on the street.

"One of the cars was blue. One of the cars was a red Corvair. The cars were going too fast and could not stop.

"Please ask the drivers to slow down on the streets where there are puppies and children."

Signed: David Peck

Peppy was shipped in July to David from his grandmother, Mrs. Claude DeMyers of Memphis, Tenn. David, a second-grader and one of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson G. Peck Jr., can have another dog if he wants one.

He hasn't asked for one so far, his mother said. He won't part with any of the toys that belonged to Peppy.

"It's hard to believe he's really dead," the bright-eyed youngster told his mother Wednesday.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Dead End Street!

DEAR ABBY: Like the taxidermist whose problem was a fiancee who couldn't stand the sight of stuffed animals, I have a problem. I am a mortician, and my fiancee can't stand my work, although I never discuss it after hours.

After having gone to mortician college and investing much time and money in my profession, I have become somewhat successful, and don't want to give it up. My fiancee refuses to marry me unless I change my profession. I love her, but if I am going to support her, unlike the taxidermist, I can't store my zoo in the attic. —IN DEAD EARNEST

DEAR IN: If your fiancee does not dig your profession, it's time to bury your relationship.

DEAR ABBY: Saturday night I was asked to baby-sit for some neighbors who had just moved into our neighborhood. They agreed to pay me 50 cents an hour and asked me to be at their house at 7:30 p.m., sharp. I got there at about 7:25. They didn't leave the house until 8:30. They came home at 12:30 that evening and paid me two dollars. I didn't say anything. My mother said that since I was asked to be at their home at 7:30 I should have charged them for the time I sat and waited for them to leave. Do you agree with her? Should I mention to them that they owe me 50 cents if they ask me to sit for them again? Or should I refuse to sit for them? They were very nice otherwise. I am a 17-year-old girl. —CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Since you accepted the two dollars and said nothing, your silence implied that you were satisfied. Say nothing, but should they ask you to sit for them again, tell them you charge from the time you are asked to be at their home.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you'd settle something for my husband and me. About two years ago we went to a housewarming party for two of our closest friends. We gave them an expensive present. We visit them in their home often and we have never seen our gift in any room. I want to ask about it but my husband thinks it would be rude. What would you do? —LIBBY

DEAR LIBBY: I'd listen to my husband.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were first married we were so broke our wedding party consisted of us, our witnesses and the preacher. After the ceremony we took them out for dinner. They ordered the most expensive steaks on the menu, so we had to shorten our honeymoon by one day.

A year later, on our anniversary, we had a beautiful wedding with all the trimmings. I had a white gown and veil. White stands for purity, not virginity and a married woman can be as pure as any virgin. The only difference between this and a first wedding was in our wording of the invitations, which read, "To the renewal of their vows" instead of "To the marriage of." Our minister said couples can stage a wedding and renew their vows as many times as they wish. In fact, he recommends it. Sincerely, — "A RENEWER"

For night drivers: Specially-designed, anti-glare night-driving glasses in an amber shade reduce the glare from on-coming headlights. The filtered plastic lenses also are less fatiguing on longer trips through night, rain or fog, the manufacturer reports.

A new all-purpose thread has been made specifically for sewing elastic and non-puckering seams in all kinds of stretch garments. The thread contains up to 40 to 45 per cent "stretchability," the manufacturer says, and is studier and less subject to fraying than ordinary threads.

Back-Seat Tips Help the Driver

CHICAGO (UPI) — This news will come as a shock to husbands — but intelligent back-seat driving can be a big help, reports the Chicago Motor Club.

The club said there are certain rules the back-seat driver must follow in order to do the job intelligently.

—Never startle the driver. Don't shout "lok" to call his attention to some scenic attraction.

—Don't irritate the driver by continuously pointing out hazards, traffic signs and driving conditions that are obvious to him. Sound off only if you're certain some point has escaped the driver's attention.

—Learn to read maps and take the full responsibility for navigating on long trips.

—Stay awake and keep the driver company.

—Talk with the driver but don't argue, shout or get him angry.

—Be helpful. Light his cigarette, tune the radio and unwrap the candy bars.

Any baby-food vegetables left over? You can add them to a soup made from a thin cream sauce and serve it to the whole family. Season the cream sauce well!

BRIDE-TO-BE CITED — Miss Jeanne Tesmer has much to be happy about as she receives a Department of the Army award accompaneid by a "quality" step increase in pay for outstanding work at Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM) headquarters from Lt. Gen. Charles B. Duff, commanding general. She's also planning to be married Sept. 5. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Tesmer of 1475 Wilks Place and a 1959 graduate of St. Mary's High School. She has been employed at ARADCOM since then as a correspondence clerk (typing) in the Adjutant General Section. The lucky man is Charles Herbst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Herbst, 2111 Warwick. Food Value in White Bread?

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Isn't it true that the white bread in my supermarket has no food value?

A—Many people still cling to the belief that white bread and white flour are unfit for human consumption, according to Dr. Elizabeth Munves, Nutritionist, New York University. That is not so. Most white bread and flour in this country has been enriched because it appeared impossible to change food habits of Americans who prefer white bread.

By replacing the iron, niacin, thiamine and riboflavin through the enrichment process, white bread becomes a very nutritious food, she explains.

Q—Isn't blackstrap molasses far more wholesome than sugar?

A — No. In their excellent "Modern Diet and Nutrition," Dr. Henrietta Fleck and Dr. Elizabeth Munves, both of New York University, state:

"This thick, dark syrup represents the leavings of sugar manufacture. It is not the excellent source of iron, copper and B vitamins that faddists proclaim it to be. The iron present comes from contact with factory machinery and the calcium from the lime water used in processing."

Outdoor chefs will love Gaynor Maddox's new book, book, "Cook Out." To order, send name, address and $1 to "Cook Out," in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Dept. A, Radio City Station, New York 19, N.Y.

Double Duty For Apples

You can use a clove apple to banish odors from hampers and closed suitcases. Select a firm apple and fill completely with cloves, pushing the point into the fruit and leaving the clove bud on the outside. The cloves keep the apple from deteriorating for a long time and also add a spicy fragrance to suitcases and hampers.

PARIS—Americans will make biscuits in France.

Wrong State

LEEDBURG, Fla. (AP) — State Senator Scott Kell laughingly admits that part of his defeat in the governor's race of the Democratic Primary could be due to campaigning in Alabama rather than Florida. He had been campaigning with such fervor in North Florida that before he realized it he was shaking hands and asking for votes at a general store across the line in Alabama.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Thanks to the lady who suggested using old nylon stockings for scouring out the bath tub. It not only scours better than anything we have tried but also saves on cleansers.

We have found other uses for the stockings since her suggestion:

Put a sponge in a stocking for washing your walls or car . . .

For washing hard - to - reach places, put a sponge in the toe of a nylon stocking, stick a yardstick in against the sponge and pull the stocking up over the yardstick — grasping the stocking and the end of the yardstick. One never loses the sponge—and you have the abrasive action of the nylon over the sponge.

It's terrific. —Mrs. Elizabeth Sands

Dear Heloise:

Here is something I have found most helpful when rolling dough:

I put the ball of dough to be rolled onto a sheet of waxed paper. Then take plastic wrap such as one would use in wrapping sandwiches and wrap my rolling pin in it. Tape the ends tightly. No messy surfaces to clean up and no fussing with a sticky rolling pin. —Mrs. Edith M. Bowen

Dear Heloise:

I found that I wasn't fastening my seat belt most of the time. The buckle had damaged a coat, and I didn't want to take a chance of damaging more good clothes.

So I put an inch-thick piece of foam rubber, twelve - by - six inches, "under the belt and buckle." Now I'm back in the habit of using my seat belt. — Margaret Hellyer

Dear Heloise:

Dry powder cleansers have several large holes in the top of the can to sift the contents. The holes are so large that they put out an excess amount of cleanser.

I lift off the adhesive paper on the top of the can, cut the paper in half diagonally then put one piece back over the holes. This allows the cleanser to come out through only two holes which gives me enough of the powder to do the work and the can of cleanser lasts much longer. —Mary Freeman

Dear Heloise:

Since breadboards are expensive to buy, I purchased a left-over piece of Formica for less than a dollar.

It is very practical and convenient and the shiny surface is easy to clean. —Mrs. H.

Dear Heloise:

If you have traverse rods with two loose-hanging cords, cut the cords off so they are out of the reach of small children.

I came into a room and found my three-year-old with one of these cords wrapped around his neck. It wasn't choking him but it easily could have been.

I took hold of the two cords at the spot where I thought I should cut them. I then opened and closed the curtain so I was "sure" the cords wouldn't be too short.

Then I slipped the tips on the cords above this spot, tied a knot in the cord, let the tip side back, and cut the cord below the knot.

A simple job such as this could prevent a tragedy. —Mrs. Dale Saunders

Dear Heloise:

For those easily scattered playthings, such as clay, marbles, checkers, and crayons: Paint several cigar boxes (all but the outer bottom) with inexpensive enamel, and with a felt tip ink marker label each box with its contents.

These boxes stack neatly and give my children instant access to their games, etc. Each box can be left out until ready to put up the game, and they are easy to re-store.

For card games, such as Old Maid, Snap, etc., we use a metal file box (such as is used for kitchen recipes.) Education flash cards fit wonderfully in the box, too. —F. C.

Cedar Helps Rout Moths

NEW YORK (UPI) — Before packing clothes for the youngster's return to college, inspect all garments for moth invasion.

One sure way to protect woolen garments is to convert a closet into a moth-repellent sotrage area. This is done easily by lining the closet with cedar lumber especially cut and packaged for handyman use.

Industry spokesmen report that the average closet can be cedar-lined in a weekend project at a cost of about $50. The only tools required are a saw and hammer. A woman capable of handling these basic tools can do the job herself.

The closet lining is applied directly over any wall surface.

It comes in pre-cut, easy-to-handle pieces which are tongue-and-grooved along the edges and at each end to simplify fitting.

The chief appeal of a cedar closet lies in its ability to repel moths. The fragrance of the cedar wood, while pleasant to humans, is deadly to moth larvae.

Elephant Rustlers

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Rustlers hit a horse and an elephant for about $20 here. The bad guys struck the two riding machines at the Aloma Shopping Center and robbed the coin boxes. They took the horse for $14.60 and the pink elephant for about $8.

Lady Bird Says She Was Excited Over Nomination

By FRANCES LEWINE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson said she never anticipated what excitement it would be to see her husband nominated for president.

The Democratic convention demonstration seemed like "skyrockets going off," she said Wednesday night as she celebrated with their two daughters.

In the presidential box, the beaming First Lady threw confetti, applauded and waved at the thousands of delegates who acclaimed her husband. Daughters Lynda, 20, and Luci, 17, shared in the tumultuous reception with their parents.

LBJ's political partner and wife of 29 years, Lady Bird found the climactic nomination scene "overwhelming."

"It was marvelous to see people marching past — I've known so many of them through the years I can recognize one out every five people going past," she told reporters during the demonstration for Johnson.

Winding up the big day, Mrs. Johnson, Luci and Lynda helped put the spotlight on vice-presidential nominee Hubert H. Humphrey and his wife, Muriel.

Johnson, who popped his long-kept secret Wednesday night, headed back to Washington. The celebration of the 1964 Democratic ticket went on into the early morning hours in this seaside resort.

The Johnsons went to a "President's Club" party for Humphrey, given by wealthy Democrats who contributed $1,000 or more to the party.

At the party, Humphrey got delighted roars of laughter when he stepped up to speak after his wife and said: "I've had a lot of experience being vice president because the president in my house has already talked to you."

Mrs. Humphrey said, "Everything we've been through has been well worth it." She had found the suspense intense.

Mrs. Johnson confided that she, too, was "one of the waiters" — those who were kept in the dark by Johnson about his running mate.

The loving, friendly crush that had welcomed Lady Bird to the convention city Wednesday, continued until she finally left the party at 2 a.m. and headed to her borrowed oceanfront home to rest.

A crowd of 5,000 had stood what New Jersey Gov. Richard Hughes termed "abuse from the heavens" — a soaking downpour of rain — to greet Mrs. Johnson on her afternoon helicopter arrival at Claridge Plaza near the boardwalk.

A great cheer went up when the sun broke through the leaden clouds just as the First Lady's helicopter touched down.

"The sun shines on Lady Bird Johnson," said Gov. Hughes, "may it always shine that way."

AGE COMPLAINT

BARNSLEY, England (UPI) —Eric Whitney, 42, complained Wednesday that the age limit for the Great Britain beauty contest was too high. He said it should be lowered so that his daughter, Veronica, 14, can enter. The limit is 16.

Cardinal Says Poles Not Worse Than Others

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (AP) — Some Poles may drink or shirk work, but that doesn't mean Poland has a monopoly on such vices, says Stfan Cardinal Wyszynski.

"Speaking about our vices, we must declare that we are not the worst people," the Roman Catholic primate of Poland told 50,000 worshippers Wednesday at the anniversary of Czestochowa's 600-year-old shrine of the "Black Madonna."

"There are other nations who drink yet more," Cardinal Wyszynski said.

The same applies to laziness, he said, but added "we perhaps insufficiently regard the duty to work."

The primate spoke in indirect reply to criticism by Poland's Communist regime that drinking and sloth are traditional vices hindering Polish progress.

Cardinal Wyszynski extolled Polish spirit and dedication to Christianity as a guarantee that the Church would survive under Communist rule.

The primate charged that government films have belittled certain heroes of Polish history which is closely connected with religion.

"Many magnificent fragments of the history of our people were ridiculed," he said.

Negotiated Viet Peace Forecast By Goldwater

By WALTER R. MEARS

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater sought privacy at sea today after thrusting the guerrilla war in South Viet Nam squarely into his campaign against President Johnson.

While the Democratic National Convention nominated Johnson and chose Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota to run with the President, the Republican nominee for the White House cruised the waters off Southern California.

Lolling against the stern rail of a borrowed 83-foot yacht Wednesday, Goldwater:

—Declared he thinks the Johnson administration is trying to negotiate a settlement of the Southeast Asian fighting before Election Day; said that timing would be wrong and added he fears such an agreement would be a giveaway to the Communists.

—Said some form of negotiations with Red China "might be profitable" — when pro-Western forces can deal from a position of strength in Southeast Asia.

—Labeled the U.S.-backed war against Communists in South Viet Nam an issue of major concern to the voters in the presidential race.

Goldwater, striking a theme he raised in Cleveland, Ohio, two days ago, said he expects to hear "most any day" of a negotiated settlement in Viet Nam.

The senator told reporters at the floating news conference in Catalina Island's Avalon harbor his "political bones" tell him word of negotiations can be expected before Election Day.

"I hope it's not a giveaway to the Communists," he said. "I suspect that's what it will be if we have one."

Goldwater said this is not the time for peace talks. "Before any negotiations are begun that involve us directly or indirectly, we must improve our military position," he said. "I don't think the military situation is such that we have much to bargain with."

Goldwater said he read a newspaper report forecasting negotiations for peace in South Viet Nam. He mentioned a Central Intelligence Agency report, saying it also talked of negotiations.

He said that "is the typical pattern" used to prepare the public for an announcement that negotiations have been held.

"I feel from that that we are considering it and we are closer to it than Congress or the public realize," he said.

Goldwater said any future negotiations should involve as little Communist participation as possible.

But he indicated Red China would have to play a part in any settlement negotiations.

"I think that's where you have to go," he said.

"Any president should always be interested in negotiations," Goldwater said. "That's the way you end wars."

"I've thought for some time that a talk like that with the Red Chinese might be profitable," he said.

But, He added: "I don't think we can possibly come out of any negotiations now with an honorable type of peace which would be honorable to Viet Nam and honorable to those men of ours who fought and died over there."

The enemy should be the one, actually, that should institute negotiations, Goldwater said, "unless through the United Nations you can find interest in both sides."

"The solution is not really a military solution in the long run," he said. "If somebody starts negotiations I hope it will be through the United Nations."

Through press secretary Paul Wagner he relayed a clarification of his comments on negotiating with the Communist Chinese.

Wagner said Goldwater, on a ship-to-shore phone, declared that was not his suggestion, but one advanced by military men and civilian experts.

These advisors, Wagner quoted Goldwater as saying, recommended that when the South Vietnamese military situation is improved, the United States send word to Red China demanding that nation stop sending supplies that end up in the hands of Communist guerrillas.

If the Chinese do not halt shipments, Wagner said Goldwater told him, the United States could stage a show off strength to underline its intentions.

"I'm not recommending this, but it might not be an impossible idea," Wagner said Goldwater added.

Goldwater, in red pants and a white polo shirt, said he plans to spend his vacation days fishing, working a portable ham radio set, and preparing the speech with which he will formally launch his campaign at Prescott, Ariz., on Sept. 3.

The senator and his wife plan to stay on the yacht Sundance until Aug. 31.

Princess and Hubby Rescued During Boating

OLBIA, Sardinia (AP) — This Sardinian fishing port buzzed today with unconfirmed reports that Britain's Princess Margaret and her husband were rescued by lifeboat after the Aga Khan's yacht snagged on a rock.

Margaret and the Earl of Snowden, were cruising around the island of Mortorio near here Wednesday as guests aboard the Aga Khan's yacht Amaloun when the incident reportedly occurred.

Employes of the Aga Khan said the Amaloun was sailing close to the shore of Mortorio when it struck a rock and came to a standstill.

The Amaloun began taking water through a hole punched by the rock, so the yacht's lifeboat was hurriedly launched.

The princess and her husband donned lifejackets, clambered into the lifeboat and were safely landed on Mortorio, where they waited until a larger boat came and took them back to Sardinia.

The Amaloun apparently wasn't damaged badly. The yacht remained afloat and was later towed to Sardinia for repairs.

Neither the Aga Khan nor the royal couple could be reached for comment on the reports. Nor was there immediate confirmation from police or port authorities.

Another unconfirmed version came from the Italian news agency ANSA. It said Margaret, her husband and the Aga Khan jumped into the ocean after the yacht struck the rock and were rescued by two fishing boats.

Princess Margaret and her husband are here on a three-week holiday.

Astronaut Tests Gratifying in Oregon Work

BEND, Ore. (AP) — Scientists moved to the last of their three make-believe moon fields today, pleased by the way astronaut Walter Cunningham and two engineers have performed this week.

"The results have been quite gratifying," test director Earl LaFevers said at a news conference Wednesday night. "There have been fewer problems than we expected."

The series of walking, climbing, equipment-testing and sample-gathering activities in central Oregon are designed to determine what man can be expected to do once he reaches the moon.

The crew from the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex., has conducted its so-called time and motion tests since Monday on a rocky lava bed and sand-like pumice field. Today's work was on a volcanic glass surface.

The scientific team allowed newsmen to watch tests sessions Tuesday and Wednesday, but requested privacy for today and Friday.

The tests conducted in this area will be repeated at Houston under conditions simulating the moon's gravity, which is one-sixth that of earth.

Soviets Threaten To Walk Out of U. N.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today repeated a veiled threat to walk out of the United Nations if attempts are made to force the Kremlin to pay for certain U.N. peacekeeping operations.

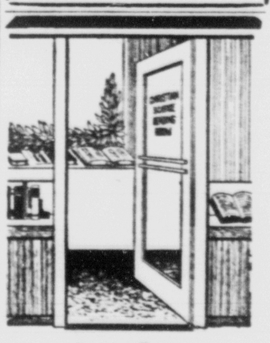

The Communist party organ Pravda said the Soviet Union would not budge from its "position of principle" — that those responsible for aggression in the Middle East and the Congo should pay for U.N. peace forces.

The paper also repeated a Soviet statement of last March that any attempt to require Soviet payment would "force us to review our attitude toward activities in the United Nations organization."

Pravda appealed for support from Asian, African and Latin-American countries.

CAPITOL STUFF

Atlantic City — The contrast between this Democratic Party convention and that in Los Angeles four years ago is exactly that between tepid vegetable soup and a hot tomale.

This is because a party nominating convention reflects the personality of the political leader who dominates it. In 1960 that figure was the exciting, young man on the political make, John F. Kennedy. Here in Atlantic City it is the comparatively pallid but comforting folksy image of Lyndon Johnson, with its accent on harmony and unity.

This is no disparagement of Johnson. The fact is he is dominating this convention in a much more forceful manner than Kennedy could have, had he lived to seek a second term.

Sure there are ruckuses. But a masterful job, for which, the President is largely responsible, has been done thus far in sublimating them. The civil rights issue, in all its angry forms, including the knotty problem of whether to seat a "lily white" or a heavily Negro-weighted Mississippi delegation, could not be suppressed entirely, even by miracle-man Johnson.

If this were a Kennedy-run convention, that issue would already be exploding all over the famous boardwalk. The South would be rising again, probably ending up by walking out of this convention just as it did in the big civil rights split of 1948. But because the South thinks it can live with Lyndon after a fashion, where it could not with JFK and especially with Bobby Kennedy, the President gets a break in his unity drive.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (Gal), the recognized leader of the leader of the Southern bloc, is not here leading the segregationist delegates as he would have been if this were a Kennedy-dominated convention. Instead, he is staying away as if, with Johnson the leading civil rights advocate, he accepts his cause as lost.

Even the Redoubtable Gov. Wallace Abdicates

And how about that firebrand of Southern segregationists, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama? Who could imagine him regraining from a convention fight against the Kennedy forces? But Wallace does not plan to face up to Johnson. He has announced he will limit his convention appearance to a platform committee meeting tomorrow, then scoot out of town.

Total harmony won't be achieved at this convention, but on the surface the display of comparative unity should permit the President to point to it with pride when he appears next Thursday to accept the nomination.

This achievement, due largely to the President's extraordinary conciliatory capabilities—"wheeling and dealing," in political vernacular—should not be discounted. Through the years the Democrats, when in convention assembled, have engaged in bitter and dramatic snarling matches as if under compulsion to act their worst when the national spotlight is upon them.

Lyndon has been determined to have them act their best this time. And any close inspection of his preliminary maneuvers shows that so far he has been most skillful.

The tricky Mississippi delegate issue, for example, is now in the smoothing over stage. A compromise, such as seating both delegations, is expected to be worked out under credentials committee chairman David Lawrence. The veteran Pennsylvania politician and former governor is LBJ's lieutenant in this phase of the unity drive.

It May Sound Dull, But It Won't Be

It might appear from this appraisal that this convention is going to be a dull political show. A party's assemblage of delegates from all states is never dull. There are always delegates determined to shoot off their mouths against those running the show, or those threatening to take a walk.

Nevertheless, it is necessary for the leaders to figure that a convention just might be heavy going as a spectacle, and so arrange for suspenseful drama. The President is doing just that by delating selection of his running mate.

This reminds us of what Sen. Eugene McCarthy (Minn.) told a New Jersey Congressman yesterday, when asked what he thought of his chances of being tapped as Vice President by Lyndon.

"These crucial decisions," said McCarthy, "are supposed to be made in an atmosphere of exhaustion and boredom. Being in Atlantic City, we are already ahead on both counts."

Johnson Keeper of the Big Convention Secret

McCarthy knows better. None of the convention delegates is going to get exhausted on the job. The sessions, beginning Monday, will be at night only. This leaves all day to play. There may be, as McCarthy suggests, a certain atmosphere of boredom, but that, too, is deceptive. For example, the question early arriving delegates were asking today was: "Who is going to be Vice President?"

The suspense over the Vice Presidency that Johnson has been able to build up is a tribute to his instinct for political showmanship. It is also a tribute to his ability to keep a secret if, as seems certain, he has known for some time who he wants. Few Presidents have taken their hair down in so many background private talks with cronies of the press and politics as has Lyndon. Few Presidents could have competed with LBJ in expressing strong and frank opinions when chatting with intimates about party colleagues, both those he is for or against. Yet who Johnson wants to run with him is a very well guarded secret.

By playing this one close to the vest, Johnson has given the convention a needed lift. Otherwise he knows the nation might lose interest in a party unity ceremony, the chief function of which is the coronation formality for the preordained Presidential nominee.

National Dream Girl Elected by Fraternity

DENVER (UPI)—Miss Kathlen Barden, a sophomore at Arkansas University, Tuesday was crowned the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity National Dream girl.

Miss Barden, a 19-year-old native of Little Rock, was selected by the vote of the undergraduate delegates attending the fraternity's 96th anniversary convention here.

The 5-3 brunet, a dramatic arts and speech major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Barden of Little Rock.

She topped two other finalists for the honor—Miss Judy Ann Williams of Mississippi University and Miss Britt - Ingerd Rogeberg of South Carolina University.

Joan Crawford Loses Role in New Movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Joan Crawford says she cried for nine hours straight after hearing-from newsmen-that she was being replaced in a movie for the first time in her career.

Producer-director Robert Aldrich replaced the ailing Miss Crawford with Olivia de Havilland as costar — with Bette Davis — in "Hush, Hush Sweet Charlotte."

"I'm used to having people look me straight in the eye — not this indirect treatment," she said from her bed in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

She is there for the second time with a persistent case of pneumonia. Her illness forced shutdown of the multimillion-dollar movie.

ENTERTAINERS — The Kingsmen Quartet will present a program of songs at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Mount Calvary Lutheran Church, 1318 N. Circle Dr. They will also be guests at a barbecue at 5:30 p.m., sponsored by the church's Luther Leaguers. The quartet has been chosen by California Lutheran College to carry out certain public relations and student recruitment plans throughout the country. The group sings sacred, spiritual, barber shop, novelty and popular tunes. In April the fellows cut their first LP recording. Natives of California, they are coached by Dr. C. Robert Zimmerman, chairman of Creative Arts Division at CLC, and their accompanist is Howard Sonstegaard, Redwood City. On October 17, California Lutheran College's football team meets Colorado College for CC's Homecoming game.

MAN HELD

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A Colorado Springs man was being held in jail here today on a murder charge in connection with the vehicular death of his cousin. Police said Daniel G. Romo, 29, allegedly ran down his cousin, Jesus Romo, 27, of San Diego, after an argument over a woman. Jesus Romo was on a motorcycle at the time. The incident occurred Aug. 11. The Colorado man was ordered to appear in court Sept. 9 for a preliminary hearing.

LUNCH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg lunched with President Johnson, Wednesday on the eve of a lecture tour of India and Malaysia where he will discuss liberty and equality under the U.S. Constitution.

Lyndon's Method Means Watching Every Detail

By ARTHUR EDSON

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — To Lyndon B. Johnson even minor political details are to be studied, to be worried about, and, if anything goes wrong, to blow one's stack over.

Never has this been better illustrated than at the Democratic National Convention.

Wednesday night the whooping delegates nominated Johnson by acclamation.

They waited patiently for the word—and when it came, they shouted Hubert H. Humphrey Jr. as their choice for vice president.

They avoided floor fights and adopted a platform with scarcely a dissenting voice, something that hasn't been done in at least a generation.

In short, they did precisely what the political doctor in the White House ordered.

Johnson himself, while strolling with reporters in Washington Wednesday said approvingly of the delegates: "There have been no roll calls, no fights, no knockdowns and dragouts, and no personal charges."

Much has been written here this week about how Johnson's knowing hand was guiding this convention, how he was on the phone making sure each detail was honed to perfection.

And this was ture.

"You know how Mr. Johnson is," an aide said. "He believes in direct action, so he gets on the phone. On some things he may call three or four persons."

But to stress this too much misses the whole point of the Johnson method.

In talking with those who have been deeply involved in this convention, one gets this picture: what happened — or, more importantly, what didn't happen — isn't so much the result of Johnson the busy telephoner as it is of Johnson the careful planner.

A man close to the President used this as a illustration:

When vice presidential boomlets for Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy began, Johnson quickly cut him, and a few others, from the running — and thus removed the one man — and the one family — who might have stolen the show from him here.

Even the tribute to the late President John F. Kennedy was prudently put off until tonight: No use stirring up a lot of emotion until all decisions have been made.

Or take the hottest issue this convention had to face: which delegation from Mississippi should be seated?

A week ago Saturday Humphrey was in California. While there he talked with such Democratic leaders as Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Sen. Pierre Salinger, Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh and State Controller Alan Cranston about the potentially explosive Mississippi situation.

When he returned to the White House, he reportedly told Johnson: "If this gets to a vote on the floor, we're done. It's too emotional."

The upshot: Humphrey, who helped to split the party in 1948 by leading a civil rights fight, now was to work to soothe everything over.

Everything was thought of. Atty. Gen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, one of Humphrey's most loyal followers, just happened to be named head of the subcommittee to handle this problem.

If the compromise that came out of all the bustling and conferring and worrying wasn't spectacular, it hit right on target. No fight. Mutterings maybe. But no fight.

Johnson runs a peculiar shop.

He apparently doesn't like titles, and he wants men who are eager to work, and to work in complete anonimity. So there is no clearcut division of duties, and Johnson's agents may fan out in all directions, with several of them working on the same problem from different angles.

The Atlantic City White House took form here early, and by the first of this week its switchboard was so jammed you repeatedly got busy signals when you tried to dial it.

Walter Jenkins, a longtime friend and administrative assistant, was chief of staff of the operations.

Bill D. Moyers, a political dynamo at the age of 30, worked with the platform writers and on the convention program.

In a divided operation, there's no point in listing everyone, but a variety of chores went to such White House aides as Kenneth O'Donnell, who has been the President's appointments secretary and who will become the executive secretary of the Democratic National Committee; Lawrence O'Brien, the Capitol Hill go-between who will also be spending more time at party headquarters; Myer Feldman, the White House legal officer; Douglass Cater, a speech writer and many others.

Often you would hear this phrase: "He talked with the White House about that." This could mean he talked with Johnson; more probably it meant he talked with an assistant.

Among those who stayed in Washington to mind the store were Jack Valenti, a top assistant, and George Reedy his news secretary.

Perhaps the most significant thing in all this is how complete the planning was.

Clifton Carter, who looks after endless political details for Johnson, and Richard Maguire, Democratic treasurer, had a series of workshops going this week which in effect laid the groundwork for the fall campaigns.

All 50 states had representatives present who were told how to take advantage of research material worked up by the national committee, how to organize Young Citizens for LBJ, how to provide publicity, how to pep up women's activities, how to encourage citizen groups and how to turn out zippy campaign material.

"Best workshop I've ever seen," Carter told a reporter. And all this at a time when most candidates are still fighting for the nomination.

Carter also has the responsibility of making sure everything runs smoothly in Convention Hall. An elaborate phone system keeps him within instant touch of each delegation.

He was explaining this as he was returning from lunch. Suddenly his coat pocket started to buzz. Carter took out a small radio receiver and switched it off.

"This means I have a call," he said, "I've got to get to a phone."

As you can see, not many bets were overlooked in Atlantic City.

Brother in Line, Too, On Theft Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Angelo Zayas, 29, having been arraigned before a federal commissioner on charges of cashing a stolen $120 tax-refund check, turned and saw his brother next in line.

"What are you doing here?" Angelo asked his brother, Wilfredo, 20, Wednesday.

Wilfredo said he had been arrested by postal inspectors on charges of stealing a $40 unemployment check.

Commissioner Max Schiffman set bail for Angelo at $10,000, and for Wilfredo at $1,500.

Fabric lamp shades with stitching may be shampooed just like your funiture and rugs in a pan filled with shampoo suds and a soft sponge. Do not attempt this on shades that have the material glued on.

MARY: I'll thank Harry for buying your lunch, the next time I see him about the money he owes me. Did he get past the Pork Chops on the Broadmoor's Main Dining Room Buffet? Or did he just cruise that big salad and fruit table, from noon until 2:00. John adv.

Freeway System Bringing More Region Visitors

Colorado's visitors this summer are coming from greater distances than ever before, thanks to the nation's freeway system, the Rocky Mountain AAA Club reported today.

Vacationists traveling on the new Interstate highways can go 100 miles farther a day than they could on the old 2-lane roads, according to the club's travel counselors.

Once dependent for travelers on neighboring states, Colorado now is attracting thousands of visitors from the Atlantic seaboard and from the far western states, AAA club spokesmen said, adding the following observations of 1964 summer travelers in the state:

Although the "hot belt" states of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas are still significant contributors to Colorado's travel industry, the more populous Midwestern, Eastern and West Coast states are of growing importance as the sources of visitors.

This year's motoring traveler is more likely than ever before to be pulling a trailer and planning to do some camping during his vacation. However, such visitors almost always spend part of their time in motels, for continued camping is acceptably only to a relatively few travelers with unusually complete camping equipment.

Downtown shopping areas are popular with vacationists, who like to see what stores in other parts of the country have to offer. However, what attracts visitors to Colorado are still the well known scenic attractions—Pikes Peak, Rocky Mountain National Park, Mesa Verde, the Air Force Academy and the splendor of the Rockies generally.

Other action has been taken during the past few days to further complete Western National's staff.

"The success of any bank depends entirely on the quality and character of its staff and officers," President Fischer said. "We have been very fortunate in locating men and women who come qualified in all respects, particularly with excellent references from the banks where their performance was tested with time."

E. Ray Hankey is returning to Colorado Springs where he started his banking career 16 years ago. He was for eight years manager for the Cheyenne, Wyo. branch of Universal C.I.T. Corp. Following this he was credit manager for Montgomery Ward in Cheyenne until accepting his present position with Western National.

Can Constitutional Return Correct Current Excesses?

By SAM CAMPBELL

From what one hears along Main Street, you would judge that businessmen suppose the ills of the last 60 years would be set right by a simple return to the Constitution.

And there is afoot a little more than a suspicion that such a return will be accomplished by the ground swell of opinion that now rumbles from the grasslands of the West to the sidewalks of New York.

The idea of a Constitutional haven where property would be eternally secure, where businessmen would be free to pursue profits, where workingmen would have some chance of keeping what they earn, certainly looks good to this writer.

However, when I turn my eyes from the distant scenery to the course that lies immediately ahead, I see rough water, not a harbor. The prospect of a Constitutional sanctuary appears remote indeed. Now I will give you a few of the reasons that have led to this judgment.

First, the supposition that a turnover in elective offices, even on an unprecedented scale — will dispose of the bureaucracy that persists through every administration seems to be a miscalculation. It is like the auto owner who needed a ring and reboring job, but was willing to settle for a set of sparkplugs and a tune-up; the repairs didn't put the car back in order.

But even more painful than that, examination shows that even the U. S. Constitution contains in it the sour yeast that ruins the bread.

Even before it was distorted by unjudicial interpretation, the Constitution gave the Federal Government authority to tax without ceiling, to borrow without limit, to regulate business, to manage the money system, and to go into the mail business. All this is under Section 8 of Article I.

Yet another section (No. 1 of Article VI) gives the Federal Government power to override the Constitution by means of treaties with foreign powers.

I would like to join with you in believing that the authors of the Constitution were guided by infallible inspiration. I would like to suppose that no group of men in a succeeding generation ever would exercise the granted powers to tax at a confiscatory level, or to borrow irresponsibly, or to regulate to extinction, or to defraud, or to monopolize.

I do believe the Constitution's authors were divinely guided and that they were inspired, but the document itself shows the faults that flesh is heir to. And events since its composition do not support a doctrine either of human or Constitutional infallibility.

This is not to cast a shadow on the intellects who founded the Federal Government. Circumstances suggest that greater honor is due them, the honor of following their example: in that they inquired into the causes of tyranny and used the best knowledge THEN available to prevent its occurrence in these United States.

Schedule for Goldwater Is Announced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republican National Committee today made official the first eight days of Sen. Barry M. Goldwater's presidential campaign schedule which begins Sept. 3 in Prescott, Ariz.

The GOP vice presidential candidate, Rep. William E. Miller, will accompany Goldwater to Arizona for the opening. Goldwater, in turn, will be on hand when Miller formally opens his campaign in his home town of Lockport, N.Y., Sept. 5.

Goldwater will return to Arizona before resuming his campaign Sept. 8 in California. The next day, he will continue his drive for the presidency in California and will visit Oregon and Washington.

He will make flying visits Sept. 10 to Idaho, Montana and Minnesota. He will go to Illinois Sept. 11.

GOP National Chairman Dean Burch said Republican state chairmen in each state will announce the cities where the candidates will appear.

Miller will campaign in Indiana Sept. 7, and will return home before going to Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire, on Sept. 9. The following day he will be in New York, and, on Sept. 11, he will campaign in Connecticut.

Hewlett Packard Company Reports Record Sales

Hewlett Packard Company, Palo Alto, Calif., whose oscilloscope division is located in Colorado Springs, today reported record sales and earnings for the nine-month period ended July 31.

Total sales, including all divisions and subsidiaries, amounted to $93,037,000, a 9 per cent increase over sales of $85,474,000 for the first nine months of Fiscal 1963.

Net earnings of $6,511,000 were up 28 per cent over the $5,080,000 earned during the corresponding period last year.

Earnings allocated to common stock, after provision for payment of preferred dividends, totaled $6,208,000. This was equivalent to 55 cents a share on 11,301,629 shares outstanding, compared with 43 cents a share on 11,186,962 shares outstanding for the corresponding period in 1963.

David Packard, chairman of the board, noted that operating results for the first nine months of 1963 have been re-stated to give effect to the current write-off of research and development expense, thereby making them comparable to the fiscal 1964 figures. As a result, the earnings now reported for the first nine months of 1963 are slightly less than those previously reported.

In commenting on current operations, Packard said that incoming orders for the first nine months of fiscal 1964 totaled $98,674,000, a 10 per cent increase over the corresponding period last year.

"Orders were particularly strong during the third quarter," he said, "totaling $37,148,000. This represents an all-time quarterly high for the company and reflects the recent introduction of several important products to the market."

Hewlett-Packard is currently exhibiting 50 new measuring instruments and systems at the Western Electronic Show and Convention in Los Angeles.

"Many of these products, such as our new Spectrum Analyzer, Cesium Beam Frequency Standard, Differential Voltmeter, and Magnetic Tape Recorder systems, are attracting considerable interest at the show and are expected to add a significant increment to our overall sales volume," Packard said.

He pointed out that Hewlett-Packard is now completing several major construction projects which will provide the company with more than 250,000 square feet of additional engineering and manufacturing space.

"In Colorado Springs our Oscilloscope Division is moving into a new 137,000 square-foot plant," he said. "In October a major addition to our plant in West Germany will be completed, and in the same month Yokogawa-Hewlett-Packard, Ltd., our joint venture company in Japan, will move into a new facility in Tokyo."

"We have also recently announced plans for an expansion of our headquarters plant in Palo Alto. Construction is expected to begin this fall on a three-story building and an underground warehouse, with completion scheduled for October, 1965."

U. S. Business Shows Active Growth Aboard

The Commerce Department reported that United States private investments in Europe at the end of 1963 were $17 billion of the total $66 billion in investment world-wide.

In the monthly survey of "Current Business" the department said Europe accounted for $2.5 billion of the $6 billion increase during 1963. In Canada the rise was nearly $1.7 billion to a total of $21.6 billion and in 1963 was about $260 million to a total of $12.4 billion it said.

The analysis predicted that by all available indications business will continue to maintain a vigorous growth rate abroad for some time ahead.

Other reports received from Boettcher and Company show second half earning of B. F. Goodrich are expected to Maintain or possibly improve. The percentage increase recorded for the first half of this year over last show earnings increased better than 15 per cent and sales by better than five per cent.

Clevite Corporation has announced the establishment of a new manufacturing and research facility for the Clevite Ordnance Division in Pasadena, Calif.

Thomas E. Lynch, division general manager, said the west coast facility will provide the same research development and manufacturing in underwater acoustics and ordnance devices as are now provided at the Cleveland headquarters.

Westinghouse Electric Corporation and Dow Chemical Company have announced a joint research and development program on methods of reprocessing nuclear fuels and fabricating plutonium fuel elements.

A fuel recycling laboratory to cost about $1.7 million will be built at an undetermined site as part of the program next year, the companies said.

Radio Corporation of America announced that it has received a $27 million contract from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for construction of 19 ground computer systems.

The systems to be built at RCA's aerospace system division, in Van Nuys, Calif., will be used for checkout and launch of Saturn 1B and Saturn v launch vehicle.

Academy Men Study Complex Science Problems

Conversion of nuclear power, use of laser light r'ays, the tracking of satellites — these complex scientific problems were studied by three members of the Air Force Academy Department of Physics during the summer.

Maj. Thomas L. Jackson, assistant professor, was assigned to the Research and Technology Division, Air Force Systems Command. In the Mechanics Office he provided overall and technical guidance and monitoring for Air Force exploratory and advanced development programs in the power conversion field.

Among the programs covered were: systems for nuclear auxiliary power, an advanced space reactor, a solar turbo - electric conversion system for space application, fuel cells, plasma devices etc.

After attending a short course in "Lasers and Masers" at UCLA, Capt. Richard E. Denfield, an assistant professor, worked with the Laser Group in the Physics Branch of the Air Force Weapons Laboratory. He solved theoretical problems arising in the study of optical pumping of a ruby laser using a theta pinched plasma and assisted in the installation of a theta pinch device at the laboratory.

Third member of the Physics Department staff, Capt. Alfred J. Hallisey, an instructor, was assigned to the Geodesy and Gravity Branch of the Terrestrial Science Laboratory Division of the Air Force Cambridge (Mass.) Research Lab.

With two civilian members of the lab staff he worked on the acceptance testing and operation of a new high speed shutter used in a satellite tracking camera.

The equipment is used to photograph pawsing satellites such as Echo I and II and will also be used in future satellite projects.

Tests Continue For District 11 School Students

Tests for new junior and senior high school pupils which were given today will continue Friday and on Monday and Tuesday.

Any boys and girls who have never attended public schools in District No. 11, or who have been away a year or more, and plan to enroll in junior or high school should take these examinations.

They should report to Palmer or Wasson High Schools on either day at 8:00 a. m. The morning session will end about noon and pupils are to return at 1:00 p.m. to complete the tests.

Pupils who plan to attend North, South, and West Junior High Schools and Palmer High School will be tested at Palmer. Wasson High school will be the center for pupils attending East, Washington Irving, and Horace Mann Junior High Schools and Wasson.

No pupils will be enrolled until these tests have been completed. Friday, September 11, will probably be the earliest date for those taking the tests on September 8 or later. Information from them is helpful to counselors in planning student's schedule.

The main entrance to Palmer High School at E. Platte and N. Nevada should be used; the office entrance to Wasson High School on Afton Way.

There are no lunch facilities at either school.

Grandma Wasn't Grandma at All

Two young Colorado Springs boys, one posing as the other's grandmother, bought an $85 used car off a Boise, Idaho, lot and drove away.

After a few blocks the transmission fell out of the car, traffic snarled and police arrived on the scene to discover that grandma wasn't really grandma at all, but a 13-year old boy in disguise who had signed the papers so the 15-year old "grandson" could buy the car.

It was a very clever disguise, police said, including a voice like a real grandmother.

The boys were held in Boise Wednesday pending return to their home here. They left Colorado Springs Monday and rode a bus as far as Boise.

After buying the car they had $11 left. Still undetermined was the question of whether they would get a refund on the car. Officials refused to released the boy's names.

City officials said the low usage day was 24.5 million gallons on Aug. 20.

Anti-Discrimination Unit to Take Action Against Motel

The Colorado Anti-Discrimination Commission will initiate action against a local motel owner who has not complied with General Regulation No. 1, according to the Commission's director James F. Reynolds.

The regulation requires that motels post each unit with a notice reading: "The services, facilities and accommodations of this establishment are available to all persons alike regardless of race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry."

The name of the local motel owner is being withheld.

The regulation also requires that the office of each motel be posted with a notice provided by the Commission in a location that can be easily seen and read by customers looking for motel accommodations. These notices are provided by the Commission if desired.

The notice indicates that the establishment is subject to Colorado law forbidding discrimination in places of public accommodation.

The Commission has completed a compliance program and survey of all Colorado Springs area motels with the cooperation and support of the Colorado Springs Motel Association. The Association conducted its own compliance program on a continuing bases by reminding member motels of the posting requirements.

Non-Association motels here and in the suburbs have been visited in recent weeks by representatives of the Commission who report that they have received utmost cooperation from these establishments in complying with the posting requirements, with the exception of one.

Reynolds said he was "certain that persons of all religions, races, and ethnic backgrounds who may heretofore have felt unwelcome in some establishments may own feel assured that Colorado Springs vacation facilities are available to all, alike."

City Engineer Named to Replace Buckner

Gerald "Jerry" Joseph Weiss has been named City Engineer for Colorado Springs to replace John O. "Jack" Buckner, who resigned earlier this month to accept employment with a private firm.

Weiss is currently city engineer and director of public works for the City of Fort Collins. He will assume his new duties here Sept. 16.

The 30-year-old Weiss, whose starting salary will be $757 a month, has been in the employ of the City of Fort Collins since December, 1959.

He is a registered professional engineer in the State of Colorado and a member of the executive committee for the Colorado Chapter of the American Public Works Association. Weiss is a U.S. Navy veteran.

Weiss was born in Nebraska and graduated from Chase County High School in Imperial, Nebraska, in 1944, and received his B.S. Degree in civil engineering from Colorado State University at Fort Collins in 1950.

He then worked two years as construction engineer for the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation at Fort Collins. From February, 1952, until September, 1956, he was employed as test and records engineer for the Texas Company (refinery) at Casper, Wyo.

This was followed by more than three years as construction engineer for the Ideal Cement Company at Fort Collins, after which he went to work for the City of Fort Collins.

M. R. Pearce, city director of public works, feels that Weiss is highly qualified for the job of city engineer since, among other things, he has had supervision in Fort Collins of the street department, water and sewer maintenance, sewer plant, filter plant, chief building inspector and engineering department.

Additionally, he has had to inspect and approve new annexation and subdivision plats for conformancy, prepare master plans for expansion of utilities and streets, design storm and sanitary sewer systems, initiate street and storm sewer improvements, etc., including the responsibility for traffic engineering.

Weiss is married and he and his wife have three children. The family is expected to move to Colorado Springs sometime next month.

Two Men Will Attend Lecture On Driving

Two 21-year old men had $25 of $50 fines suspended Wednesday by Municipal Judge Allan Asher on condition they attend a driving lecture Sept. 16 in the El Paso County Court House.

Judge Asher explained to the two men that the lecture lasted for one hour and a half and is designed to acquaint drivers with the hazards involved in traffic violations.

The two were Paul Hollingsworth, 1023½ Alexander Highway, who pleaded guilty to speeding, and Paul Kamm, 3922 Marion Dr., who pleaded guilty to reckless driving.

James Gillespie, 19, 1601 Navajo Ct., also pleaded guilty to reckless driving and was given a $50 fine. He leaves Sept. 16 to enter Western State College in Gunnison so he was unable to attend the lecture, Judge Asher suspended $20 of his fine on condition he have no further driving violations this year.

William Abila, 25, 128 N. Wahsatch Ave., was fined $100 on his guilty plea to reckless driving. Judge Asher also suspended his right to drive in the city for 30 days.

Dog Lovers See Fun Match Sunday

Dog lovers in Colorado Springs had the opportunity to watch Thunder Mountain obedience training classes put on their first fun match at Boulder Park Sunday.

The show was termed a sucess with a total entry of 86 dogs registered in seven classes, of novice through utility.

Contestants came from as far as Ft. Collins and Boulder as well as a large turn-out from Canon City.

Sandra Charles of Canon City with her pug was the top winner of the day. She placed first in novice class and went on to score 199½ plus, in sub-novice to take high score in the show.

Other winners included Penny Brown from Evergreen who with her sheltie, scored 196 in novice-B class. Nancy Brody and her German shepherd representing Colorado Springs, made a win in graduate novice with 196. Taking first in open A and B with her Belgian sheep dog was Jean Wilcox from Boulder. In utility class, Lester C. Wells of Canon City has a score of 190.

A great many of the handlers and dogs were from 4-H groups and Sandra Charles who took high score was an outstanding example for her 4-H leader, Wells, who has the 4-H group in Canon City.

Thunder Mountain Obedience Training Club welcomes new members, and anyone interested in joining may call Mrs. William Curran, at 392-3652 for further information.

Man, Woman Injured in One-Car Mishap

A man and a woman were taken to Ft. Carson Hospital Wednesday morning with injuries they suffered in a one-car accident on Kelker Road, the State Patrol reported. The accident happened a half mile north of Colorado Highway 29.

The driver, Carrie B. Walker, 30, of Fountain,, suffered shock and bruises. Andrew Jackson, 36, of 1015 E. Vermijo Ave., suffered abrasion, bruises and shock.

State Patrolman Robert D. Allen said the car went out of control on a curve and rolled on its top, coming to rest in a ditch. There was $700 worth of estimated damage to the vehicle.

War Came to Britain in '39 With Whimper

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON (NEA) —War came to Britain in 1939 not with a bang, but with the whimper of thousands of children being evacuated from city slums to the country.

At least, that is how most Britons remember it this year, the 25th Anniversary of the outbreak of World War II.

In the first three days of September 1939, about 1.2 million persons, most of them unaccompanied children between the ages of 5 and 14, were evacuated from London and other big cities.

"It was the most pathetic sight in the world," says Miss Alice Johnson, who is now white haired, but was in charge of the 1939 evacuation for the Women's Voluntary Services.

"None of the evacuees knew where he or she was going. None of the mothers knew when she would see her child again. Yet it had to be done, and everyone had to be brave about it. It was heartbreaking."

Most of the evacuees came from slums, and had never been to the country before. Many of them had never even seen a cow.

"To make matters worse, the first of September was one of the hottest days and all the children tunred up in thin, summer clothing," Miss Johnston recalls. "This clothing was supposed to last them through the winter.

"Many of them wore thin canvas shoes. They were going to parts of the country where they would need boots to wade through muddy country roads and plowed fields.

"All of them were plastered with identification tags, and they carried their Mickey Mouse gas masks in cardboard containers strapped to their backs. Some of them had only paper carrier bags in which to carry their belongings. Others clutched dolls or teddy bears."

The train journeys were nightmares, with evacuees packed into stuffy compartments that lacked adequate drinking water and toilet facilities. Many arrived at their destination in the middle of the night, only to find that they were not expected, and that beds had not been provided.

One little boy wrote home the next day describing his foster parents:

"Dear Mum, I hope you are well. I don't like the man's face. I don't like the lady's face much. Perhaps it will look better in daylight. I like the dog's face best."

Even more unpleasant experiences were in store. In some areas the children were paraded while the householders took their pick. "It was like a Roman salve market," a district evacuation officer claims.

"It was more like a cattle show," recalls another, who was evacuated as a lad of 10. "The farmers pinched our arms to see if we had muscles, and picked the strongest of us first."

Not all the welcomes were so calculating, however. In many parts, notably in the mining villages of South Wales, the householders took the evacuees to their hearts.

Still, strangers were no substitute for parental love and the security of a home. After the first sense of adventure had worn off, the evacuees began to show signs of mental stress.

Some small slum - dwellers who had never before used a fork refused to do so now, regarding it as a betrayal of their parents.

Bed - wetting as a nervous reaction became so common among evacuees that the Women's Voluntary Services distributed leaflets containing advice on the subject.

I would have nightmares and walk in my sleep," says Audry Boorne, now 37, and a social anthropologist.

Audrey, who was 12 when the war broke out, was evacuated with the girl's school which she attended in South London.

"The worst part was that we never knew what was happening to our parents," Audrey declares. "We read the headlines about London being bombed, and we never knew whether our own homes were hit."

Living among miners, however awakened Audrey's social conscience and inspired her to social work. "The family with whom I was billeted had the only bath in the neighborhood, which meant that miners came in and out all day to take baths.

"One day I was horrifed to see one of these miners spit blood into his handerkchief. Then I noticed that many of them spit blood. They had silicosis, and in those days they didn't get a penny of compensation."

Today, 25 years after the wartime exodus, many of the evacuees have kept in touch with their foster parents. Others find the experience disturbing.

"The family I stayed with at Ammanford sends me a card at Christmas," says Audrey Boorne. "But I have never gone back to visit them. It would be too sad."

Not all evaucees have sad memories of their homes away from home. The joys of country living were summed up in 1939 by one boy from an East London slum. "Country people is daft," he wrote home. "They never tells you that you can't have more to eat."

21 Male Prisoners Executed During Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty-one male prisoners — thirteen white and eight Negro —were executed by civil authorities in the United States in 1963. This was the smallest number since the Federal Bureau of Prisons began keeping such records in 1930.

The highest number was 199 in 1935. Officials of the National Prisoner Statistics Program said Texas led the nation with four executions; New York, Ohio, Arizona, Georgia and Mississippi had two each, and Missouri, New Jersey, Oklahoma, California, Florida and the federal government reported one each.

Deaths of Four In Dynamite Blast Accident

LEADVILLE, Colo. (UPI) — The deaths of four Utah residents in a dynamite explosion in a remote corner of northwest Colorado last weekend was ruled an accident late Tuesday by State Mine Inspector John Doyle.

Doyle said the accident apparently occurred last Friday when a special dynamite torpedo with four or five sticks of dynamite accidentally discharged, exploding a case of nearly 100 sticks of dynamite which were nearby.

Killed were Charles McConkie, 35, head of the Utah-New Mexico Casing Pullers, Co., his son, Duane, 16, Houtz Ross, 42, and Robert Hatch, 27, all of Vernal, Utah. The bodies were not discovered until Sunday.

Doyle, who checked the scene with two explosive experts of the Dupont Powder Co of Grand Junction, said the blast may have been set off by an accidental blow to the firing pin.

The torpedo was to be lowered deep into the well, then fired by dropping a length of pipe onto the firing pin, sealing the hole.

The accident occurred at a dry gas well in an isolated area of Rio Blanco County. Hatch will be buried Thursday. Funeral services for the others were held today.

TO BUILD AIRLINERS

TOKYO (UPI) — The Japanese government has approved plans for mass production of Japan's first domestically-made post - war airliner. The Nihon Aeroplane Manufacturing Co. will begin turning out the new plane next year. It is a turboprop craft seating 60 passengers and capable of 360-mile-an hour speed.

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

BEATLES HAVE DECOROUS NIGHT IN BOWL

HOLLYWOOD — The Beatles came, conquered, and left with $58,000 after 30 minutes at the Hollywood bowl. I can't say I heard them, but with the aid of binoculars I saw them. They're sweet. The night was beautifully managed, with no incidents following an announcement that if anybody tried to get on stage the Beatles would walk off. The girls went mad, but it was harmless madness, screaming their joy in defiance of parents who won't let them yell at home.

A couple of 15-year-olds behind me shared one pair of binoculars and were the loudest there. My granddaughter, Joan, stood quietly, looking through her binoculars until a young fellow tapped her on the back and said, "You'll have to sit down." He turned out to be a high school chum.

When Jackie Hamilton, of Orange, Calif., heard I was to meet the Beatles, she said, "Oh, please cut off a lock of hair and send it to me." When I told her I'd try, she gave me her Beatle pin. Another girl brought me a three-inch scrapbook which she'd worked on since December and asked me to present it to Paul.

Edgar Bergan told me he saw them in Las Vegas by invitation of Pat Boone: "They behaved better than the audience. I can only liken them to the Holy Rollers — without religion." Candy Bergen is home for two weeks before returning to college.

For the past year, I've been warning moviemakers they were courting censorship with their sex and hag-ridden pictures, and the ads that go with them. Now a Catholic organization that reviews films for the Legion of Decency has come out with a blast at the trailers and ads that play up "sensationalism, fraudulent glamor and crude suggestiveness." It was the Legion that cleaned up pictures years ago, but many newcomers have forgotten. They'd better start remembering.

Speaking of nudie pictures, a national mag has four pages of Elke Sommer revealing all in a picture she made in Germany before she ever saw Hollywood. Nothing is left to the imagination. I must say what she reveals is symmetrical.

Today at luncheon I'll make a speech at the Biltmore Bowl for the wives and friends of those electronic geniuses at their Wescon convention here. And if one woman screams as they do for the Beatles, I'll give her a hat.

Dolores Hope and her mother leave for a two-week motor tour through Ireland. They'll visit Sybil Connolly, that famous fashion creator, then on to the Holy Land. Next Spring Dolores hopes to fulfill another promise she made her mother years ago — a trip to the Kentucky Derby. Mama follows the ponies.

It will be Dick Shawn in that two-character Broadway musical, "Peterpat." As soon as he finishes the Rock Hudson picture, Dick has a date in Las Vegas. After Broadway he'll do the American version of "Steptoe and Son," one of England's top TV series. That's for '65.

The Van Heflins' wedding reception for their daughter, Vana, and bridegroom, Michael O'Brien was a family affair. The Pat O'Briens with daughter and the junior Sam Goldwyns were the only outsiders. When 17-year-old Kathy caught her sister's bouquet, Van turned pale and Frances all but fainted at the thought of another wedding.

Lydia Buhl Morrison's handsome daughter told me of her plan to meet Cary Grant, who lives next door. She was planning to fill the family Rolls with luggage, drive up to Grant's house, ring the bell and claim she'd lost her way. Said Lydia, "if you meet him, introduce me as your sister."

Joey Bishop is arranging a month off in January to do "Community Property" with Frank Sinatra. Frank wants to call the picture "Divorce — American Style."

GUARDS CHANGE AT GERMANY'S 'PENTABONN'—West German soldiers change the guard at Germany's Pentabonn, their answer to the U.S. Pentagon building. Help by Press Is Sought by Conservatives

By WARD CANNEL

WASHINGTON — Donald Lukens, president of the National Federation of Young Republicans, is the fellow who made a speech a couple of weeks ago calling for help in a "10-year program for a take-over of the press" by people friendly to the conversative cause.

And although we are not much interested in all this planned living which young folks seem to want nowadays, we do like to keep up with what ideals inspire youth. So we made a note to check on Mr. Lukens and his plan for a press take-over.

Consequently, we phoned him and asked whether anybody had answered his call for help.

"You understand this is a 10-year plan," he said "We're just beginning to get rolling. A program like this takes a lot of groundwork. You have to build friendly press contacts first before you can begin to place people in jobs in the media."

"As to getting the take-over accomplished," we said and were about to suggest a way to do it by computer when he said:

"Under the circumstances, the response has not been bad. I've heard from several high school students and eight or nine college seniors."

"High school students?" we ed, a bit stupidly. "College seniors?"

"Certainly," he said. "That's the whole idea. To get young people with a conservative point of view and talent into careers in journalism. That's why it's a 10-year program."

And as he seemed to have come back to the beginning of his plan again, we thanked him and hung up. But we have been worrying about him ever since.

We are, of course, nobody to talk about anybody's 10-year program for a press take-over. We have been a member of the press for twice 10 years and have never been able to take over a movie magazine or a television network.

But we do think Mr. Lukens is going about it all wrong with his plan to place talented young people and their conservative point of view—or any point of view — in newsrooms. It is not only foolhardy, it is downright cruel.

You simply cannot expose people of that age and temper to the firehouse, police station, courthouse, city hall, obituary desk, social news, suburban rewrite, morgue, political campaign, PTA meeting and tax assessment office and then expect a press take-over when it's done.

We have seen perfectly fine, polite and sincere young people hideously wrung dry of their certainties by city editors too insensitive to want anything but the facts.

We have watched many bright and shining faces pitifully and relentlessly contorted into despair by the sorry lesson of newspapering that there are two sides to every question.

For our own part, we can remember vividly knowing in our cub reporter days that the world was supposed to be something else. What it was supposed to be we cannot remember any more.

If you are going into the press to change things, you can be waking up one morning to find that they have changed you.

Monkey Back in Cage After Taste of Living

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Albert the monkey is back in his cage today after a 24-hour taste of high living.

The four-year-old squirrel monkey scrambled up an old oak tree Tuesday.

"By banging his head against the top of the cage, he sprang it. Then he hopped out and took off into the trees," said his owner, Shirley Gorman.

Mrs. Gorman called the fire department, which referred her to the police department, which referred her to the humane society.

When the humane society suggested that she call the fire department, Mrs. Gorman gave up.

The old oak tree had a date with the tree surgeon, however and Wednesday the tree was cut down. Albert merely hopped over to a nearby pine tee.

Wednesday night Albert spotted a boy standing below holding a banana. Down came Albert.

African Specialists Accosted in Wyoming

RIVERTON, Wyo. (UPI)—Two Negro agricultural specialists from Tanganyika said today they were accosted by a Riverton man here this week.

James Kikwa and Sigismund Nyoni said the unidentified man came to the restaurant table where they were eating and began casting insults — blaming them for civil rights unrest in the United States.

They said when they told him they were from Tanganyika to study U.S. agriculture methods, his insults became stronger and he criticized them for the U.S. foreign aid program.

Nyoni dismissed the man as a "hooligan." Kikwa said he had felt "deeply hurt." Neither was physically hurt.

Wind, Hail Storms Hike Insurance Rate

DENVER (UPI)—J. Richard Barnes, state insurance commissioner, said Tuesday wind and hail storms in eastern Colorado had forced property insurance rates in that area up by more than eight per cent.

Barnes said he had approved a request for an increase in the coverage in that area, effective Sept. 14. The increase was asked by the Mountain States Inspection Bureau, which represents 300 companies which write 50 per cent of the extended coverage type of insurance.

Extended coverage insurance includes damage caused by wind and hail.

Slightly lower extended coverage rates, however, were approved for western Colorado.

Barnes said the bureau's insurance companies had lost $9 million in a five-year period ending Dec. 31, 1962.

Cork Pulled at Convention as Seen on Video

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hours before the Democrats gathered to hear the nominating speeches for Lyndon Baines Johnson Wednesday, it seemed to those of us watching on television that somebody had pulled the huge cork that was bottling up the convention.

After two dreary, worried days dampened by the civil rights problems of two states, it suddenly seemed that everybody was, finally, going to be allowed some fun.

The cork-puller was the President of the United States himself who by a mid-afternoon telephone call to Hubert H. Humphrey, perhaps deliberately changed the entire focus of the television networks' concentration on the convention.

Prepared as we were for President Johnson's selection of the Minnesota senator as his running mate, convention-watching suddenly became a lively experience as the networks switched furiously back and forth between Atlantic City and Washington. And sometimes — as when the President at the Atlantic City airport praised Humphrey's qualifications—the living room audience had the official word before the delegates in the auditorium.

The coverage, by all three networks, of the fast-breaking news events of the day was superb. It started shortly after 3 p.m. outside the Humphrey hotel suite immediately after President Johnson had invited him to come to Washington.

ABC, it seemed, was a minute or so ahead on the break, but the NBC camera caught Humphrey in telling close-up as he said, in a voice tense with excitement: "I don't know — I've just been asked to come and I'm coming — let's cut out of here!"

It was some time later than the President admitted he had made his choice, but we viewers figured the senator was a shoo-in when all the network anchor teams suddenly started calling him "Hubert Horatio Humphrey."

There was infinitely more to watch, including the reception of the first lady and her attractive daughters between rain showers.

Maybe it is an old story to the commentators, but there is something eternally fascinating about watching convention demonstrations. Here the cameras are the stars, catching a girl in tears here, a bored delegate there, funny hats, balloons and general exuberent nonsense.

Choice of the best coverage team among the three networks is rather like choosing among mayonnaise, French or thousand island dresisng for a salad: it is simply a matter of personal taste. They all strove mightily and all did very well in the complicated business of covering all bases.

MIGHT MISS SOMETHING—LIKE A CURVE

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Phil Young of Wichita said he was driving on the Kansas Turnpike when he noticed another motorist driving along with a newspaper spread across the steering wheel.

Young said he followed the car for about 40 miles while the other driver leafed through the paper at the same time he was driving 70 miles per hour.

Free Car Wash Offer Turned Down by Her

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Mrs. C. M. Spurr turned down the offer of a free car wash Wednesday.

Mrs. Spurr's car needed washing because it had been plastered with seven "I'm for Rosellini" stickers.

The car wash offer came from Lynn Rosellini, 17, whose father, Gov. Albert Rosellini, is seeking re-election.

Mrs. Spurr didn't like the promotion. She said even if she had been for the governor before, she wouldn't vote for him now.

South America Still Lacks U. S. Tourist Dollars

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Yankee tourist dollars have been flowing freely to Mexico and the Caribbean but South America is getting comparatively few of them. And with American tourism a growing industry, wooed by many countries, the continent to the south may be missing a good bet.

That is the opinion of banking economists specializing in the financial relations of the Western Hemisphere. Their conclusion is that South American countries just aren't trying hard enough to get their share.

Americans last year spent $448 million in Mexico. U.S. travelers, mostly tourists, spent $150 million in 1963 in the Caribbean area. About 100,000 Americans spent $56 million traveling in South America, and a good part of that probably was spent on business trips rather than tourist jaunts.

The South American share of the total U.S. expenditure on tourist travel last year was only 2.5 per cent, little changed in the last five years when American travel abroad was increasing by leaps and bounds.

The Department of Commerce reports U.S. residents last year spent $3.2 billion in travel out of the country, much for pleasure though some for business. This was a gain of 11 per cent over 1962.

Admittedly, Mexico and the islands to the south have the advantage of closeness and less expensive transportation cost. But economists at the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York say that equally important have been the efforts made to attract tourists. These include advertising and setting up information centers in the United States, as well as upgrading hotel, dining and transportation facilities.

The bank economists report:

"Last year, Mexican exports totaled $982 million, while tourism from all countries pulled in some $655 million. This permitted the country to show a $144-million surplus in its over-all balance of payments."

Jamaica is another example. Its total merchandise exports last year came to $26 million, but receipts from U.S. tourists were $40 million.

The economists say Venezuela and Colombia have made some efforts to get in on the gravy, but the rest of South America has done very little.

Cannel Comes Out With Demo Meet Forecasts

By WARD CANNEL

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—Like the rest of the nation, we have found our interest whipped to a gallop by the real contest in the Democratic National Convention.

And so, after several days of investigation on the scene, we have decided to throw caution to the winds and come right out with a forecast of the result, to wit:

We predict that Huntley and Brinkley will not lose any ground at all to Robert Trout and Roger Mudd.

(In fact, we think that CBS has completely botched the whole Walter Cronkite deal. We simply cannot believe he will do any better playing first base for the Yankees than he did playing a newsman on television.)

At any rate, we certainly do not think that the Trout-Mudd tandem is any answer to the Huntley-Brinkley act, and we will explain why.

To the untrained eye surveying Atlantic City on the eve of the Democratic vice presidential nominating convention, the race looks as if it could go to any network that cared to plug in.

No entertainment was ever wired better. There are more cameramen, linemen, technicians, mobile units, audiomen, and electronics experts in town than there are vacationers and taffy pullers.

But, of course, what gets a network its convention rating is its master of ceremonies, usually known in the news festivities as an anchor man. He pulls the acts together, introduces the performers, reminds you of what you are watching, passes some pleasantries and in general gives you a comfy feeling about history as it happens.

Walter Cronkite's big mistake, we feel, was in playing the event too big and making it sound as though it had some importance. His attempt at humor by holding his ear did not dispel the gloom of significance.

Well, nobody wants to watch important and significant events. While Chet Huntley has the same ugly tendency to find meanings all the time, he is offset to a large degree by David Brinkley's impishness. It is a winning combination.

But, we feel, it is not invincible. And certainly not by a similar act on the same bill. Even Atlantic City knows better than that. The Beatles are not scheduled to come to town until after the Democrats have left.

The way to beat Huntley and Brinkley, we think, is with a different kind of show business. And after partaking of Atlantic City's entertainments along the Boardwalk, we think it can be done quite simply. We got this idea from an old movie that was playing, "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes," starring Edward G. Robinson and a cast of 1,000 eyes.

You get Mr. Robinson to play the part of a tough news editor. Then you get somebody like Claire Trevor to sit at the anchor desk with him playing the part of his ace reportress. And as the convention is already scripted anyway, they will fight and laugh and kiss their way into your heart.

It has great possibilities for re-runs, too, as we see it.

After all, there is only just so much you can do with something like "Field and Stream with Trout and Mudd."

But look at the potential in "And now the news, starring Edward G. Robinson."

Log Hauling With Balloons Proposed

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A British Columbia forest products firm plans to try hauling logs out of the woods with balloons.

Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. announced Wednesday it has ordered three huge helium-filled balloons and will begin its test of the new technique as soon as they arrive at its Port Alberni, B.C., operations site.

"If the operational tests are successful, thousands of acres of British Columbia forest lands which are not now economically or physically accessible may be opened up," the company said.

The Role of Private Protection

Edna Whittenberg has partially won us to her cause. Her letter in today's Open Parliament is the kind of letter we are happy to receive. We are accepting it at face value although, from our point of view, the allegations she makes concerning law men, law-enforcement men, and improper actions attributed to them remain in the area of allegation and have not been proved.

But she asks a series of questions. And we will answer them as best we can. Law-enforcement agencies of course do not have any legal right, or any moral right, to interfere with the legitimate operation of a private protection agency. Whether law-enforcement people consider a private firm in competition with them or not, the fact remains that private protection firms provide a needed and a valued service and they would not exist if people were not willing to pay for the services.

Thus, the very existence of private protection agencies reveals that their services are wanted. For the firm or individual hiring these services must not only pay for them, but must also pay his taxes, which allegedly pay the wages and for the services provided by the tax-supported agencies.

Certainly, a law-enforcement man who takes identification tabs from doors, turns lights on or off in a given office, and otherwise indicates his contempt for a private agency, is not competing, but is actually acting illegally and immorally. However it is not immoral or illegal for anyone to suggest to a given employer or client that services he is paying for are not necessary, any more than it is immoral or illegal for the party furnishing these services to declare that they are necessary and important.

Obviously, slashing tires, breaking antennas, wipers, door handles and so on, do not come within the range of proper competitive action. Such procedure is typical of labor unions and it is extremely doubtful in our mind that law-enforcement men of this region are guilty of this type of procedure. Vandalism does occur in this region and law-enforcement men are obviously not able to prevent it. Clearly, also, a private operator may not be able to prevent it, either.

The allegation on this point in the letter makes it appear that law-enforcement men knew the identity of the party performing this type of vandalism, but did not act to apprehend the guilty one. This would be a break-down in the legal functions of the tax-paid enforcement people, and constitutes a serious charge. If you know the name of the party performing the acts of vandalism and can substantiate your charges, why, as a protector of private property, did you not take recourse open to you?

We do concur with the fact that businessmen and individuals hiring a private protector are not expecting that protector to institute arrestment procedures, but are hired merely to protect. This is as it should be.

But we see no reason why private protectors may not wear a uniform or any other garb they wish to wear. This is legitimate competition. And if some clients feel they are better protected by a private protector who wears a uniform than they are by one who does not, that is a matter for the person purchasing the services to decide.

Obviously, if lawmen are being paid separately to protect certain properties for which services they are already retained by the taxpayers, then this is an improper act, called "payola" or, sometimes, "bribery." This, too, is a most serious charge and should be substantiated or retracted.

Do you have evidence of this? Can you bring in the names, amounts of payments made, dates of such payments and so on? If so, the public is entitled to know the facts. If not, a retraction is in order.

Of course, if a regularly employed policeman, while off duty, accepts an extra job for pay, there is nothing wrong with this, whether he wears a uniform or not. This is merely one form of competition.

The statement concerning moral courage is important and valid. But the matter goes to an individual and not a genetic base. Some persons, male and female, are morally weak. Others are not. This relates to the strength of the person, not to any qualities inherent in either sex exclusively.

When we stated that you would have to compete on the terms set up by men, we were referring to competition, not to illegal and immoral actions which are not the exclusive prerogative of either sex.

Our objection to the prior letter was based upon what appeared to us to be an expressed bias. This letter has less of that bias present, but it leaves us with some ugly allegations which should be confirmed or retracted.

Illusion

The greatest illusion in the world is that people can vote their troubles away.

Interesting Data

We are indebted to the Encyclopaedia Britannica for some of the data offered below. The idea of using a convention as the best method for choosing a nominee for president began in 1808 when the Federalists conducted one which was neither national in scope nor successful.

The word "caucus" originated nearly a hundred years before the convention. It first was used in Boston when political parties began nominating candidates through congressional conventions. The most plausible explanation of the root of the word is found in the language of the Algonquin Indians, whose word meaning "to talk" was kaw-kaw-was (caucus).

The election of 1828 marked the first time nominations were made by state legislatures instead of congressional caucuses. The Antimasonic Party held the first national nominating convention in September, 1831, and the National Republicans (Democrats) followed with a convention in December.

Twenty-four national nominating conventions have been held in Chicago, more than any other city. Baltimore has had only half as many and is next in line. Only two conventions have been held in New York City. Atlantic City and San Francisco have also scored as convention sites.

The first U.S. presidential convention to admit women delegates was the Progressive "Bull Moose" Party convention in Chicago, in 1912. This had not prevented women from running for president prior to that time. In 1872 the first woman candidate for president, Mrs. Victoria Claflin Woodhull, was nominated by the Equal Rights Party.

Thomas Nast, the famous cartoonist for Harper's Weekly magazine is credited with creating the symbols for both parties, the donkey for the Democrats in 1870 and the elephant for the GOP in 1874.

The Democratic Party, which was actually organized in 1792, at first used the title "Republican." The emphasis was to point to the representative kind of government we had as contrasted to "monarchy" and "tory" ideas. When Andrew Jackson became president, the party switched labels.

From the beginning in 1790 up through conventions held in 1960, some 65 nominations have been made for president through the major parties. Thirty-three of these nominations were made by the party currently in power in the White House. And of these thirty-three, seventeen were renominations of an incumbent president, usually without much in the way of a contest.

Franklin Pierce, defeated for renomination in 1856, was the only elected president who tried and failed to win a second nomination from the national convention of his own party. However, a number of others have declined to offer themselves for a second term.

Each of the eight vice presidents who succeeded to president through the death of a president sought nominations to succeed themselves. The four who made the effort in the nineteenth century, John Tyler, Millard Fillmore, Andrew Johnson and Chester A. Arthur, were rejected. Three in the twentieth century, Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge and Harry S. Truman were renominated. It is reasonably certain that Lyndon B. Johnson, the successor to the office after the assassination of John Kennedy, will be equally successful.

Nominations in the party out of power have only rarely resulted in the renomination of a previous candidate. After Van Buren's failure to secure a third nomination in 1844 and Clay's final nomination in that year, no standard bearer of a defeated party was seriously considered for renomination until Grover Cleveland's third nomination and second election in 1892.

William Jennings Bryan was nominated in 1896, 1900 and 1908, and lost each time. In 1948 Thomas E. Dewey became the first defeated Republican to receive a second nomination and he was also defeated.

One half of all our presidents to die in office have met death through violence. These were Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield, William McKinley and John Kennedy.

The Local Scene

Ah! Wilderness

By RUFUS L. PORTER
(Part 2)

As I understand it, those areas designated by the government as "wilderness" are to be preserved in all their primitive, virgin naturalness, with nary a road to penetrate beyond their borders. The only methods of travel in these areas will be by foot or horseback.

Now, I ask you, what percentage of the population is going to be able to, or even want to, take advantage of the solitude and serenity that will be theirs for the claiming within these wildernesses? Probably less than one tenth of one per cent.

A small, but militant group of "nature lovers" are trying to sell the public a bill of goods by shedding crocodile tears because, according to them, free enterprisers are "destroying" our wilderness. The wicked, profit-mad capitalists will consume the wilderness as a horde of locusts devours a wheat field. So runs their propaganda line. The government MUST step in and save great areas of "our wilderness" before the greedy money grubbers destroy it all.

But let's take a look at what free enterprise is doing to rehabilitate many of the "devastated" areas where they have "ravaged the earth for profit" — excuse my language, I keep forgetting that profit is a dirty word.

In the midwest (back east to us out here) many of the big strip coal operators are filling in, leveling off, replanting and reforesting their worked - over areas until within a few years they are even more habitable and more beautiful than before the "big dippers" turned them inside out.

And now consider what the great lumber and pulpwood companies are doing by way of reforestation in the northwest, the south and elsewhere. They replant every acre they log off, and no area is ever completely logged off, either. Thousands of prime trees are left standing for the benefit of the wild life until the young trees are big enough to take over this task. Then the older trees are harvested and, many years later, the process is repeated. This is scientific reforestation and it is so successful that new timber is growing faster than the old timber is cut, leaving a big surplus for the time when, perhaps, more timber will be needed.

But, say the socialists, they are doing this with an eye to future p—ts (that dirty word again). Is there any other reason for doing anything? Every man expects to profit, materially or otherwise, from everything he does or tries to force others to do for him.

As for individuals never wanting to do anything to preserve our "American heritage" these socialists are forever harping about, what about a man named Fox, and three generations of Foxes after him, who, although not rich folks by any standards, stubbornly held out against the "greedy profit seekers" and maintained as a private park 200 acres of virgin wilderness in the heart of Indiana, until the state finally took it over?

It has been said that "a squirrel could have traveled from the Alleghenies to the Mississippi without ever having to touch foot to ground" simply by jumping from tree to tree.

But Fox saw that all this was foredoomed to oblivion as more and more settlers "cleared the land" of millions of acres of the finest walnut, chestnut, hickory, maple and other forests ever found on this planet. Fox saw this happening and he "did something about it" as an individual. And now, because of this individual's action and his descendants' respect for his wishes, one can actually see what the wilderness looked like before the white settlers "ravaged" the land. And it WAS glorious to behold. But would it have supported the present population if the old timers had left it as they found it?

And I have read about individuals in other places doing as Fox did. In the grass country they have preserved some of the native grasslands, just so future generations would know what the country looked like before it was all plowed up. There are private game and forest preserves in most, or all, of our states.

But, as much as I love the wilderness, I do not consider its preservation so important, for itself, as the availability of its natural resources to mankind. After all, as the population increases and our civilization expands, new resources are going to be discovered in what we do not consider as resources now, and new uses are going to be found for the old resources, and we cannot hope to tie up indefinitely millions of acres of "wilderness" that contain many natural, and needed, resources in abundance.

Many of my own forays into the wilderness have been for the purpose of discovering and developing some of its resources for p—t (that dirty word again).

The American Way

Monopoly in Our Midst

By HARRY BROWNE

The threat that big business will get too big is continually thrown at us as justification for the harmful anti-trust laws. And yet it has been proven time and again that when any business gets too big to properly serve its customers, other competitors and products move in to take those customers away from it.

But while all this is going on, we are faced with the worst kind of monopoly in our midst. That is the monopoly run by government. One excellent example is the Post Office.

Do you know why no private enterprise company is competing with the Post Office today — despite its high prices and poor service? Let's look at a little history.

Writing in his book "Men Against the State," James J. Martin reports: "From 1841 to 1845, steady inroads on the revenues of the federal post office department were made by private enterprise companies. One of these was the American Letter Mail Company, which Lysander Spooner founded in 1844. Originally carrying letters between Boston and New York, the scope of the firm soon included Philadelphia and Baltimore.

BETTER

"It was a source of embarrassment to the Democratic administrations of the period to see this company, as well as other letter mail companies, making profits from carrying letters for 5 and 10 cents each, while providing service somewhat more expeditious than that furnished by the federal postal system.

"Increasing complaint by patrons over the dilatory and expensive government operations finally provoked congressional action. A bill calling for reorganization of the post office system and proposing a new schedule of rates drew critical fire in the Senate from objectors who noted that private companies would still be furnishing cheaper service. Senator William D. Merrick of Maryland, sponsor of the bill, replied that there was to be no attempt at competing with these firms; they were to be put out of business by 'penal enactment.'"

And so the government could not tolerate competition in its own field and simply legislated out of existence all private postal companies.

NO JUSTIFICATION

Today, there can be no doubt that profit-seeking private enterprise companies would compete to provide the best service at the lowest cost in the field of letter-carrying. This is proven by the profit-making United Parcel Company. Faced with high taxes and oppressive regulation, United Parcel still lures a great amount of business away from the government's Parcel Post system (which operates at a loss).

There can be no justification for the government being in any business — whether rubbish pickup, electricity production or letter carrying. For in every case, its only asset is the ability to force people to pay for the service, through taxes, whether or not the people want it.

Meanwhile, private enterprise companies — with persuasion as their only weapon — compete aggressively for profits. They are compelled to find new ways of improving service and lowering costs in order to make their profits.

Free enterprise will be anything but "free" as long as we permit dangerous government monopolies in our midst.

OPEN PARLIAMENT

COMPETITION

To the Editor:

Re the first part of your editorial of August 21: Competition should be based upon the quality of services rendered by the individual or company, along with honesty and integrity —fulfilling promises to the clients according to mutual agreements. Good clean, wholesome competition has always been welcome.

Do the law-enforcement agencies (three) in Colorado Springs and El Paso County have any legal right to interfere with the operation of a private protection business? Or do these agencies consider that we are in competition with the law?

Does pulling identification tabs from doors, turning lights on or off (as often as four and more times a night) and going to one's clients saying, "You do not need the protection services of a private business," constitute good competition? Certain members of the law-enforcement agencies are guilty of doing these and other types of interference both in Colorado Springs and the county, yet taxes pay their salaries.

Does slashing all four tires, breaking antennas, wipers, door handles, lossening a screw on carburetor on one's service car, breaking in and taking keys, constitute wholesome competition?

This happened in March, 1963, twice within a week and when reported to the lawmen, several different ones said, "This is your competitor that wants your business and if these men were caught in the act, nothing would be done, except turn them loose." Does this make a wholesome competitive market place?

Speaking of men as agents of protection, this I will gladly concede for the law-enforcement agencies, but for a nightwatch service to see that businessmen have secured their doors and windows before leaving for the night does not require a uniformed, gun-toting individual, since watchmen have no more law-enforcement authority than any other citizen.

Night watchmen who attempt to imitate lawmen in dress and manner defeat their purpose and mislead the public. It isn't the uniform, gun, or car that does the service, but the individual whom the merchants hire and pay.

It is said that some lawmen in uniform look after places of business at night accepting money for this, when they are paid by tax money to protect property and people. Does this make a healthy competitive market place?

Granted, it is much less than ideal to take the role of protector of women from men; however, man is largely responsible for the role women play in business today. From observing the actions of men toward women generally over the past 13 years at night — men in majority do not act the part of protector of women.

It is neither my desire nor intention to reverse the roles of men, as protectors of women since time immemorial — but man, himself, is doing it.

During the 13 plus years as night watchwoman, never once have I interfered with the role of man as the law - enforcement protector of the people, although I have seen some brutal treatment administered.

As far as women being the weaker and men the stronger—ultimately this statement should be a true fact at least physically, but when it comes to courage, stamina, stick-to-itiveness, integrity in business and character, it raises a question — because many men have said, "How do you do it? I wouldn't have the courage or guts to do what you do every night."

My husband, who has been ailing and ill for years, got me into this business by purchasing two established watchmen businesses and the men hired failed to perform services according to company policy which has been a constant problem along with interference until it became necessary to do it myself (as any breadwinner), which I have done, giving a high quality of all night service until I had the misfortune of breaking a hip, and five men during the past year have used underhanded methods in an attempt to take my clients and some have had the aid of lawmen.

This is not antipathy because of physical characteristics of the male and female as you stated. I hold no dislike for any human being — it is only their actions which certainly have not portrayed the role of man as a protector of woman.

You state, "She will have to compete on their terms whether she likes it or not." This would lower me to the level of the men who use underhanded, cut-throat methods and tactics to get business, which I highly disapprove of, and feel that business is to be had on a much higher level of approach that carries dignity and integrity with it.

POLIO PROGRAM

To the Editor:

The members of the K.O. Polio Steering Committee and the El Paso County Medical Society wish to thank you and your organization for your significant contribution to the K.O. Polio Sabin vaccine program last winter. The public response and the wide coverage of this program was made possible by your cooperative efforts in this important public health program.

Our heartfelt thanks and this report to you have been delayed to allow us to inform you of what we feel is an outstanding result of this program. Due to your contributions of time, personnel and materials, our program was also financially successful. By unanimous vote of the committee and medical society, the financial residue from this program has been combined with other private donations to establish a loan fund for education in medicine or any allied health field. These proceeds and gifts are to be managed by a non-profit corporation known as Health Education Foundation, Inc. Loans at low interest rates will be made to students enrolled in professional training, with payments deferred until completion of training. In this way, residents of El Paso and Teller counties will benefit by their participation in the K.O. Polio program. Their own children can be assisted if they seek training in health education, and more physicians, dentists, pharmacists, nurses, and technicians will be trained for our community.

We are certain that you join us in the satisfaction we feel in establishing this fund. Full particulars will be publicly released in the very near future. Once again, we thank you.

ANOTHER EXTREMIST

To the Editor:

Recently, not only England but the whole world sadly looked on as that renowned British statesman, Sir Winston Churchill, bowed-out of public life. Therefore, it may not be amiss for me to pass on to you the following, which I just came across, today. (Churchill, you know, was an advocate of a strong defense build-up.)

I quote: "No one has ever questioned his ability or his dynamic energy. But those qualities. . .have in times of peace caused him to be considered 'dangerous' and a little uncomfortable to have around. Then, too, Churchill has always represented the extreme viewpoint. He has never stood on middle ground — he went 'all out' for anything he advocated."

And who said that!? None other than our late, beloved President John F. Kennedy in his book "While England Slept."

The Shock May Be Terrific

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

Teaching, discussing and writing about the philosophy of freedom occasionally brings on reactions which make me feel as if I'd spent a month beating very small children in between bouts of kicking Santa Claus from pillar to north pole.

There comes a time, an instant, a flash of comprehension and the person who begins to realize what freedom means may begin to come apart physically and intellectually, at the seams and elsewhere. A very attractive young lady looked at me — her eyes began to fill with tears as she sobbed, "I just realized it for sure. Government is the enemy of freedom, it doesn't protect me from anything, most of all from government."

There you have it. Something happened to Uncle Sam. He became as unreal as Alice in Wonderland or Puss and Boots. The realization: that every dime doled out is taken from another person, that politicians are exactly that, that government exists upon tyranny and thievery.

Then comes the realization that voting for rulers sanctions rulers and obedience to the will of the majority, through those rulers. Finally, a thinking person is face to face with an unalterable fact: A man on a white horse, a hero on his charger, a politician seeking power over other human beings will not bring freedom and hand it over on a silver platter — and this realization can bring on an acute attack of nausea. What's left? To what will the thinking human being cling?

What a frightening thought: I am responsible for my own actions! More frightening thoughts appear. I have no right to anything belonging to another person even if I believe I need it and he or she does not. I have no right to the fruits of the labor of another human being but I have the unalienable right to my own life and the fruits of my labor and creative effort. Those in government make speeches about my unalienable right as they legislate to deny those rights. How long has this been going on? Why did I not understand these simple facts, before now?

The sensitive person whose thinking is so newly activated murmurs, "But I have been taught that no man is an island, that all of us are dependent upon others. Now I find I am responsible for my own actions, that I cannot shift the blame to those upon whom I have learned to depend. Of course, I am not an island. I am a human being but if I am dependent upon other human beings for my very life, how can I alone be completely responsible for my own actions? I'm getting all mixed up. I am confused."

There is no need for confusion. You are responsible for your own actions, your own decisions. If you decide you wish to associate with others, deal with them in the market place and if those others are willing, on a voluntary basis, no confusion exists; you are responsible for your own actions. If you decide not to associate with others, you will survive and again the responsibility for your actions is yours.

Recognizing the truth, you will be unable to shift your responsibilities to luck, fate or the omens of the witch doctors. You will learn to think, "I made a mistake," instead of "Fate is against me." Is the idea that you can learn to be the master of your own destiny, that full responsibility for your own action is yours, so frightening?

Take a look at the other side of the coin. The happiness you achieve is yours. The fruit of your labor and creativity is yours. Look at these facts and they may alleviate your first fears. Freedom is every good thing you can imagine, also. Don't ever forget it.

Oddly enough, the door to freedom is always open. Passage through it is always possible, regardless of the direction you take. You can walk away and enslave yourself to others, to the rulers, tyrants and all power-hungry politicians. No one will kick you out of the public hog trough where you ask for a share of the plunder, demand your cut of that which has been stolen from others.

The bright and shining light of freedom will not be dimmed because you refuse to see; it will continue to shine, to illuminate the road if and when you walk towards freedom — and the nausea will pass.

Wit and Whimsy

The young lady, an enthusiastic teen-ager, was determined to pursue a career in art. Collecting her first primitive efforts, she displayed them prominently in the window of a local store. There her masterpieces caught the eye of a passing professional painter, who sought out the young girl.

Artist: "I notice something very unusual in your work. Whenever you portray people, you paint them standing in a pool of water."

Girl: "Oh, yes sir."

Artist: "Why is that?"

Girl: "Well, if you must know, I haven't learned yet how to paint feet."

A woman driver was arrested for making an "O" turn. She began to make a "U" turn but changed her mind.

Rugged Outdoors Type Hats Are To Be Fashion

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — American hat manufacturers, apparently deciding that the average man this Fall will buy the same type of business felt hat he has been wearing for years, have put heavy emphasis on rugged outdoorsy type hats this time in hopes he will buy a second.

The results are mildly spectacular and a man taking off for a weekend away from it all in the country can hang his Madison Avenue type hat on the nearest hat rack and clap onto his head anything from an eight-piece cap like the kind Babe Ruth and the Duke of Windsor used to wear to felt that looks like tweed and vice versa.

The tweed cap first made famous by Rex Harrison when he appeared in the Broadway musical "My Fair Lady" is expected to get another boost when he appears in the film this fall. And there are real felt hats printed to look like tweed and some with the tweed design woven in, so to speak.

Miller Brothers has come up with two new styles, one suitable for both casual and dress and the other almost as formal as a Homberg. The first is the Raffaello in the Bianchi line. It is woven of Lanitrex, a synthetic fiber interwoven with wool to produce a heather effect. You end up with a hat shaped like a fedora which can be rolled up to fit a suitcase.

The second is called the "Gable" and although the company says it is modeled after the planter hat made famous by Clark Gable in "Gone With the Wind" is looks more like a refinement of the LBJ western. But it is definitely jaunty.

Still on the outdoorsy side is Byer-Rolnick's new Highland print felt collection of Resistol hats. These are in glen plaids, herringbones and houndstooth checks, muted blendings of fur felt with the pattern built in.

Stetson vies for the country trade with a Swiss-Aire, a center dent hat printed with bold only—the underbrim and welt are in solid color. It's worn Tyrolean style with a badger brush in a silver holder. Less rugged is the Gun Club in a Kerry, or somewhat rough, finish, with a suede leather band and decorated with a feather and a miniature shotgun.

Mallory produces a couple of rustic types. One is the Retriever which has a nubby Kerry finish, an iridescent band with a Mallard duck ornament —and more ducks-in-flight in the lining. The other is simply called the Rustic since it has a rugged finish and is shown with a rough hemp band and a metal buckle.

Dobbs combines leather and tweed for a leisure-minded pinch front hat style with houndstooth check tweed band and, of course, a feather. The Hat Corporation of America with its lower-priced Vagabond collection — including a suede and tweed combination —goes a bit further and is putting sports hats in shoe stores.

A few odds and ends: In regular business hats brims are slightly larger, crowns more proportioned to complement the brims and colors lean to the lighter side. Dobbs shows an autumn leaves collection with braided multi-color felt band and leaf ornament; Knox shows a smooth doe-finish felt with contrasting felt band. Thomas Begg's St. Andrews, is a soft heather mixture felt with crown high in the back and tapering down. Keens features raw edge brims in classic British styling.

Stetson offers mid-tone colors ranging from subdued autumn hues to bold green, gray and brown plaids. The Sands is basically casual but dressy enough for town. The Stetsonian, a Vicuan finish center crease, has relatively narrow brim.

The National Cap and Cloth Hat Institute reports the return of the eight-piece cap, a favorite of the 1920s, along with a new interest in the Rex Harrison Hat. For winter the big numbers are expected to be a Cossack hat in bogus Persian lamb with turned up cuff and convertible earlaps and a similar model in bogus carcal with center crease and wide self-cuff.

WOMAN QUESTIONED

GOLDEN (UPI)— Sheriff's officers said they would continue to question Mrs. Frances Fern Porter today in the shooting of another woman near her suburban Jefferson County apartment Tuesday. The victim, Colette McPherson, 27, was shot in the arm and abdomen. She was released after treatment at Lutheran Hospital. Officials said they found Mrs. Porter near the scene.

A plan which was boldly conceived and fearlessly executed by South, the declarer in three notrump, resulted in a complete rout of the opposition.

Concerning East's one heart overcall, perhaps the less said the better. Such indulgences will never be completely weeded out. North's jump to three notrump was based on the expectation that his excellent six card suit would provide the backbone of declarer's trick requirements.

West opened the seven of hearts covered by North's nine, and East's ten was taken by South's queen. Declarer had eight top tricks — two hearts, two diamonds, and four clubs. Several additional tricks could be developed in diamonds, but it appeared that the lead must be surrendered once, and South feared that the indicated spade shift would prove fatal to him.

Declarer reasoned that West must have a broken holding in spades, else he would surely have led his own suit originally. Mentally consigning a high spade honor to East, South devised a bold plan to disrupt his opponent's line of communications before they could organize themselves.

At trick two, South led the deuce of spades. Had West guessed to put up the ace, he would have dropped his partner's king, and the cashing out of six tricks in the suit would have become quite routine. Not having the benefit of extra-sensory perception, however, West made the natural play of the queen of spades which East was obliged to overtake with the king.

East could not safely lead a heart, so he shifted to a club. The ace was played from dummy followed by the queen. South overtook with his king and cashed two more clubs, as North discarded a spade and a diamond. A diamond was led and passed into East's hand. There was no damaging return that the latter could make and South was able to score a sufficient number of diamonds to bring his trick total up to 10.

Sukarno Gives Red Top Government Post

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno reshuffled his Cabinet today and gave a top Indonesian Communist, Njoto, an important position.

Njoto — No. 3 man in Indonesia's large Communist party — was appointed minister attached to the powerful presidium of the Cabinet. He was editor of the Communist party organ Harrian Rajkat.

Communists have been in the Cabinet previously, but this is the first time one has been given an active role in Sukarno's government.

Communist chief D. N. Aidit and his assistant, M. H. Lukman, were retained in the Cabinet as ministers without portfolio — in effect figurehead positions without real power.

Sukarno told newsmen the Cabinet reshuffle will not lead to any changes in government policies.

Broadway Still Has Place for Some Miracles

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK (NEA)—Despite attempts to cloak what it does in an artistic aura, the Broadway theater is a dollars and cents proposition. And as such, there is very little room for miracles, major or minor.

Yet every once in a while a show breaks all the rules, overcomes all the obstacles, and becomes a hit. That's a minor miracle. "The Subject Was Roses" is such a show.

The Frank D. Gilroy play was the last one to open during the season. It came in on 45th Street unheralded, with an advance of $162. It is an axiom of the Broadway theater that first night houses are full, even if only occupied by friends and relatives of those connected with the production. Yet on opening night the 600-seat orchestra was no more than half full. "We did not even look up to see if anyone was in the balcony," said a man connected with the show.

The play had no out-of-town tryout. There were no big—or even medium—names in the cast. It cost $32.00 to open the play. It played one week of previews, after rehearsing in a warehouse for three weeks. The week of previews, during which the show's three actors worked for Equity minimum, took in a grand total of $2,600.

Opening night (when most productions earn up to $10,000) "Roses" grossed $1,800. Opening week pulled in $7,000.

The reviews for the show were generally excellent. One called it "the best American play of the season." Several critics are now touting the play for a Pulitzer Prize. There were also a couple of less than flattering reviews which called the comedy-drama "trite" and a "1946" play. But the bulk of the critics considered it a very exciting show.

The second week the show was open, it grossed $8,315, but no professional in the theater would have given it any chance of surviving without help.

Help was offered from several sources. But there were strings attached. Frank Gilroy, who had been stubbornly insistent that the show be done his way, said no.

One string would have tied up Gilroy's next play to the producer whose help he accepted. Another string would have forced Gilroy to pay back money out of his future earnings.

Gilroy, a Bronx boy who based the play on his early life, probably would have had no problems about financing the show had he acceded to demand from Broadway big shots. With a big-name star in the role of the father in the three-character play, he could have received ample backing. But he wanted Jack Albertson, familiar to television viewers as Commander Stoner in the "Ensign O'Toole" series.

He had seen Albertson in a West Coast version of "Burlesque" two years earlier, and promised him the role. Then he selected Ulu Grosbard, a director with an unlikely name who would make his Broadway debut with the play.

Despite pressures to replace these two, and get big backing, Gilroy held firm. The cast was completed with Irene Dailey, a fine actress with a record of a dozen Broadway flops spread over a 20-year period, and Martin Sheen, previously cast mostly as a juvenile delinquent in television shows.

During the show's third week, it picked up three friends. Bennett Cerf liked it, and took out ads to say so. (Of course, his publishing house had agreed to print the play, so he had a motive). "Playwright John Patrick ("The Hasty Heart" and "The Teahouse of the August Moon") saw the show and mailed in a check for $144 to cover the cost of the show's one luxurious prop—a dozen roses—for one month.

Harry Belfonte was so enchanted by the play he purchased roses and had them given out on matinee day to every lady dining at Sardi's, with the recommendation that everyone rush to see the play.

The word is now around that "The Subject Was Roses" is a fine play to see. Money has been offered—with no strings—in case the show needs help to get through the bad summer months and into the fall. But chances are it won't have to call on this reserve. So you see, you can be artistic on Broadway—if you are stubborn like Frank Gilroy.

Commie China's Soldiers Are Tough, Hungry

By LEON DENNEN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — What type of Red Chinese soldier will the American GI face should the United States and Peking become embroiled in a military conflict over Viet Nam or Laos?

Red China has as yet no nuclear weapons or even missiles to fight a modern war. Mao Tse-tung must still rely on his regular army of some 3 million men to which several million more could be added in an emergency. What, then, is the background and training of Red China's typical soldier?

According to Western intelligence, Mao's fighting man is generally a village boy, 19 or 20 years old. He is tough, accustomed to hardship and to living off the enemy's land, no matter how sparse or unfriendly.

His pay is next to nothing. After his term of service — three years in the army, four in the navy or five in the air force—he will receive no special benefits as do veterans even of the Russian armed forces.

But in a land where millions go hungry the army provides at least a minimum of security. Mao Tse-tung's soldier knows that as long as he is in uniform he will be housed, fed and clothed.

The daily food ration of a Chinese Red Army man is about 31 ounces of rice and 10 of vegetables. He receives, in addition, about two ounces of meat every third day.

He is also issued two cotton uniforms which he is expected to wear out before getting new ones. A soldier whose uniform is not covered with patches is punished if he requests a new one.

Life is better for Red China's officers. They are generally selected for their commissions not because of military proficiency or leadership qualities but because of their loyalty to the Red regime. Their political status gives them separate messes, better living quarters and more frequent furloughs.

The enlisted man gets home leave perhaps once during his three years of service. Marriage is out of the question. The only break in his long and weary routine comes during the two months in the year when Red China's soldiers are sent to work in the fields and factories.

Ever since Red China became a military threat in Asia, American intelligence officials — with the help of Nationalist China, South Korea, India and South Viet Nam—have been sifting information about the loyalty and combat efficiency of Mao Tse-tung's forces.

The Chinese are even more secretive than the Russians. The intelligence officials thus had to work in the dark—piecing together bits of published information, diplomatic reports and the occasional testimony from Communist defectors. It was only after Red China attacked India that anyone outside the Bamboo Curtain came face-to-face with the regular Red Chinese soldier.

It is the consensus of specialists that Mao's fighting man gets little instruction in the use of weapons beyond rudimentary knowledge of how to fire the diverse arms employed. Rifles are mostly leftover models from World War II or the Korean war. Modern Russian or Czech semiautomatic or automatic weapons are believed to be in short supply.

However, military discipline is heavily emphasized by the Red Chinese. Minor infractions of regulations are punished severely. Often a soldier guilty of an infraction is hauled before his own unit and given heavy physical punishment.

There is no doubt that Mao's soldier will endure exposure to cold, heat, short rations and long marches in difficult terrain. He will rush enemy positions against heavy firepower. He is driven by the knowledge that what lies ahead in the face of the enemy's fire is probably less unpleasant than his lot if he did not advance or if he retreated.

Those who fought Mao's soldier see him as a formidable enemy. But they are convinced that he can be beaten in a nonnuclear war by fighting men with equal determination.

Barnacles thrive in salt water, but soon die in fresh water. Sea captains sometimes pilot their vessels into fresh water to kill the barnacles clinging to the hull. Shells of some species, however, remain sticking to the hull even after the marine animal is dead.

House for Dope Addicts Proves To Be Success

By JERRY SHEEHAN

WESTPORT, Conn. (NEA) — The neighbors complained at first. Few persons relished the idea of narcotics addicts living across the street.

That was five years ago in Santa Monica, Calif. A man named Charles Dederich rented a house and attracted about him a colony of society's lost people —mostly dope addicts. He called his hostel Synanon House, a place where men could shake their habit and help each other to pull themselves on their feet.

Nobody really knows what the word Synanon means but that is not important. What is important is that the idea has grown to include nearly 500 "residents" in five locations. These are in California with the exception of the Synanon in Westport, which is largely an Eastern reception station, from where newcomers are flown west for a few weeks.

One 44-year-old man, who we will call Frank, explained what happens:

"The first thing you are made to realize at Synanon is that everyone there has been through what you have been through. So that whoever you meet has sympathy but, at the same time, no patience with your problem. You can't kid anyone.

"You're encouraged to be just what you are. You air your gripes but you don't talk about what a big man you are.

"One thing is understood. To get in Synanon if you are on dope you must kick the habit cold turkey." ("Cold turkey" means instantly, no gradual withdrawal.)

"It does no good to cry and thrash around hoping for a fix," Frank continued, "because some one will just tell you to knock it off. You soon realize that it won't get you anywhere.

"Then you start on the road back."

Everyone works at Synanon doing what he is best equipped to do.

One resident when he was on narcotics paid for his expensive habit by working in a car theft ring. His job then, to spot through binoculars cars with keys left in the ignititon or with their windows open.

His job at Westport is that of "scrounger." Instead of collecting automobiles he collects food donated by friendly local merchants for the Synanon residents.

Nobody's talents are wasted. Some men wash dishes as they may have done "on the outside." Others clean windows.

Frank's regular job was a bridge painter, high above New York City's great rivers. The white paint on Synanon's windows never looked so fine, they said, as when Frank finsihed painting them.

All who enter Synanon do so voluntarily. However, they are cautioned that once they are in they must make a go of it.

"They want you," said Frank, "that it's easy to leave Synanon but very hard to get back. The people—both men and women—realize that this is probably their last chance they'll ever have in life. They have to make it work."

For many, the family atmosphere at Synanon is the first they really have ever known. The funds to run this family all come from private conations. It costs about $2.50 per resident per day.

After its first five-year test, the Synanon idea seems to be working. If the plan continues to flourish and if its residents continue to emerge successfully into society, Synanon's methods may supply the answer to one of the nation's greatest problems, dope addiction.

Yet benefits from such programs as Synanon have a way of filtering outward to include those beyond the immediate Synanon family.

As an indication of such widespread benefits, Frank was accompanied by his 15-year-old son, Johnny, as he talked about his "second family," Synanon, in a small room.

Frank was proud of his progress, but his son seemed even more proud.

"Synanon is great, isn't it, dad?" asked Johnny.

EX-COP'S SON

GOLDEN (UPI)— Lewis L. Hutton, 19, son of Keith Hutton, a ringleader in the Denver police scandal, was granted a one week continuance Monday to enter a plea on narcotics charges. He is accused of illegal possession of marijuana. His lawyer, John Gibbons, is in jail serving a term for income tax evasion and young Hutton said he had not obtained another lawyer yet.

Prisons Bureau Director Quits At Age of 70

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-five years of government service end this week for James V. Bennett, renowned penologist and director of the Bureau of Prisons — a post he has held since 1937.

The gentle, blue-eyed reformer who changed the shape of the American prison system while he strove to change the hearts of its inmates retires Friday on his 70th birthday.

He takes with him the gratitude of hundreds of convicts who found in Bennett more a humanitarian than a custodian.

He saw the danger of idle hands and gave them useful jobs to do.

He reminded them that they were still human beings by replacing lock-step mess hall lines and bucket feedings with informal table arrangements.

He befriended many and became an easy mark for some who, out of prison, needed a small loan for a grubstake.

"I think I can say modestly that I'm leaving the federal prison system in as good condition as it's ever been," Bennett told a visitor to his pleasant office, with its picture-window view of Capitol Hill.

"We've overcome a lot of problems. We've got a good program. Every prisoner who wants a job has a job. We're running economically, and the Federal Prison Industries is turning out a good profit. Our personnel are well-trained and improving."

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has said Bennett will continue to be a consultant to the Bureau of Prisons under its new director, Myrl E. Alexander, a former assistant director.

Why didn't he seek a waiver of the compulsory retirement age, such as President Johnson extended to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover?

"I believe a fellow ought to move on and give his juniors a chance," Bennett said. "You can't hang on indefinitely. This is a hard administrative job; every day there's a crisis. I think perhaps it will be most useful if I take my experiences and make them available to others."

Bennett is working on a book "dealing with the kinds of prisoners I've known, and their problems, and the general problems of trying to deal fairly with a defendant."

Given enough free time, Bennett added, "I'm still a lawyer, and I might take on a case or two to help put across my point of view."

That point of view, which appears time and again in Bennett's prolific writings, is that prisons must not stop at being jails.

He speaks with the authority of long years of service in the field. The son of a minister, he was born Aug. 28, 1894 in Silver Creek, N.Y., and was graduated from Brown University in 1918.

The following year he entered government service as an assistant investigator of government efficiency.

Working with a congressional investigation of federal prisons in 1929, he drafted the reform legislation which set up the Bureau of Prisons as a branch of the Justice Department. He was named assistant director when the bureau was established in 1930.

He instituted Federal Prison Industries, Inc., an inmate-staffed organization which yielded sales of $40 million last year alone. He was in charge of that until he became director of the bureau of prisons in 1937.

"No man is ever really satisfied with the job he's done," Bennett said. "There are always new things to do. But I leave with no regrets."

Ted Kennedy's Wife Attends Convention

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Joan Kennedy says she has mixed emotions about her membership in the Massachusetts delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

"I am very honored to be part of the delegation," she said upon her arrival at Atlantic City Tuesday, "but I wish my husband, Ted, were with me."

Mrs. Kennedy's husband, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, is hospitalized with a broken back, suffered in a plane crash last June.

Did she get any special instructions from him?

"I think he is going to let me make up my own mind," she said.

Colombia, France, Russia and Spain will furnish Colorado College with new foreign language teachers this fall.

All five foreign language instructors joining the faculty this year speak natively the languages they will teach in the classroom.

From Colombia in South America comes Miss Yolanda Gutierrez; from France, Miss Genevieve Mezennec and Mrs. Nadine Waggoner; from Russia, Mrs. Frances Sobotka, and from Spain, Juan Ayala.

Miss Gutierrez, a native of Barranquilla, Colombia, has been teaching Spanish at Ohio State University where she is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree. She also has taught at the Colegio Femenio Sofia Camargo de Lleras, the Instituto Pestalozzi and at the Universidad Peagogica del Caribe.

Miss Mezennec, a native of Brest, France, has been an instructor in French at Middlebury College. She holds a master's degree from Sorbonne University in Paris and has taught in Barcelona, Spain, and in London, England.

Mrs. Waggoner, a native of Paris, holds a bachelor's degree from Western College for Women and has done graduate work at Indiana University and the University of Colorado. She also has taught at Colorado and Indiana.

Mrs. Sobotka, a native of Kiev, Russia, is former head of the department of Russian at the University of Illinois. In addition, she has taught at the University of Colorado, and the University of Chicago. She holds a degree in law from the University of Kieb and has attended the University of Heidelberg and Chicago.

Ayala, a native of Pradoluengo in Burgos, Spain, has been a professor of Spanish at the University of Nuevo Leon in Monterrey, Mexico. The author of four books and numerous articles, he holds a master's degree from the Colegio Maximo Xavier in Spain. He also has taught at the National University of El Salvador and the Institute of Technology in Monterrey.

Architects Will Tour CC's New Buildings

Some of the nation's leading educational architects will tour Colorado College's new buildings Saturday.

Touring the campus facilities will be members of the American Institute of Architecture's 14-man National Committee on School and College Architecture, accompanied by members of the Colorado Chapter of the AIA and college and university administrators.

F. Lamar Kelsey, Colorado Springs architect, said 46 architects and educators will be attending the national committee meeting here Aug. 28-30.

At Colorado College, they will spend Saturday examining the $1,250,000 Charles Leaming Tutt Library; the $1,400,000 Olin Hall of Science; and the Boettcher Health Center, now nearing completion.

The Colorado College buildings have won several architectural awards and have made the independent liberal arts college a center of attraction for architects and college administrators from throughout the nation.

Conducting the tours of the college buildings will be Prof. Wilbur Wright of the physics department, Prof. Richard Beidleman of the zoology department, and Dean of Men Juan Reid.

The group will be welcomed to the college campus by Dr. Lloyd E. Worner, president of the college. President Worner also will take part in a panel discussion on college architecture Sunday morning at the Broadmoor Hotel.

How to Keep Well

MEDICAL BROWSING

The tickle reflex may be looked upon as an occupational hazard of the medical profession. In examining the abdomen, for example, the squirming patient may laugh and laugh as he pushes away the physician's hand. It is comforting to know that this ticklish situation can be overcome.

Dr. Robert A. Gerisch offers a professional tip along this line. He suggests the patient place his hand on his abdomen and then have the physician place his hand over it, with only light pressure. In this position, both hands are moved over each section of the abdomen. Since no tickle is felt, relaxation is induced. Then the patient takes the physician's hand and places it on his abdomen, keeping his hand on top. In this way the examination can be completed in comfort.

Of all the states in the Union, Arizona has the highest death rate from chronic respiratory diseases. Colorado, New Mexico, Nevada, and Wyoming come next. Only Vermont and Pennsylvania approach the mortality figures of these western states. The lowest death rates from this cause occur in Illinois, North Dakota, and Wisconsin.

These statistics might suggest marked geographic variations in the incidence of this type of respiratory disease. This is not so. Many victims of chronic lung disorders move to the mountain states, hoping the clean dry air will help them. Furthermore, many retired persons migrate to the west and southwest for a variety of reasons.

Why is the combination of alcohol and sleeping pills lethal at times? Dr. Jack E. Wallace of the Lakeland air force base explains that barbituates interfere with an enzyme that controls the ability of the body to dissipate alcohol. The double depressant effect of both drugs makes a deadly mixture, especially when used in large amounts.

Many alcoholics are addicted to barbituates and take a few capsules on going to bed. A short time late, forgetting they had taken sleeping pills, they swallow a second dose. An alcoholic with suicidal tendencies might decide "this is the night" and a handful of barbituates proves fatal even tho the dose might not be large enough to kill a sober person.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

Tomorrow: An Internal Fungal Infection.

Sore Neck

Mrs. H. V. writes: I am taking medicine for aching muscles in the back of the neck. Will massage of this area with ice cubes help relieve pain?

Reply

Yes, but heat is better. Send stamped, self - addressed envelope for leaflet on neck exercises, which may help relieve aching.

Goiter and Metabolism

D. V. B. writes: Is goiter caused by a low or high thyroid condition?

Reply

A simple goiter is an enlarged thyroid. It may be associated with overactivity or underactivity of the gland. But in the majority, the metabolism is normal.

Liquids With Meals

C. H. writes: What is your opinion about drinking fluids with meals? Some nutritionists say this practice slows digestion by diluting the gastric juices.

Reply

There is no harm in drinking fluids with meals.

Undeveloped Uterus

E. L. M. writes: Can an infantile uterus be corrected?

Reply

Some uteruses never develop to the adult size and, as a result, sterility usually exists.

PRETTY COOL DAY

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Mrs. Milton G. Nuss has three reasons for considering June 22 her lucky day.

It's her birthday and her wedding anniversary. This year she entered a weather guessing contest and picked June 22 to try to hit the correct high temperature.

She won — an air conditioner.

Its Hard to Tell Boys From Girls, Boyle Says

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It is a truism of our times that the sexes are getting more alike in America.

As a matter of fact, it is getting harder and harder to tell them apart.

In the Middle Ages there was no such problem. If a creature had long hair and wore a long dress, it was a woman. If it had on a suit of metal and clanked when it walked, it was a man. Each could tell the sex of the other on sight.

But since knighthood no longer is in flower, the identity of the sexes has become more puzzling. The spread of the equal rights movement and the rise of the togetherness cult have so intermingled the historic roles of men and women that both have become somewhat confused.

Women and men now work at the same jobs. They play the same sports. They dress alike, particularly in their youthful years, and they talk about the same things.

As an inevitable result, they look more alike. As a matter of fact, teen-agers now look so much alike that only their own parents can tell which is son, which is daughter.

But it is almost as hard to tell Pop from Mom when both put on slacks to go golfing, or Grandpa from Grandma when they dress up in old clothes to go fishing.

What we need is a kind of Baedecker of Sex to tell the genders apart. Here are a few ways it still can be done:

If it smiles when you address it as "Ma'am," it is feminine. If it grunts and growls, it is masculine.

If it strikes a kitchen match on the seat of its trousers, it's a him. If it waits coyly for you to light its cigarette, it's a her.

If it takes off its shoes at the movies, it's a woman. If it gets down on its hands and knees and starts looking for the shoes, it's a man.

Does it do its fair share of pushing while going through a revolving door? It's a gentleman for sure. Does it leap in front of you and grab the taxi you just flagged down? It's a lady — every time.

If it brags about the steaks it cooked in the backyard, it's a man. If it dimples when you praise the roast it cooks indoors, it's a woman.

If it wears a red ribbon in its hair, it's a lass. If it combs its hair like the north end of a duck going south, it's a lad.

If two go to the supermarket, the one that pushes the loaded cart is the mister. The missus is the one that holds up the line at the checkout counter as she fumbles through the wilderness of her purse.

If you open the door to it and it tries to sell you a box of cookies, it's a Girl Scout. If it helps old ladies across a street, it's a Boy Scout.

Does it bring its paycheck home in its mouth? It's a man. Does it think money grows on trees? It's a woman.

If it writes newspaper columns such as this, It's a him. If it reads columns such as this and loses its temper, it's a her.

Local Teacher Attends Science Briefing Session

Robert C. Harfert, science teacher at Cheyenne Mountain Junior High School, was among 75 secondary school earth science teachers who attended a five-day briefing session last week in Boulder.

The sessions, held at the University of Colorado, were conducted by the Earth Science Curriculum Project which is sponsored by the American Geological Institute and supported by the National Science Foundation.

The session was designed to familiarize teachers with the philosophy of ESCP and to review materials to be used in a new experimental course in earth science. A preliminary edition of the tex, laboratory manual and teachers guide will be used at Cheyenne Mountain Junior High this year.

Truman Says He Has To Budget His Time

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — "I am having to budget my time very carefully in what time may yet be available to me to do the many things that still remain to be done."

Thus did Harry S. Truman explain why he isn't attending the Democratic National Convention this year.

Asked at a news conference how he felt, the 80-year-old former president replied, "Oh, very well. I'm just getting old. That's all."

Truman, a convention delegate, said he had instructed his alternate, Anthony Denny of St. Louis, to "give faithful support to all requests of President Johnson."

PLEADS FOR INDIANS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — While major efforts are being made to end discrimination against Negroes, American Indians continue to meet discrimination in employment and housing, are subject to police brutality and excessive penalties and in some locations are discouraged from voting, according to a New York clergyman.

The Rev. Dr. Galen R. Weaver, executive secretary of the National Conference on Religion and Race, told the 21 annual Race Relations Institute at Fisk University that the Civil Rights Act was a "signal victory," even though it marks "a beginning rather than an end." He said Indians also have been given new hope for progress by the Area Improvement Act, the National Housing Program and President Johnson's anti-poverty campaign.

Armed Forces News

By STEVE TILLMAN

By STEVE TILLMAN

WASHINGTON — Special to the Gazette Telegraph — When the 1964 meeting of the Retired Officers Association convenes here on Nov. 19 there will be plenty of fire works for those in attendance. A committee of the most outstanding retired military leaders have been working to re-vitalize the organization to make it more truly representative of the retired officers. Much of the success will depend on whether the "Old Guard" can secure proxies from the 60,000 members which would keep the present management in office, or whether the membership at large want a housecleaning and will send their proxies to the new leadership.

It is firmly believed here that the next Executive Vice President of the association will be Air Force retired Gen. Charles P. Cabell. Gen. Cabell, born in 1903 in Texas, is a graduate of West Point in the class of 1925. Many here say that he would be the ideal choice for the job since he has held top level Pentagon assignments and knows the problems of the retirees.

The forthcoming convention here of the Association of the U. S. Army may learn of the departure of one of its staff members to be effective in February. An unconfirmed rumor is that the organization believes that it is time for a change.

The Retired Activities Branch of the Air Force has now been re-located at Randolph AFB, Tex.

Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., has been selected as the training post for volunteers who fail to meet current mental or medical standards for regular enlistment in the Army. The volunteers for the program will be limited to those having deficiencies which are correctable within less than a year's time..

Liaison functions of the several services with national organizations, including business and labor groups, have been consolidated in the Directorate for Community Relations of the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs. The merger has been previously mentioned in this column.

The present Administration is opposed to any increase in Civil Service annuities at this time. Congressional members have indicated that there is a favorable reaction on the Hill to the proposed increase. Representatives of the employe unions freely predict approval in 1965 by Congress of a small increase not to exceed 10 per cent.

The present law gives an increase to the annuities, as it does to military retired pay, when the cost of living index is up three per cent. The exception to the present law, if Congress does approve the increase, would certainly clear the way for Congress to give military retirees a five per cent increase in 1965.

The anticipated action by Congress in 1965 to cut the excise taxes should prove very beneficial to members of the Armed Forces when purchasing new cars. There is a 10 per cent excise tax included in the price of the car which cannot be deducted from individual tax returns. If eliminated it would save 10 per cent for new car buyers.

The Army now has two new items of uniform. They are the new Green overcoat, and the Green raincoat. The raincoat will be issued to enlisted men on July 1, 1966, and the overcoat on July 1, 1967.

The Army has a new program for appointment of Regular Army warrant officers. The objective of the program is to establish within an optimum warrant officer structure a nucleus of highly qualified specialist personnel to support the Army's mission. It is also desired to establish a more favorable ratio between Reserve-Regular warrant officer strength at a level approximately the Reserve-Regular commissioned officer ratio.

The Comptroller General has ruled that automobile tires, spare parts, extra wheels, and other items, are acceptable in household goods shipments. Up to now many Service members have suffered hardship during permanent change of stations.

Airmen promotion quotas for Airman 2. C., Airman 1. C. and S. Sgt. for October comes to 52,000. This is about 18,300 more promotions than were authorized in the same grades for July.

Air Force's proficiency type of aircraft are to be phased out in fiscal year 1967. Most are expected to be out prior to that date.

Ex-Pa Kettle Remembers Past With Distaste

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) "What do I do? I do nothing," says Percy Kilbride. "I'm more or less a — well, you might call me a bum."

That's not likely. Kilbride is a spry, crickety, tweed-suited gentleman of 77 years. He is the only Boulevard regular who is recognized by the present generation of movie fans.

"Hey — you're Pa Kettle!" tourists shout at the trim-figured, hawk-nosed man. He gives them a half smile and a cock of the head, then hurries on his way. He spent a half century as an actor and finds that the public remembers him only as the hayseed Pa of the Kettle family series, which he recalls with distaste.

His career started in 1905 in his native San Francisco and nearly ended the next year in the earthquake. He survived but his theater didn't, and he began years of traveling with stock companies, playing a different melodrama weekly. He later made it to Broadway as a popular character man and came to films in the role he created on the stage in "George Washington Slept Here."

Kilbride enjoyed steady employment in films, often as a taxi driver, even though he didn't drive. Then fate was to cast him and Marjorie Main as the rambunctious Kettles in "The Egg and I."

The follow-up series was highly successful. But Kilbride was distressed at playing the same bucolic character, and the sight-gag stunts were too violent for his delicate constitution.

"After my contract was up, I told the studio I wouldn't do any more," he said. "But then a new regime took over Universal. They offered me a limousine to and from work and an amazing amount of money.

"Well, I agreed to do one more. But I made them put in the contract that no one at the studio could even mention the possibility that I might do another one."

Kilbride limped through "Ma and Pa Kettle at Home," the seventh of the series. He was so ill and distressed by the end of it that he decided to close out his career.

That was 11 years ago, and he now appears as hale as in his prime as Pa Kettle. He admitted that retirement sits well with him.

"I live very quietly," he remarked. "I see some friends now and then. Mostly, I walk. I walk four miles a day or more — down to Wilshire Boulevard or over to Griffith Park. I like to walk.

"At night I stay in my apartment and read. Don't watch television. Don't do much of anything. Don't miss doing anything. It's pretty easy to do, you know, if you set your mind to it. I think it comes easy to actors. We spend a great deal of our lives doing nothing."

President's Brother Taken to Hospital

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — President Johnson's brother, Sam Houston Johnson, is in a hospital at this resort, suffering from pneumonia and a kidney infection.

Dr. R. L. Jackson said Tuesday that Johnson, an Austin, Tex., attorney, is responding well to treatment and will be discharged in a few days.

Johnson was vacationing when he became ill about 10 days ago.

The United States is the world's largest exporter of farm products.

Horse Trouble Delays Journey Into Russia

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Horse trouble is delaying an American family's journey in a covered wagon to Moscow.

But the Leon Gillises of Richmond, Va., aren't fretting. The family of six is attracting so much attention here, it's becoming famous.

Gillis, 43, said here one of the mares pulling his prairie schooner is lame and needs rest.

MAKES CHOICE

DENVER (UPI)— Herrick Roth, president of the Colorado Labor Council, AFL-CIO, wrote President Johnson Tuesday to inform him that Sen. Hubert Humphrey is the "almost unanimous" choice of Colorado labor as the Democratic vice presidential candidate. Roth said the Minnesota Democrat also appears to have the backing of most other Colorado Democrats.

Demo Convention Ladies Spend a Day at Races

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Frowning over their form sheets like Lyndon B. Johnson trying to pick a vice president, the ladies of the Democratic National Convention spent a day at the races.

"I can't remember whether my husband told me to put two dollars on No. 8 in the fourth race or four dollars on No. 2 in the eighth race," mused a lady from Utah in a big L.B.J. hat. She compromised by putting five dollars on No. 7, Champion Lady, in the third race.

The big brown filly cut out from the field in the back stretch, just beyond where a sign on the infield grass said "Welcome Democrats," and romped on home. She could have made it the rest of the way in snow shoes, and the lady from Utah pocketed $18.75.

It went pretty much like that the rest of the afternoon.

The ladies at the convention had a choice between attending the races and touring a china factory famous for making the White House dinnerware for Presidents Wilson, Truman and Franklin Roosevelt. Twice as many ladies showed up to inspect the two-dollar platers running at the Atlantic City course as turned out to view the presidential crockery.

"I bet one dollar at Monte Carlo last year and one dollar at Las Vegas and here I'm in for two dollars already," exclaimed Alice Narducci of Lambertville, N.J.

Plungers like that give lady horse players and Democrats a reputation for fiscal irresponsibility.

The track tried its level best to protect the ladies from their grosser gambling instincts with a luncheon fashion show that featured such dazzling items of haute couture as an opposum-lined camel coat over a cinnamon jersey in unborn lamb at $125 and a gold lame evening skirt that was slashed far up the fetlock and went for $159.95. The gals stuck with the nags.

Aside from noting that Princess Grace of Monaco got her start as a model at this very track, the distaff Democrats spent more time discussing the morning line than the line of dry goods on display.

The Arkansas delegation hit it big, early as a result of one of those hairpin turns of feminine logic that leave veteran horse players talking to themselves long after the lights have gone out on the tote board.

Inez Jones, a delegate and the wife of the state auditor, didn't like Lady Optimist in the first race, but Louise Porter, a delegate and president of the Arkansas Democratic Women's Club, did, because she regards herself as a lady optimist. So Mrs. Jones bought a ticket on Lady Optimist for Mrs. Porter because it was Mrs. Porter's birthday. Get it?

Mrs. Porter did anyway, along with $19.20.

"My God," she screamed when the bay filly tucked her nose under the wire, "here I am a member of the Park Hill Baptist church and living right next door to the preacher. He'll throw me out."

New Jersey finally was heard from on the fourth ballot with Teacher, a desultory running longshot that Barbara Haenn, a pretty filly in a red, white and blue "Johnson Girl" dress and matching straw hat, rooted home with shrieks of "All the way with L.B.J." The Jersey party coffers netted only $10.40, because Barbara, on her first trip to a race track, mistook the show line for the win window.

Tennessee, which thought it saw political implications in Evil Dick in the fifth race, never did break into the win column. "If Sargent Shriver won't qualify me under the poverty program, I'll get Lyndon to declare me a disaster area," moaned the stricken hunch player when Evil Dick faded to oblivion at the clubhouse turn.

Dedicated Democrats all, the ladies spent almost as much time handicapping the vice-presidential field as they did the resident oat burners.

John Pastore may have emerged as the dark horse to jeopardize Minnesota's double entry on the basis of his early convention workout.

And, without consulting the Owl, Riley, Turfcaster and the other local touts, the lady prognosticators did rule out such long shots as California's Pat Brown and Connecticut's Tom Dodd.

"It'll be a horse race, you can be sure of that," opined Louise Campolo of Roselle Park, N.J.

All of which goes to show how politically edifying an afternoon at the races can be.

BRANDY AND GOAT MILK

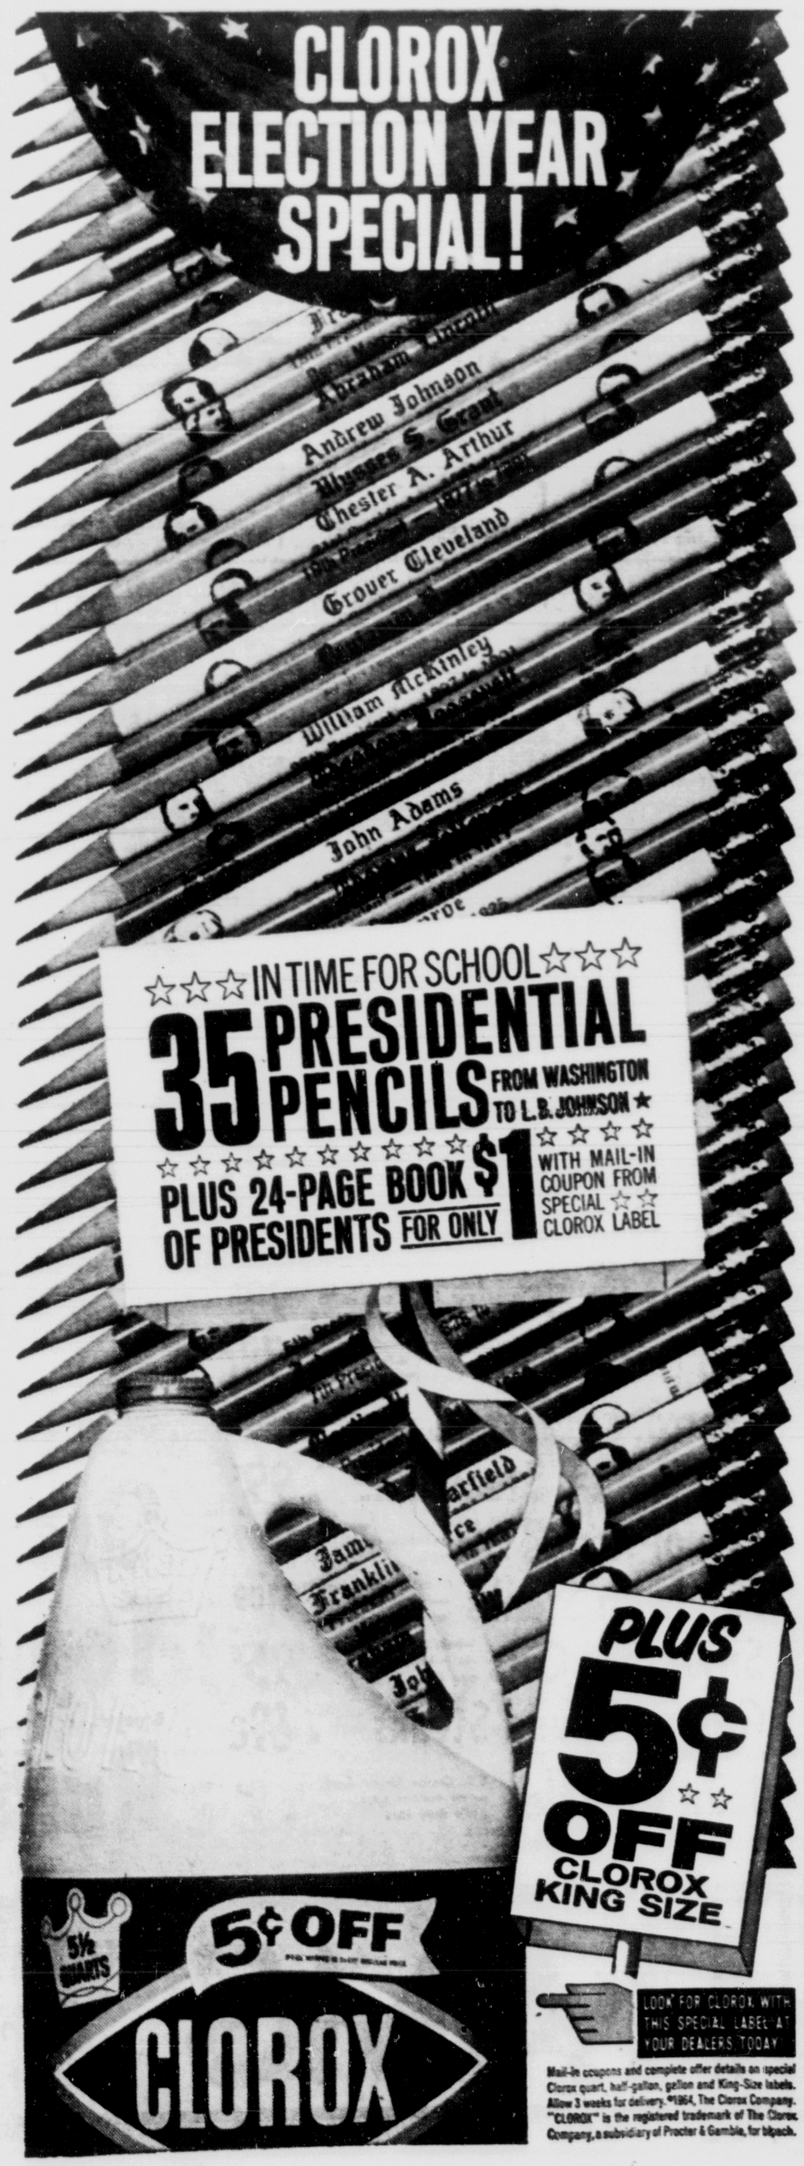

NEW DELHI (AP)—Rukku and Krishna, white tiger cubs at Delhi Zoo, drink brandy and have a black nanny goat for a foster mother.

The two-month old cubs were moved in with Chhamia the goat after their mother treated them badly. She chewed off the tail of one of the cubs and mauled the paws of the other.

Chhamia has a kid of her own but they are all one happy family. The goat nurses the cubs the same as her kid Kallu, and they romp and play all day and get on famously.

It's the monsoon season in India, and tigers hate rain. So the zoo veterinarian, Dr. Dawar Hussain, gives the cubs a few drops of brandy every night to quite them. That's the only time Kallu, on a milk diet, ever acts a bit jealous.

RABAT—Morocco will expand her hotel facilities.

Robber Signs Check As Jesse James

HAMILTON, Ont. (AP) — The robber introduced himself by handing the woman bank teller a check signed Jesse James.

When the teller looked up, she found herself staring at a pistol. The robber demanded all of her $5 and $50 bills.

She gave him about $5,000 and he made his getaway.

The check was made out for only $2,000.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D. Ph.D.

* * *

Kathy's husband looked very well at the banquet which I addressed in Ft. Wayne, but listen to her description of his behavior at home! And all married folks should scrapbook this frank confession for future reference. Send for the Rating Scale below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE T-458: Kathy B., aged 34, is a Ft. Wayne housewife.

"Dr. Crane," she confided after a banquet address I recently delivered at the Ft. Wayne Ad and Sales Clubs, "I have a bone to pick with you.

"For you recently listed several reasons why husbands grow platonic.

"You said their wives were often at fault because of their tobacco breath, plus their fatness and lack of using the bathtub often enough.

"Well, why don't you pick on the men?

"For I am a non-smoker, 5' 4" tall, and weigh only 110. Besides, I bathe regularly and keep my hair neat.

"But my husband smokes cigars constantly and chews the ends, too.

"And many a night he comes to bed without even brushing his teeth.

"He may even sit in his undershirt in front of TV all evening, and on weekends he may not even shave at all.

"Well, I have tried to keep my sexual ardor but it is difficult to do so with a bearded, cigar-reeking face.

"A wife may need to keep sweet smelling and perfumed to stimulate her mate, but a husband can't reek of stale cigar halitosis and sweat and then expect his stubby beard to excite his wife, either!

"So what do you have to say to that?"

I agree with all such wives, for Kathy is correct.

A lot of wives need a clothespin on their nose to be able to sleep beside the stinking, uncouth lout who is their husband.

Some of these men are so thoughtless of the simple rules of masculine hygiene and etiquette that they even asphyxiate their secretaries at the office, too, with their "B. O."

However, most men try to put up a fairly attractive "front" at work, but then let down when they reach home.

They seem to think, in typical egotistical fashion, that their wives should consider it an honor to live in a pig pen and sleep with a hog.

Why, a lot of these men couldn't even hire call girls at double the usual fees, smelling as they do.

As a weak bit of defense for such men, I might add that if they smoke, they partially deaden their own sense of smell.

So they don't realize how obnoxious they may be, even to their own family.

In civilized, modern America, water and soap are reasonably cheap and plentiful.

After-shave lotions and underarm deodorants are a standard part of personal hygiene, too.

If your co-workers or family still ignore such simple rules of civilized America, mail them this newspaper column in a plain envelope.

That will sometimes waken a husband (or wife) to the need for Cupid's cosmetic and bathroom aids.

And to stimulate further self-analysis, send for the 200 point "Rating Scales for Husband and Wife," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

What Does Hubby Do While Wife Politics

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — What does the husband of a national committeewoman do while she is bustling around at a national political convention tending to a hundred and one details?

"Well," explained scholarly, graying Charles Graham, husband of Colorado's Democratic national committeewoman Jean Graham, "he spends a lot of time at the beach. And he talks to everyone he can get to listen."

"And," Graham added, "he organizes."

Graham says he has formed a Society for the Preservation and Protection of Husbands of National Committeewomen since arriving here for the Democratic National Convention.

So far, he said, there are two other members — Hickman Price of Michigan, husband of Margaret Price who is vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Ray Logan, husband of Montana's national committeewoman, Frances Logan.

Graham has named himself president of the new organization and says he has picked Price for vice president.

"We haven't gotten around yet to thinking up an office for Logan," he explained apologetically, "but we will. Also, we're thinking of launching a recruiting drive. Maybe one of these days we will get around to it.

"So far there aren't any dues. But we definitely must have some."

Graham complains that not only has Mrs. Graham virtually abandoned him during the convention but his daughter, Margaret, 16, has almost walked out too. She is serving as a Colorado page.

"He is not suffering," Mrs. Graham assured a reporter. "He is always sound asleep when I leave the hotel to get to work every morning."

Brushing aside the remark, Graham, an attorney with a long-time interest in politics, insisted that he also is left alone quite a lot when they are at home in Lakewood, Colo., a Denver suburb, and that the lot of a committeewoman's husband is not simple.

"I am not unfamiliar with my own cooking," he continued. "I am even getting so I like it. So does our cocker, Peppy."

Bill to Permit Private Atomic Power Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signs today a bill that will permit private producers of atomic electric power to buy — rather than lease — their nuclear fuels from the government.

The Atomic Energy Commission asked for the new law on behalf of the Johnson administration. It received bipartisan support in both houses of Congress.

Under present law, the government has a monopoly on ownership of enriched nuclear materials, although it can lease them to private industry. The new law wipes out that requirement and provides for a gradual changeover to private ownership.

Provision is made also for power companies and others to purchase raw uranium and pay the AEC to convert it into enriched uranium suitable for use in a reactor. This will be permitted after Jan. 1, 1969.

The AEC can continue for a time to lease the enriched fuels as it does now, or can make outright sales.

Starting Jan. 1, 1971, it can only sell the materials, and by June 30, 1973, the nuclear materials that utility firms and others have been using under lease must be converted to private ownership.

Still to be determined are the prices the AEC will charge. The Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee said it would keep close supervision over these, and expects the AEC to charge as much as the cost to it.

Pope Paul Warns Nations Against New Arms Race

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI, in a peace appeal recalling the tragedies of two world wars, urged nations today to avoid an arms race.

The Roman Catholic pontiff said there was a return to the "illusory concept that peace can only be based on the terrifying power of extremely homicidal weapons."

Speaking to his regular weekly general audience at his summer residence just south of Rome, Pope Paul expressed concern at the "acute disagreements, already stained with blood and pregnant with menacing omens, existing today between various countries."

He said his thoughts were stirred by the current anniversary commemorations of the start of World Wars I and II.

"New symptoms are noted of a re-growth of divisions and oppositions between peoples, between the various races and different cultures: this spirit of division is guided by nationalistic pride, by prestige politics, the armaments race, social and economic antagonisms," the Pope said.

"There returns the illusory concept that peace can only be based on the terrifying power of extremely homicidal weapons; and, while on the one hand noble but weak discussion and efforts are made to limit and abolish armaments, on the other the destructive capacity of military apparatus is being continually developed and perfected."

NO CONTAMINATION

DENVER (UPI)— Paul W. Swisher, state agriculture commissioner, reassured Denverites Tuesday they had nothing to fear from contamination of their milk by insecticides. Swisher acknowledged that some trace of insecticides had been found in milk in this area several months ago, but he said it existed in amounts too small to be of any danger.

Workers Return To Pan American Following Strike

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transport workers returned today to their jobs at Pan American Airways following a strike-ending agreement on a new labor contract which one union official called the best ever negotiated in the industry.

The strike of AFL-CIO Transport Workers Union members lasted less than 24 hours but crippled the airline's operations to foreign points from New York, Miami, Washington, Seattle, Wash., Portland, Ore., San Francisco, Los Angeles and Houston, Tex.

Pan American operates no domestic flights.

The air line recalled all its employes to duty shortly after the agreement was reached. Company President Juan Trippe said extra planes will be operated in transatlantic service to accommodate any backlog of traffic.

The company said it would ferry four jets to Europe empty to pick up westbound passengers.

Details of the new contract covering 12,000 union members —maintenance and ground service personnel and flight stewards and stewardesses — were not disclosed pendng ratification by rank and file union members.

This is expected to be completed by the middle of next week, the union said, but a formal signing of the contract by union and management negotiators was expected today.

About 9,000 workers were involved in the strike over wages, working conditions and fringe benefits. The remaining union members working at the Cape Kennedy, Fla., missile center and handling military charter flights have no-strike agreements with the federal government.

Pan America said the strike stranded about 8,000 passengers and idled more than 20,000 of its employes.

The walkout began about 2 a.m. Tuesday after negotiations between union and management reached a stalemate. The final agreement on a new contract came after a marathon negotiating session which lasted about 13 hours with the National Mediation Board aiding in the talks.

Union members were ordered back to their jobs after both sides agreed to contract language about 1 a.m. today.

"We're all happy with it," a union spokesman said of the contract.

The union had sought wage increases of 15 per cent, improved working conditions and fringe benefits including a reduction in the 40-hour work week to 37* hours and more liberal insurance and pension provisions.

Present wages average $3.31 an hour for mechanics, $2.55 for ground service personnel, $2.83 for port stewards and $475 monthly for flight stewards, stewardesses and pursers.

Six-Wheel Craft To Be Designed For Moon Trips

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Plans for a six-wheel vehicle capable of taking two astronauts for a 14-day, 250-mile jaunt on the surface of the moon were disclosed Tuesday by the Boeing Co.

Boeing, which is heading a nine-month study for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on payloads for the Apollo logistics support system, calls the moon vehicle Molab, short for mobile laboratory.

The vehicle would be sent to the moon aboard an Apollo spacecraft. If radio signals showed it landed safely, the astronauts would follow in another Apollo.

The wheels of the vehicle would be five or six feet in diameter, wire-wrapped and covered with steel mesh to cope with jagged rubble on the moon's surface.

Keating Offers Bobby Kennedy New York Maps

By JOHN MORGANTHALER

NEW YORK (AP) — Democrat Robert F. Kennedy has opened his campaign to become a senator from New York, saying he is equipped "to understand New York's problems and to do something about them."

Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating reacted to Kennedy's formal announcement of his candidacy Tuesday by offering the attorney general maps and guides to the state "which any sojourner would find helpful."

Kennedy said President Johnson would campaign for him.

Accompanied by his wife and two dogs, Kennedy read his statement of candidacy in front of Gracie Mansion, Mayor Robert F. Wagner's official residence, while Wagner looked on.

"I recognize," Kennedy said, "that some voters have misgivings about considering a man for high office who has left the state and who has only recently returned."

He said his parents have maintained a home in New York since 1926, that he attended New York schools for six years, and that he has again established residence in the state.

"But I do not base my candidacy on these connections," he said.

"I base it on the conviction that my experience and my record equip me to understand New York's problems and to do something about them. I base it on the fact that the greatest state in the union must play a leading role at the federal level in solving these problems.

"And I wish to play a part in that effort."

Kennedy votes in Massachusetts and has been living in Virginia, near Washington, D.C.

There were seven pickets on the sidewalk with signs saying "Bobby Go Home," "New York for New Yorkers," and "RFK — Candidate of the Bosses."

Newsmen asked Kennedy if President Johnson would campaign for him and he replied, "Yes."

Kennedy, his wife, Ethel, who is expecting their ninth child, and the two dogs flew to Atlantic City to attend a reception for New York delegates to the Democratic National Convention, given by Mayor Wagner.

Hundreds of persons mobbed the Kennedys on their arrival, and crowded around them at the reception.

Kennedy generally is conceded the Democratic nomination at a state convention next Tuesday. He says he will resign as attorney general when he is nominated.

But Rep. Samuel S. Stratton of Amstersam, N.Y., still plans a floor fight.

George Palmer of Schenectaday, Stratton's manager, said Kennedy's nomination will be fought "before the state committee, at the state convention, before the secretary of state and in the courts."

In Albany, Fred A. Young, Republican state chairman, said he would recommend a state law barring persons who can't vote in New York from running for public office. A year's residence is required for voting.

Stolen Shoe Spotted By Alert Policeman

PARK FOREST, Ill. (AP) — A policeman took one look at a 14-year-old boy Tuesday and concluded he was wearing a shoe stolen 12 days ago from a local department store.

The shoe, which the youth was wearing over his regular shoe, was a display model — size 25D, weighed three pounds, was 20 inches long and had a sole ¾ inches thick. He said another boy gave it to him.

Mississippians Get Main TV Coverage

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After two days of watching television coverage of the Democratic National Convention, one might fairly conclude that all the reporters converged on Atlantic City primarily to cover the excitement about seating the Mississippi delegations.

But that was where the action was. Again Tuesday night, speakers on the platform got short shrift from all three networks, whose attention focused constantly on the turbulent sit-in by members of he Freedom Democratic Party in the Mississippi section.

At one point the press of reporters and interested delegates in the section became so fierce that CBS floor reporter Mike Wallace looked desperately toward the cameras, crying "This is simply Chaos — help!"

The horde of electronic journalists kept out of each other's way — and their faces out of each other's cameras — with remarkable agility.

On one occasion, however, NBC's John Chancellor arrived at the side of the Freedom party's Aaron Henry just as Henry was about to talk with CBS' Bill Stout. Dr. Henry balked at a two-network interview. Chancellor snorted something about "some kind of journalistic protocol" and turned away in disgust.

The long, long reading of the party platform, which practically emptied Convention Hall, put something of a strain on the three network teams in their goldfish bowls above the hall. ABC and CBS handled it with analyses of events and interviews on the floor. NBC's Chet Huntley and David Brinkley had a humorous conversation about convention literature. They put on a taped interview by Nancy Dickerson with the distaff members of President Johnson's family, made days ago in Washington. Huntley did a philosophical, tongue-in-cheek monologue about the difference between Republican and Democratic women, concluding that the former were more likely to wear hats than the latter.

George Gobel, who was scheduled to do "humorous commentaries" for ABC, turned up only in the commercials. Maybe he didn't think anything was funny.

NEW UNIFORM? — Visitors to London's Clarence House are startled when they see guards decked out in ordinary khaki uniforms (left) rather than the regal red tunic and fur busby (right). But it seems the Royal Guards in the red coats are on overseas duty, so other soldiers must take over sentry duty.

Thieves Operate in Broad Daylight

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — A thief broke the side window of a station wagon and stole $6,000 worth of clothing in broad daylight while three persons watched, police reported Tuesday.

None of them reported the theft, and officers quoted one of them as having said later he did not want to get involved.

The clothing, suits and topcoats, belonged to a salesman.

DIFFERENT COLOR INSIDE

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—H. J. Knisley of Wichita wonders if the horse he encountered while on a trip to western Kansas was a horse of a different color.

Knisley filed a claim to his insurance company for a new paint job on his auto. The claim stated that a horse had gnawed paint off part of the car.

SANDBLASTING ON MOON

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Studies indicate that if an astronaut walked about the surface of the moon for a week every square inch of his space suit would be bombarded by more than one million tiny micrometeorites.

A suit only four-hundredths of an inch thick would protect him for that period. But the visor of his helmet would be so pitted that he probably would not be able to see through it. Eventually, the suit itself would erode under the sandblast effect of the nearly invisible particles.

The astronauts planning long excursions on the moon will require protective shelters.

LABOR CONTEST

DENVER (UPI)—Two unions are trying to gain representation rights for 1,700 employes at the Dow Chemical Co. nuclear plant at Rocky Flats, the National Labor Relations Board said Monday. The United Mine Workers and the International Association of Machinists are seeking to represent the Rocky Flats workers in place of the Denver Metal Trades Council, AFL-CIO.

Two Reformatory Escapees Are Sought

BUENA VISTA (UPI)— Officials today still were searching for two Colorado State Reformatory escapees who walked off a work detail Thursday.

The two were identified as Barry Wayne Dishman, 22, of Golden, and Noah Matthew Hussey Jr., 21, of Cheyenne Wells. Neither was believed armed nor dangerous.

Dishman entered the institution May 19 for a burglary in Jefferson County; Hussey was committed last April 29 for burglary in Cheyenne County.

There will be 95 million passenger cars registered in the nation by 1976 compared with about 68 million today, the American Automobile Association forecasts.

FAIR HOUSING

DENVER (UPI)—The Governor's Committee on Fair Housing will meet Friday at the State Capitol to consider proposals to strengthen the state's Fair Housing Act of 1959. Bert Gallegos, a former legislator from Denver, is chairman of the special committee. He said Monday the committee members are generally in agreement that the act should be strengthened and clarified.

Farm Boycott Hikes Prices, Reports Show

By KENNETH HOPPING

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Scattered reports of increases in consumer meat prices dotted the picture today in the National Farmers Organization livestock market boycott.

The NFO drive to withhold animals from market in an effort to get higher prices from processors was in its seventh full day.

Wholesale and retail outlets in cities of the Midwest and the East say they are feeling the effect and have raised prices.

Choice cuts of beef were raised four or five cents a pound in parts of Ohio and at Louisville, Ky.

A meat packer at Baltimore predicted that housewives will be paying 12 to 15 cents more a pound for meat this weekend or early next week.

Stores at Boston and Portland, Maine, said they expect a boost in prices later in the NFO headquarters at Corning, Iowa, claimed that increasing retail prices is unwarranted and that some dealers "are taking advantage of the situation."

Supplies of hogs going through the Chicago Terminal Market bounded upward Tuesday and forced a drop of 50 cents per hundredweight from Monday's high of $20 a hundred.

Chicago listed receipts of 10,000 hogs, highest since Jan. 6. Receipts also were up at other major markets.

NFO President Oren Lee Staley of Rea, Mo., charged that it was "an organized selling day by those who don't want the farmers to receive fair prices."

On the retail side, one store at Columbus, Ohio, jumped the cost of a pound of bacon from 39 to 70 cents a pound. But at Chicago, the Jewel, National and Kroger chains said they had not raised meat prices.

The American Meat Institute said in a statement: "Any temporary reduction in supply and increase in price from a withholding action must be followed later by an offsetting increase in supply and decrease in price."

At Indianapolis, Kroger Co. sent a bulletin to Indiana stores telling managers to expect a "sharp increase" in meat prices but officials refused to blame the NFO directly.

Boycott Will Be Continued Bv Stockmen

CORNING, Iowa (AP) — National Farmers Organization leaders vowed today to keep their livestock market boycott going until they win minimum price guarantees for farmers.

They said temporary setbacks such as occurred Tuesday, when surprisingly heavy marketings of hogs cut back price gains recorded in the first five days of the NFO holding action, will not deter them.

Hog receipts at Chicago reached 10,000 Tuesday, highest for a Tuesday since Jan. 6, around two-thirds greater than a week earlier, and 4,000 higher than Monday.

Marketing experts in Chicago said the influx of hogs there, double expected receipts, apparently came about because farmers rushed to take advantage of the highest prices in months.

The heavy receipts, however, sliced 50 cents off the Monday top, and the peak Tuesday was $19.50.

NFO president Oren Lee Staley blamed the heavy marketings on an "organized selling day by those that don't want the farmer to receive a fair price." He said the NFO knew it was coming.

"One day's receipts will be up and the other days they'll be down," he said. "There is bound to be fluctuation but the cumulative effect is what is important. The holding action will go on gaining strength."

Other meat industry sources, however, said the NFO holding action is doomed to failure and ultimately will lead to lower instead of higher prices.

"It's very obvious," said Erwin Dubbert of Laurens, Iowa, president of the National Livestock Feeders Association "that the stockmen handling the bulk of the livestock in the nation are not listening to or taking part in any campaign to hold back livestock and disrupt the normal flow to market.

"Delayed marketing only serves to aggravate the situation later on."

Don F. Magdanz of Omaha, secretary-treasurer of the National Livestock Feeders Association, said the NFO goal of forcing processors to sign contracts guaranteeing specified minimum prices is "pure fantasy."

"No packer of any consequence can afford to enter into such a contract," Magdanz said, "because it would be economic suicide."

SHALE OIL PROMOTED

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The two Colorado members of the Democratic Platform Committee have proposed a platform plank pledging seedy development of the oil shale industry. The plank, offered by Mrs. Jean Graham of Lakewood and William Hochman of Colorado Springs, would put the Democratic Party on record promising "to do all within our power to expeditiously promote a vigorous oil shale industry so necessary to the national interest."

He is alleged to have passed a $10.47 check with Harry's Liquors, 401 E. Pikes Peak Ave. Aug. 13. Judge Hardeman set bond at $1,500.

Another case of no account check was filed against Asa W. Ankrum, 57, 2423 Hagerman St. who is currently serving 90 days in County Jail for a traffic violation.

The defendant is accused of writing a $30 check July 15 and giving it to the Pikes Peak Army Store, 224 S. Tejon St. His bond is $1,500.

The final charge, attempted grand larceny, was filed against Theodore C. Campbell.

Silce AL Lead

Indians Prove Fatal to Orioles

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles will be lucky if they can get out of the Cleveland Indians' eighth inning with the American League pennant.

The Indians edged the first-place Orioles 3-2 Wednesday night, scoring two runs in the eighth inning for the victory. The loss, coupled with Chicago's 2-1, 12-inning triumph over Minnesota, sliced Baltimore's lead to one percentage point over the second-place White Sox.

The victory, the Indians' sixth straight, increased their season edge over Baltimore to 10-5, making them the only team to hold an edge over the league-leaders. More specifically, though, the Indians have won five of the last six games with Baltimore in the eighth inning.

A five-run outburst in the eighth Tuesday night brought Cleveland a 5-3 decision. Wednesday night's game was tied 1-1 going into the eighth.

Slow-footed John Romano sent the tie-breaking run across with a two-out, two-strike bunt single, a surprise move he pulled on his own. Vic Davalillo followed with a run-scoring double.

Explaining the rare squeeze bunt, Romano said:

"I can't hit (relief pitcher Stu) Miller anyway, so I had to do something."

Baltimore Manager Hank Bauer, however, didn't have any explanation for the Indians' eighth-inning tactics.

Elsewhere in the AL, Washington blanked New York 2-0, Detroit defeated Boston 4-1 and Los Angeles knocked off Kansas City 5-2.

Norm Siebern slammed a homer for the Orioles in the eighth, but they couldn't do any more scoring. A walk and singles by Earl Robinson and Russ Snyder had given Baltimore a 1-1 tie in the sixth and set the stage for the eighth-inning rally.

Don Buford singled home Gerry McNertney with Chicago's winning run in the 12th. McNertney led off the inning by reaching second base on a wild throw to first by the Twins' Rich Rollins. McNertney went to third on a passed ball and two walks later, trotted home.

Ed Fisher pitched the last three innings, holding the Twins hitless for his sixth victory in eight decisions.

The Yankees remained four games off the pace as Buster Narum stopped them on five hits. He outpitched Mel Stottlemyre, who lost his first game after winning three. The Senators scored both runs in the fifth, Mike Brumley coming home with the first one on an infield grounder.

The Tigers' Dave Wickersham recorded his 16th victory in 25 decisions, hurling a five-hitter against the Red Sox. Don Demeter started a two-run rally in the sixth with a homer while Jerry Lumpe did the same in the seventh. Demeter's homer halted Bob Heffner's scoreless-inning string at 19 1-3.

Australians Challenging U.S. in Seniors

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The championship of the World Seniors Golf Tournament has been a United States possession for the first four years of the event — but this summer the "Yankees" are getting a bit of static from that land "down under."

As the tourney entered the quarter-finals this morning, there were just two remaining entries from overseas and both were from Australia. It is only the second time since this competition was initiated in 1960 that foreign players have advanced so far, and there has never been a champion from anywhere outside of the U.S.

Jack Barkel of Sydney, Australia, who made his first imprint here Sunday by posting a stunning 71 and capturing medalist honors, entered the quarter-finals with a 5 and 4 triumph over touted Leon Sikes of Palm Beach, Fla. Meanwhile, H. W. Hattersley of Mosman, Australia battled through an exhausting 20 holes to defeat Dan Hawkinson of Rockford, Ill. and join his countryman in the fourth round.

Those wins lifted the Australians to a lofty niche in World Seniors history. In 1961 colorful Francis Francis of the Bahamas and C. C. Taylor of South Africa clubbed their way into the semi-finals, but they were not confronted by the field that has gathered the past two years — nor has their feat ever been matched.

Their battle for survival was to continue this morning as Barkel met Ben Cowdery of Omaha, Neb. and Hattersley faced giant - killing Joe Dyer of Denver. Barkel figured to be a slight favorite in his match while Hattersley teed off against Dyer's hot-putter as an underdog.

The other quarter-final matches were "All - American" pairings, and that term was more descriptive than appears on the surface. In the upper-bracket, Forest Andrews of Colorado Springs was to meet Dorsey Nevergall of Pompano Beach, Fla. Both were semi-finalists a year ago.

In the lower-bracket, Adrian French of Los Angeles, a former semi-finalist, faced Spec Goldman of Dallas, Tex. Goldman, once a runner-up in the National Amateur and still a well-talented player, earned his World Senior spurs Wednesday by storming from behind to defeat Adrian McManus of Windemere, Fla., 2 and 1.

Wednesday's other results included Andrews' 5 and 3 conquest of Alex Spence of Coronado, Calif.; a 4 and 3 comeback win by Nevergall over cigar-puffing Sam Reynolds of Omaha, Neb.; Cowdery's 3 and 2 triumph over Ian B. Cromb of Christchurch, New Zealand, the only remaining foreign player in addition to the Australians; and French's 2 and 1 win over Robert Bell.

The third round offered some of the more inspired shotmaking of the week — as well as some of the more unfortunate. Sikes, who always seems on the average of breaking through here, had a day of undescribable misery on the greens in his match with the calmly efficient Barkel. The keynote was sounded at the sixth hole when the Floridan ripped a second shot onto the par-four green that rolled across the hole, nearly dropping for an eagle.

Instead, the ball floated four feet past and Sikes then stumbled into a string of three putts that was to be his undoing. Included was a streak of two holes when he missed from inside of two feet. Meanwhile Barkel, who uses a hollow wooden putter that resembles an undersized four-wood, took advantage of almost every lapse with his steady down-the-middle game and was never in trouble.

The other feature match in the bottom bracket provided considerably more in the way of suspense. McManus had appeared on the way to victory after grabbing the lead at the ninth hole when Goldman plopped a second shot into the lake at the front of the green. He increased the margin to two holes when the husky Texan floated a shot over the out-of-bounds fence bordering the 12th green.

Then came the swift reversal. McManus, who has tended to grow suddenly erratic on this course in past appearances, saw his game come apart and he lost the next four holes to drop the match.

Dyer, who pulled the most startling upset of the week Tuesday in ousting Merril Carlsmith of Hilo, Hawaii, continued his brilliant performance against Swan. The hulking Denverite, who plays from the left side except for putting right-handed, was deadly from inside 10 feet in shooting a two-under round that was the best of the day.

Nevergall, who trailed midway through his match, won three straight holes starting at 10 to build a lead that mounted steadily, was even par for the day. So was French, who appears to be playing his best golf here in the past two years. Barkel was one over in his victory over Sikes and Andrews was two above regulation in moving past Spence.

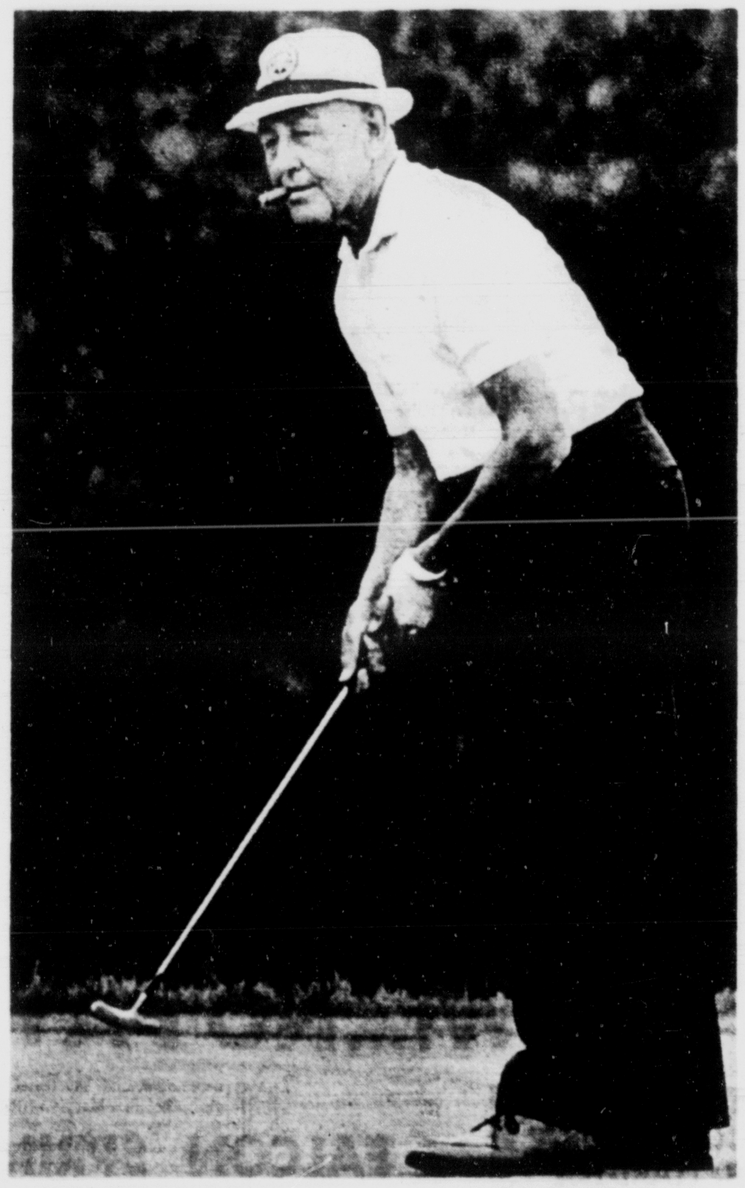

Today's championship flight rounds were again to be played in the morning and the same schedule will be followed both Friday and Saturday. Both the semi-finals and finals will also be over the 18 hole route.

Grappler Loses Weight, Wins Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Simons, who normally weighs 137 pounds, won the National AAU 125.5-pound free style wrestling championship last June.

Wednesday night the 25-year-old soldier finished first in the 114.5-pound class of the U.S. Olympic trials at the World's Fair.

Sounds confusing, doesn't it?

It really isn't. The Army private has an easy formula for losing weight — stop eating and do some extra exercises.

"It isn't that I don't like to eat," said the Norfolk, Va., native after he scored an easy decision over Okla Johnson of East Lansing, Mich., in the final round.

"I take this wrestling very serious. Especially this year. I am retiring after the Olympics and I would like nothing better than to win a medal in Tokyo."

Asked why the sharp drop from his normal weight of 137 to 125 for the Nationals to 114 for the trials, Simons replied.

"I am not big enough (he's only 5-5) to handle the boys in the 138.5-pound class so that's why I dropped down for the Nationals.

"And when it came time for the trials, I figured my chances for a medal in Japan would be better at 114. It has been a tough grind, though.

"I only eat one meal a day. I train twice a day. When I went from 137 to 125 I only took one workout a day."

Simons, is stationed at the U.S. Military Academy where he teaches physical education and is assistant wrestling coach.

The other winners and runners-up included Winner first):

125.5 pounds, Dave Auble, Ithaca, N.Y., Carmen Molino, Ontario, N.Y.

138.5, Bob Douglas, Bridgeport, Ohio, Mike Harmon, U.S. Navy.

154.5, Jim Burke, San Francisco, Gordon Hassman, New Hampton, Iowa.

171.5, Dean Lahr, Boulder, Colo., Charles Tribble, San Bernardino, Calif.

191.5, Dan Brand, Oakland, Calif., Harry Houska, Parma, Ohio.

Heavyweight, Larry Kristoff, Carbondale, Ill., Jim Raschke, U.S. Army, Lincoln, Neb.

All first and second place finishers qualified for the training camp which gets under way at the U.S. Naval Academy Monday. The selection committee also said a few special cases also may be invited.

Record-Busting Spree Set For Olympic Swim Trials

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — America's top swimmers, fresh from a record-busting spree in the National AAU championships at Los Altos Hills, Calif., probably will break more in the Olympic Trials starting Saturday in the Astoria Pool says the man in charge.

"We've constructed a pool within a pool since Aug. 17 and it's a fast one," said Jack Abramson of New York, meet director of the largest water carnival ever held in New York.

What makes a fast pool?

"The main thing is to have calm water — no sloshing or waves — and a level water depth," said Abramson today. "When you have disturbances in the water it slows up the swimmers. We have built a pool with an even depth and runoffs to keep the water calm."

"We heard that one swimmer — who never saw the new pool — said it would be slow," said Ambramson. "That remark was made before we even built the pool. Charlie McCafree of Michigan State supervised the construction and is very happy with it."

"Steve Clark, the Yale sprinter, and Chet Jastremski of Indiana both told me the pool is in fine shape and there should be some very fast times."

Abramson said the original 100 meter pool was cut in half with the construction of a concrete bulkhead.

The men's and women's springboard and platform diving also will be held in the Astoria Pool. The water polo trials, held at the same site, began last Saturday.

Abramson said the field included 40 women divers, 140 women swimmers, 65 male divers and 240 male swimmers, and 176 water polo players. The swimmers had to meet qualifying times to enter.

Saturday's opening program includes the men's and women's 100 meter freestyle and the men's 400 meter individual medley, a new event on the Olympic card.

Don Schollander, the Santa Clara, Calif., schoolboy flash, Steve Clark of Yale and Dick McDonough of South Orange, N.J., are co-favored in the 100. Schollander recently tied the American mark of 54 seconds held by Clark and McDonough.

Sharon Stouder, the 15-year-old whiz from the City of Comerce, Calif., is the outstanding choice in the women's century off her sensation 1:00.4 clocking in the Nationals. Only Australia's Dawn Fraser, holder of the world record of 58.9, has gone faster.

Dick Roth, the 17-year-old schoolboy sensation from Atherton, Calif., tops the field in the medley. He broke the world record with a time of 4:48.6 in the Nationals.

Hogans Cop City Crown

The Navajo Hogan softball team went through the City Softball Championships undefeated to snatch the title from defending champion Benardo's, Wednesday night at Memorial Park.

Behind the pitching of Bob Geick, the Hogans dumped Benardo's 7-4 to wrap up the title. This was the second time the Hogans defeated Benardo's in the double elimination tournament. The Hogans scored seven runs on seven hits in the championship finals game.

After drawing a bye in the opening round last week, the Hogans thrashed the Budweiser nine, 21-9 and followed with a 6-1 victory over Benardo's last Monday in the winners' bracket semi-finals.

In the Church-Industrail League, the City Utilities team earned a spot in tonight's finals against undefeated AT&T. The first Christian team dumped the Village Christian squad, 13-1, in Wednesday's opening game.

The City Utilities rallied in the second game to down the First Christian team, 6-4, to qualify for tonight's finals. The City Utilities-AT&T championship game is scheduled tonight for 7 p.m. at Memorial Park diamond 4.

Tittle-Owens Duo Could Revive Alley-Oop

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Y.A. Tittle and R.C. Owens, who made the Alley-Oop pass a pro football favorite, have tried it for the first time since 1958.

Unless the timing is perfect, it may become known as the Alley-Oops.

Owens, acquired in a trade with Baltimore, joined Tittle, his former San Francisco teammate, in the New York Giants' camp Wednesday.

On the last play of the practice session, they tried to work the play in which Tittle lofts as high, arching pass to the high-jumping Owens, who is supposed to outleap his defender and grab the ball.

Owens missed his timing Wednesday, and the ball fell to the ground.

Allie Sherman, the Giants coach, had this comment:

"Either Y.A. has lost the Alley part or R.C. has forgotten the Oop."

Scena Captures Medalist Honors In Western Junior Tournament

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Baseball proclaims itself a game of inches. But Jim Wiechers found out Wednesday that golf also is a game of inches—three, to be exact.

Wiechers was coming into the final hole of his final qualifying round of the Western Junior Golf Tournament needing a par 4 to tie Denver's Chris Scena for medalist honors. Scena had finished earlier with a 74-74—148.

The husky California golfer hit his second shot over the left bunker on his last hole, No. 9 at the Eisenhower Course of the Air Force Academy. He chipped six feet from the hole with a beautiful shot. But he lipped the cup and rolled past just three inches, scoring a 76 to go with his first round 73 for a 149.

Wiechers won medalist honors last year in this tournament.

Scena, heading for Colorado University this fall as a freshman, toured the back nine first in Wednesday's round, as did Wiechers. He got ahead on the first hole (No. 10) by driving on purpose into the driving range to the left of the fairway. He chipped onto the green and sank a 25-foot putt for a birdie.

But the 6-3, 155 - pound swinger bogied the next two holes before sinking a birdie putt of 25 feet on No. 17, turning in even par 36.

On the second nine Scena dropped four par putts before laying in a 12-footer on No. 5 for a birdie. He evened himself out on the next hole with a bogey, then played two bad holes to finish with 36-38—74.

Scena was medalist last week in the Denver Publinks tournament. He qualified for the state U.S.G.A. tournament, but has never won a meet.

Scena led 32 qualifiers into the match play phase of the meet today. He met Mike Goodart of Roswell, N.M., who toured the 36-hole qualifying rounds in 79-77—156.

Wiechers again teed off after Scena today, playing John Ellison of Streetsville, Ontario, who fired 77-79—156.

Scena led four Colorado golfers into match play. Hale Irwin, playing in the same foursome as Wiechers, scored a 76 Wednesday to take third place in qualifying with 74-76—150. Irwin played John King of Phoenix, who qualified with 77-79 — 156.

Rich McClintock of Englewood toured in 75-77—152. Arnold Abel, Pikes Paak Invitational champ from Denver, scored 81-75—156.

McClintock met Jim Wheeler of East Peoria, Ill., today. Abel took on Fergus McDermott of Troy, Ohio. Wheeler shot 75-82—157. McDermott has 81-78—159.

McDermott was one of seven players shooting 159. The seven had to play off for the final six positions in the meet. Jim Cheney of Hinsdale, Ill., lost.

Other matches today have Phil Gibbs (82-77—159; Tommy Stevens (76-76—152) vs. Joe Porter (78-79—157); Roger Cleveland (74-80—154) vs. John Mattson (81-78—159; Denny Gallagher (76-79—155) vs. Jerry Fladoos (83-76—159); Greg Pitzer (77-75—152) vs. Loy Martin (78-80—158); Dave Schumaker (74-80—154) vs. Joe Tilford (78-80—158); Dave Hanten (78-74—152) vs. Tom Garrett (74-83—157); Terry Dear (78-77—155) vs. Dave Sergeant (79-80—159); Brian Gaddy (79-72—151) vs. Dale Vaught (77-80—157); Mike Taylor (76-79—159) vs. Jimmie Bullard (77-82—159); Dennis Elkins (80-72—152) vs. Kean Ridd (83-75—158).

Gaddy and Elkins are the only two players who have equalled par on the Eisenhower course this week, as winds Tuesday blew scores high, and gusty breaths sandwiched around bright sunshine added some strokes to scores.

Gaddy fired a 39 on the first nine holes Wednesday, then finished with a hot 33. Elkins maintained a steady pace, going 36-36.

The California Golf Club won the R. A. Wood Trophy for the team championship. Wiechers, Gaddy and Pitzer were the three low scorers on the team for a 452 total. Colorado University No. 2 placed second at 458. Irwin, McClintock and Abel paced that team.

Three Colorado Springs entrants failed to beat the qualifying mark. Greg Johnson fired 82-85—167. Greg Nelson had 93-87 —180. Tom Harden shot 88-95—183.

* * *

Haering Drills Pirates Grid Team For Forthcoming DPL Loop Race

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

With old nemesis Regis and pre-season favorite Mullen looking mighty big in the forthcoming Denver Parochial League chase, St. Mary's head football coach Chuck Haering is faced with other giants in his team's winning path as the Pirates — victors of the 1963 DPL pennant crown — face the State Class AA champion Cheyenne Mountain in their opening date, Sept. 5.

Last season the Bucs compiled a 7-2-1 won-loss-tied overall record, finishing in a two-way tie with Mullen for the DPL runner slot behind undefeated Regis. The St. Mary's gridders tied Cheyenne, 20-20, in their season finale and proved quite an upset as the Tribe was a two-touchdown favorite.

In his third term as St. Mary's grid boss, Haering will have five assistant coaches including Ed Kintz, backfield coach in his second year; Joe Leigh, from Hirm College, Ohio, line coach; Bob Spencer, end coach and former Colorado State College player; Dan Wright, "B" team head coach and Al Book, "B" team coach and former CSC player.

CHUCK HAERING
St. Mary's Coach

Some 71 footballers turned out for the opening practice session last week and according to Haering this is the smallest turnout for football at the local parochial school in several years.

Haering indicated that this year's varsity squad would be "small and inexperienced" and a quick glance at the roster backs up this statement. With the exception of a few big interior linemen, the Pirates forward wall will be composed of linemen under 150 pounds.

The Pirates lost 13 lettermen to graduation last spring including 11 linemen. Back this season are three key backs, Sam Zavatti, last year's leading ground gainer; poised quarterback Jerry Knauf; and slot back Chris White.

The other two regulars are guard Dan Gleeson, 150 pounds and end David, Smith, 150 pounds.

Haering reports that the preseason training drills have taken at least four players from the active list with 200-pounder Bill Savo out of action. Savo, the team's biggest lineman, injured his knee and may require an operation and may be sidelined the entire season.

Haering rates Mullen the team to beat for the DPL championship as the northern Catholic boys' school has all but two lettermen returning. The St. Mary's mentor rates Regis the second best team in the nine-team league, followed by Machebeuf and St. Francis.

Under the guidance of Haering, a former resident of Pittsburgh, the Pirates won their first DPL title two years ago but lost to Pueblo Catholic for the state parochial championship in a close 14-13 outing in Colorado Springs. The Bucs also compiled their best record in 50 years of participation in football via a 7-1 won-loss record, losing that single encounter to Regis.

Although the Pirates will lack beef in the line, Haering will again have the services of the DPL's finest quarterback and fullback, Knauf and Zavatti.

Last season the then 152-pound gutty fullback picked up 703 yards rushing for 141 attempts, which is a respectable 4.9 yards per carry. However, the remarkable thing about Zavatti's performance last year was that the Pirate fullback only lost seven yards in rushing for 10 games.

Zavatti is a senior this year and has gained 12 pounds which should make him a stronger runner. Zavatti presently weighs 167 pounds.

Knauf, who got off to a slow start last season because he was in an auto accident, proved to be a dandy passer. Knauf tossed 58 aerials last year and completed 24 for 510 yards. This was quite a surprise to Haering that Knauf would be a success in passing. Haering contributes the success to the guidance Knauf received from his assistant Kintz.

Other quarterback candidates are Pete Finn, a sophomore who saw action last year, and sophomore Jim Rhue. Halfbacks: Gary Dobson, a 130-pound senior who played some last year; Richardson Ferguson, 137, and Jerry Maisonneuve, 138.

At slot back, LeRoy Eckhoff, 140-pound junior, Clark Davis, and White. Although White didn't carry the ball but three times last year, the 150 pound senior is rated as an effective blocker.

Daryl Grantz and Bob White, both around 135 pounds, will back up Zavatti at fullback. At ends, Smith 150 pounds; and Sal Peralta, 145 pounds, have been looking effective with backup from John Van Horn, 155, and James Pogue, 125.

Cliff Clark is the Pirates biggest active line, tipping the scales at 195 pounds. Sophomore David Carle, son of Colorado College's head coach Jerry Carle, and Gene Downy are other prime candidates for the tackle slot.

At guards, veteran lineman Gleeson, 150 pounds, and Richard Mainzer, 148, have been aggressive in practice. Others: Jimmy Rogers, 150, and Mark Van Deburg, 140.

Pat Lucas will anchor the Buc line at center and the senior pivotman weighs 145 pounds and will receive backup from Jerry Shea, 160.

New Winner Crowned at Sportsman's Raceway Oval

"Pardon our dust" is what the track owners at Sportsman's Raceway Park said Saturday night during the running of the Figure eight race. Due to circumstances beyond their control, the track was not watered down in the afternoon. However, this problem has been tends their apologies to the many fans that were on hand last Saturday night.

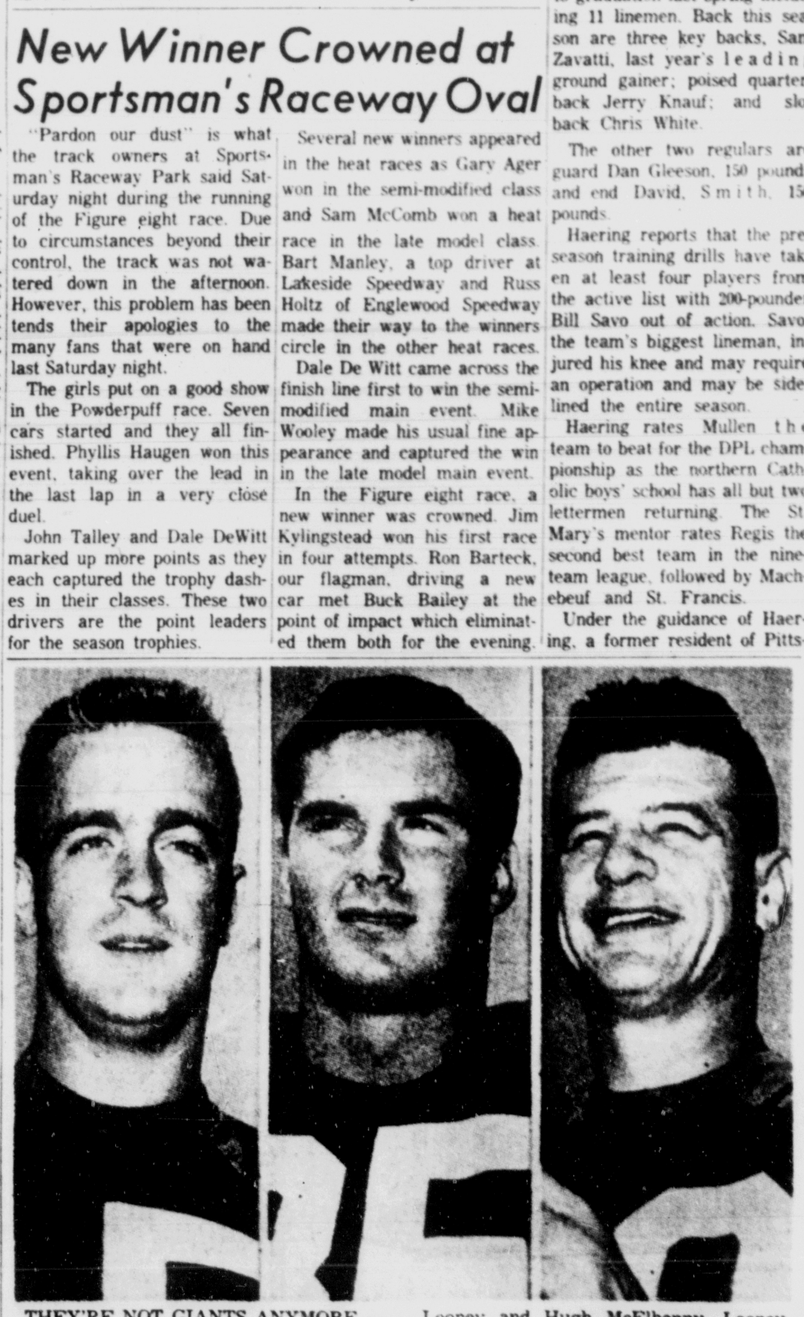

The girls put on a good show in the Powderpuff race. Seven cars started and they all finished. Phyllis Haugen won this event, taking over the lead in the last lap in a very close duel.

John Talley and Dale DeWitt marked up more points as they each captured the trophy dashes in their classes. These two drivers are the point leaders for the season trophies.

Several new winners appeared in the heat races as Gary Ager won in the semi-modified class and Sam McComb won a heat race in the late model class. Bart Manley, a top driver at Lakeside Speedway and Russ Holtz of Englewood Speedway made their way to the winners circle in the other heat races.

Dale De Witt came across the finish line first to win the semi-modified main event. Mike Wooley made his usual fine appearance and captured the win in the late model main event.

In the Figure eight race, a new winner was crowned. Jim Kylingstead won his first race in four attempts. Ron Barteck, our flagman, driving a new car met Buck Bailey at the point of impact which eliminated them both for the evening.

THEY'RE NOT GIANTS ANYMORE — The New York Giants pro football team announced the release of this trio — from left, Glynn Griffing, Joe Don Looney and Hugh McElhenny. Looney was traded to Baltimore; Griffing and McElhenny were given outright releases by the Giants. (AP Wirephoto)

Trojans Train For PPL Chase

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Joe Keegan, Fountain's head football coach, has the formidable task of fielding a winning team with only five returning veterans and a small turnout of 37 prospective gridders in the forthcoming Pikes Peak League chase.

The Trojans kick-off their 1964 grid slate against cross-town Harrison, Sept. 11 in a night game at their home stadium. The Fountain team, along with Manitou Springs, will once again compete in the revised PPL composed of Buena Vista, Fowler, Salida, Leadville, Ordway (Crowley County) and Florence.

Early predications from the field pick Salida a strong favorite to capture the Class AA loop championship with Don Schmidli of basketball fame — Schmidli led the Salida cagers to the State Class-AA basketball championship last winter defeating Lamar in the finals — taking over the head football post at the southern Colorado school. Salida will once again field a big team with a huge line and a bone-crushing fullback, 210 pound Ken Williams.

In his third term as Fountain grid boss, Keegan will have two competent associate coaches this season including Burt Feste, the Trojans' head cage coach in his third season and a former Colorado State College graduate; and Bill Sabo, a former Western State graduate.

Last season the Trojans compiled a 1-7 won-loss record in the PPL race, winning their only outing against Leadville. However, this season the Fountain school won't have to compete against the 1963 PPL champion, Cheyenne Mountain and the other three larger Colorado Springs area schools including Widefield, Harrison and Air Academy. All four schools have advanced to Triple-A division a will compete in the Will Rogers League along with Canon City.

With approximately 350 students at Fountain, the normal transfer of Ft. Carson military personnnel has taken its toll on the Trojans' football manpower with at least four gridders leaving the area. All total, Keegan lost 15 lettermen to graduation last spring and four to transfers.

Returning lettermen include three-year veteran Jim Banda, 150-pound center; guard Mark Noble (140 pounds); tackle Doug Stanley (170); end Dave Ury (162); and halfback Dave Arellano (140).

Prospective varsity players displaying potential are 6-3 Jim Fenton, 168-pound senior end, who broke his leg in the first contact session Tuesday; Neal Fleischauer, 140-pound scrappy guard-center; 165-pound slot back George Splawn; and former soccer player Dan Grigsby, 151-pound end who will probably handle the kicking chores.

JOE KEEGAN
Fountain Grid Coach

In addition, the transfer of 180-pound Fred Daniels could give the Trojans a power runner. Daniels transferred into the Fountain district last spring and played football while in Germany with his father.

Joe Martinez, who is rated by Keegan as a scrapper on both offense and defense, returns to football after a year on the sideline with a broken collar bone. Martinez, a junior 152-pound fullback, is also rated as an aggressive tackler.

At quarterback, Brain O'Neill and Mike Ward will be bidding for the starting berth. Both played "B" team football last season. O'Neill is considered a good team leader and could develop into a front line quarterback as he has the right moves.

Jr. Davis Cup Matches Begin

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — The national Junior Davis Cup tennis matches will open Thursday with California represented for the first time.

Teams from the Eastern, New England, Middle Atlantic, Intermountain, Northwestern, Middle States, Western, Canadian, Southern, Florida, Northern Californian and Southern Californian Lawn Tennis associations will compete at the Poughkeepsie Tennis Club.

The two California squads are co-favorites.

Full Slate At Track Saturday

Excitement is running high at Pikes Peak Speedway with over 50 cars entered every Sat. nite for the past four weeks. Last Saturday nite was no exception when 55 cars timed in during Time Trials and four other cars ran with no time.

There were but a few bad drivers are learning more and more on handling every week. This brand new field of drivers, some driving for the first time on a race track, is catching on real fast. Over 1,600 fans were treated to top notch driving in all events.

Jack Gabard was back with a brand new OOX, a 1956 Chevrolet after having demolished the old one the week before. Jack had the fastest time of the nite, only 5 hundredths of a second off his own Track Record of 16.49 around the one-fifth mile oval. Trav Bishop, also back with a new car No.75 won the Phil Long Ford Class A Trophy Dash and Jim Anderson won the Class B Dash in car No.007.

The girls tried their hand at wheeling the stockers around the track with Bernice Perry and Linda Neely battling to the finish and Bernice finally nosing out the win. Two Figure 8 Races were run and Ray Roberts from Englewood Speedway won both of these races.

The Feature race of the nite, the 30 Lap Main Event, was started with 26 cars in the line up. After completing only 4 laps the race had to be stopped to clear away a 4 car pile up in the pit turn. After a wild, fender bendin exciting 30 Laps Bill Wesley in Car No. 881 emerged as the winner. This was his first main event win of the year.

Races are every Saturday nite with Time Trails 7:00 p.m.

Giants Moonlight Mays, Marichal Threatens Strike

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The San Francisco Giants have to be in trouble when Juan Marichal threatens to strike and Willie Mays starts moonlighting.

Mays tried to hold down two jobs for the Giants Wednesday night, shuttling between center field and third base in a 2-1 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers that dropped San Francisco 7½ games behind National League-leading Philadelphia.

But the big labor dispute revolved around Marichal, the ace right-hander of the Giants' staff who hoisted his placard and said he won't pitch before he feels he's ready.

"I don't want to take any chances any more," said Marichal, who has been bothered by a bad back, but made his first start since July 29 against the Dodgers Tuesday night. Marichal, who pitched five innings, said he didn't think he was ready to go, then added:

"They wanted me to pitch. I'll tell you this: If it's still the same the next time, I won't pitch."

Manager Al Dark's comment was concise:

"He'll pitch Sunday."

Where Mays will play is another question.

He started in center field against the Dodgers, but had to take over at third base in the second inning after Jim Ray Hart was struck in the head by a thrown ball while running from first base to second and was forced to leave the game.

Mays, who also has played first for the Giants this season, moved back to center field in the seventh inning, then returned to the infield again in the ninth as Dark constantly juggled his line-up in an attempt to get the Giants moving against Don Drysdale.

Drysdale, however, checked San Francisco on seven hits and came up the winner on Doug Camilli's run-producing single in the ninth.

The Phillies, meanwhile, rode Chris Short's six-hit pitching to a 6-1 victory over Milwaukee and built their bulge over second-place Cincinnati to seven games. The Reds were beaten by the New York Mets and Tracy Stallard's five-hit pitching, 3-1.

Elsewhere, Larry Jackson posted his 16th victory for St. Louis with a six-hit, 3-1 triumph over Houston and rookie Mike Cuellar posted the first complete game of his major league career in St. Louis' 4-2 victory over Pittsburgh.

The Dodgers won it in the ninth for Drysdale on a single by Frank Howard, a ground out and an intentional walk to Nate Oliver that brought up Camilli. Camilli blooped a single to center giving Drysdale a 14-13 record while tagging Bob Hendley with the loss.

Short, bringing his record to 14-6 while lowering his earned run average to 1.70, snapped the Phillies out of their first two-game losing streak since July 26 with the support of four homers — two by Gus Triandos and one each by Ruben Amaro and Tony Gonzalez. Short was touched for a run in the ninth on a double by Joe Torre and Denny Menke's single.

Stallard, now 8-16, checked the Reds on four singles until Don Pavletich ruined his shutout bid with a seventh inning homer. Ed Kranepool drove in two of the Mets runs off Joey Jay, 9-9, with a fourth inning single and a sixth inning sacrifice fly. Ron Hunt drove in the final run with a seventh inning single.

Jackson, 16-10, kept the Colts from becoming the first NL team this season to win seven straight, losing his shutout on Nellie Fox' run-producing single in the sixth. Jackson received home run support from Ernie Banks, who hit his 16th, and Ron Santo, who connected for No. 25.

Cuellar, 5-3, was tagged for homers by Donn Clendenon and Gene Alley in the fifth, but the Cardinals pulled ahead 3-2 in their half on Lou Brock homer, a triple by Dick Groat and Ken Boyer's single.

TOO FAST ON THE SLIDE—While the ball seems to hang in mid-air, Washington Senator's catcher Mike Brumley slides into home plate for a score in the fifth inning, past Yankee catcher Elston Howard. The Senators won, 2-0, at Yankee stadium in New York. (AP Wirephoto)

Ralston Tough to Beat Even With Bad Ankle

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Dennis Ralston wouldn't mind winning the Meadow Club International tennis tournament but he doesn't intend to go all out what with the Nationals at Forest Hills and the Davis Cup Challenge Round coming up next month.

The top-seeded player and Davis Cup star from Bakersfield, Calif., is nursing a tender right ankle, sprained 10 days and now heavily taped.

Despite the handicap the Californian has a good chance to win. He takes on Bitsy Harrison of Richmond, Va., in a third round match today. The winner gets into the quarter-finals.

Twin Quin Again Pays High Stakes at RMKC

It was the 1-5 with the 2-5 in the Twin Quin at Colorado Springs' Rocky Mountain Kennel Club as three lucky persons collected the second highest Twin Quin of the young meet. Average for the meet has been $992.85 with the highest pay-off being made on the second night when it figured $1,761.20.

Michigan State radio station WKAR was one of the first in the nation to broadcast a football game from the field of play when it aired the Spartan-Michigan contest in 1923.

The Daily Double at RMKC last night was on the 5-8 combination and paid $214.20. In the second half of the Daily Double, the second race, the Huron Kennel's Coro Rocky, (trained locally by Frank Overhultz), came in for the win and paid $56.60, $24.00 and $11.00 across the board, making a new record for a win and place pay-off at RMKC this season. Previous high on the win had been $31.80 while the place pay-off had been $18.20.

A change from the overnight entries for the ninth and feature race at RMKC tonight shows Sonic Sue being replaced by T V Matt. Other greyhounds that will be trecking the oval in this Grade A feature are S.W. Pat's Boy, Happy Hook, Nixon Go, Bonita Bay, Mr. Cane, Brenda's Gal and Resayde.

Larry Hughes' Bonita Bay, is fresh from her win in a Grade "B" event last Tuesday night when she won by a length over Track Star and T.V. Elaine.

Juan, Dark Disagree Over When He'll Pitch

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Juan Marichel of the San Francisco Giants says he'll defy his manager, if necessary, to keep from pitching again before his back feels better.

Marichal, ace of the San Francisco staff, said he wasn't really ready to go Tuesday night, when he made his first start in nearly a month and dropped a 3-1 decision to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"If my back feels the same way the next time they want me to pitch," he said, "I won't."

Marichal, a 26-year-old right-hander from the Dominican Republic, became a 15-winner July 29. He suffered muscle spasms in his back a couple of days later and didn't pitch again until he faced the Dodgers. He worked five innings against them, allowing two earned runs.

"If I don't want to pitch five innings," he said Wednesday night. "If they want me to pitch five innings, they can put me in the bullpen."

Giant Manager Alvin Dark, advised of Marichal's remarks, said:

"He'll pitch Sunday."

A reporter relayed this word to Marichal, who said:

"That's what he thinks. If I feel good, I pitch. If not, no."

Asked whether he was worried about hurting is back again, Marichal nodded and said: "I don't want to take any chances any more."

Marichal said his back was bothering him Tuesday and "everybody knew it."

Everybody, obviously, would include Dark.

San Francisco's general manager, Chub Feeney, was asked Wednesday night what he thought of the situation.

"Who knows? Maybe Marichal will feel fine by Sunday," Feeney said. "Anyway, we've got problems to worry about before then. We've got to get to Milwaukee to play a ball game tomorrow."

The Giants were only a half game out of the National League lead after Marichal won July 29, beating the first-place Philadelphia Phillies 6-3.

Then Juan missed six starts and the Giants were 6½ back.

After losing 2-1 to the Dodgers Wednesday night, they were 7½ behind.

As Dark said during the Dodger series: "We have to have Marichal to win."

Charles Boyer, 65 Years Old, Starts New Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Many men mark their 65th birthday by retiring from their life's work. Charles Boyer is celebrating his 65th by costarring in a movie and a television series simultaneously.

It seems incredible that Hollywood's version of Le Grand Charles could be 65, but he is the first to admit it. Today is his birthday.

"I have never tried to hide my age," said the ever-charming Boyer. "Oh, I know that actresses do it, and some actors, too. But it is silly. There are so many ways of finding out an actor's age.

"Besides, if you don't tell your age, people are apt to think you are older than you really are."

Boyer is one of the few actors whose birthdate is plainly printed in his official biography. He has never made any fuss about his baldness; he plays roles with or without toupee, his hair having thinned at age 27.

Smooth-topped or wigged, he remains a handsome figure of a man. The romantic quality is still present, and that is a factor he has had to live with all these years.

"It's really a misconception," he argued. "Mainly it has lasted because of all the night club imitators who use the one line — 'Come wiz me to the Casbah'. After that line they don't know what to do.

"I actually did very few romantic roles; 'Love Affair' was one, and it remains one of my favorites. When I first came to Hollywood to appear in American films, they tried to make me play the role of the lover. After 'Caravan,' in which I played a gypsy with a violin, I wanted to go back to France.

"But then Walter Wanger signed me to a contract and put me in films like 'Private Worlds' and 'Algiers.' In 'Algiers,' from which that famous line was supposed to have come, I played a gangster who was stuck inside the Casbah and was killed when he tried to break out."

Admittedly he made movie love to many of the great female stars — Garbo ("Conquest"), Dietrich ("Garden of Allah"), Davis ("All This and Heaven, too"), Bergman ("Gaslight"), De Havilland ("Hold Back the Dawn"). But always he was a man of action, as with his Napoleon in "Conquest."

Boyer has worked all his adult life. Right now he is appearing with Rock Hudson and Leslie Caron in "The Favor." On his days off from the movie he works in "The Rogues," the new television series which he and partner David Niven (and Gig Young) are making for their Four Star Productions.

"I will always go on working," Boyer said, "although a few years ago I decided to do only the things I enjoy."

Johnson to Postpone Campaign for Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says he has asked for "a little more time" before he decides whether to open his presidential campaign in Detroit on Labor Day.

Democratic candidates traditionally launch their campaigns with such an appearance.

Johnson conferred Wednesday morning with Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, and told newsmen later they had discussed the possibility of a Labor Day speech in Detroit. "I have to ask them to give me a little more time," the President said.

Reuther and his union are currently engaged in contract negotiations with the Big Three automobile manufacturers.

Contracts expire Aug. 31 and the UAW announced Wednesday night that Chrysler, smallest of the auto firms, would be struck at 10 a.m. Sept. 9 — two days after Labor Day — if no contract is agreed upon by then.

Britain to Build Its First Two Polaris Subs

By HARRY HOBBS

LONDON (UPI) — A century ago the British shipbuilding firm of Cammell Laird built and armed the Confederate raider "Alabama" that took a toll of 68 Union ships during the American Civil War.

Now history has in a sense come full circle, with Cammell Laird building the first of two nuclear-powered, Polaris-armed submarines for the Royal Navy.

When completed, in the words of an American naval officer working with Cammel Laird, the underwater dreadnaughts will be "wholly British fore and aft, but American in the middle."

The subs are part of the Admiralty order under the Anglo-American Nassau agreement reached by the late President John F. Kennedy and former prime minister Harold Macmillan.

More than loyalties have changed in 100 years. The eight-gunned "Alabama" is listed in Cammell Laird's books as having cost a little over 47,000 pounds, or about $225,000 in the money values of that day. Just one piece of the Polaris submarine's classified equipment costs more than 300,000 pounds or about $850,000 at today's exchange.

Recently visiting the Cammell Laird works to watch the keel laying ceremony of "Renown," the first submarine of the two, was Rear Admiral I. J. Galantin, Director of the U.S. Special Projects Office and Officer-in Charge of the U.S. Polaris program, other senior U.S. officers and representavies of the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corp.

This keel laying meant a prefabricated central section of the pressure hull being ceremonially placed in position on the lipway. A 275 - ton trailer-transporter, the biggest single-unit hydraulic suspension vehicle of its kind ever built, did the job.

U.S. Navy officers who toured the Birkenhead installations said they were impressed by the advanced techniques and facilities Cammel Laird's had installed. These included a giant mandrel or assembly rig for welding whole hull sections, special welding equipment and other tools and jigs which they said were ahead of anything similar in the United States.

These same yards have built submarines for more than five decades. They were among the first yards to produce iron ships. By 1834 — thirty years before the "Alabama" — the firm completed the "John Randolph," the first iron ship built for a North American owner.

Now the yard believes that by building two nuclear-powered submarines it is getting in on the ground floor of another revolution in marine transportation.

PLATFORM CRITICIZED

DENVER (UPI)— Glenn Jones, GOP candidate for Congress in the 1st Dist. criticized the Democratic National Platform Tuesday for failing to outline a clear and decisive plan to restore freedom in Cuba. Jones said he wondered why, "with such glorious Democrat achievements (outlined in the platform)...is it that Castro remains and continues as the puppet of the Soviet Union?"

Venusian Day Still 253 Earth Days Long

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you think Mondays here are long, don't visit the planet Venus.

Astronomers have come up with a new, more accurate measure of the length of a Venusian day — and it's shorter than previously believed. But it still is 253 earth days long, give or take five days.

The new measure of dawn-to-dawn on the earth's nearest planetary neighbor came Wednesday from Cornell University astronomers and the Air Force Office of Scientific Research.

Their figures, they reported, are five times more accurate than the previous estimate of 266 earth days, give or take 27 days either way.

A day, the time it takes a planet to turn once on its axis, is difficult to observe on Venus because the planet is completely enveloped in clouds.

The new measurements come from the world's largest radio-radar telescope at Arecibo, Puerto Rico. It is operated by Cornell Scientists for the Air Force and the Advanced Research Projects Agency of the Department of Defense.

Humphrey's Wife Ready to Aid In Campaigning

By FRANCES LEWINE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — In the tense days when the vice presidential candidate remained a secret name, Muriel Humphrey told everyone who asked that Hubert Humphrey would make a "wonderful" vice president.

She said she knew her husband had the qualifications, training and background for the post, and she calmly waited out the decision.

Now that the Democratic party has nominated him, Muriel Humphrey is getting ready to get on another campaign bandwagon.

Petite, motherly looking, with silver gray hair cut short in bangs, Mrs. Humphrey at 52 is a veteran of the political scene. She has joined Hubert in his political efforts since he ran unsuccessfully for mayor of Minneapolis in 1943.

She helped launch her husband's career, working to put him through college and later into politics. She has traveled with him during 16 years in the Senate on missions to Moscow, Europe, the Middle East and South America.

"I think it would be exciting," she says now, "to campaign in much the same way Lady Bird does," but she often has admitted she would rather make a dress than make a speech.

Mrs. Humphrey says "it's terribly important that people get to know the candidate as a whole person — and that includes his wife and family. They can't help have something to do with his thinking and understanding about problems of this world."

She says she loves to tease her husband and gets "awfully frank at times."

"If Hubert had any tendencies to be pompous, Muriel would really puncture him," a longtime Minnesota friend said.

It has been a long way from the days in 1934 when Muriel Buck, 22, daughter of a Huron, S.D., butter and egg dealer, working as a biller in a power company office, met Hubert Humphrey, 23, a pharmacist "jerking sodas" in his father's drugstore. She described him then as "the best dancer in town."

When they married two years later — Sept. 3, 1936, Mrs. Humphrey kept right on working.

Their first child, Nancy, now married, was born three months before Humphrey was graduated summa cum laude from the University of Minnesota.

For the past 16 years, the Humphreys have lived in an unpretentious suburban home in Chevy Chase, Md., near Washington, where they have an outdoor barbecue, shuffle board court on the lawn, and a comfortable glassed-in, pine-panelled porch recreation room, which has a big juke box filled with the family's favorite records.

They also have a lakeside, five-bedroom summer home on Lake Waverly, 40 miles from Minneapolis, where boating, swimming and water skiing are favorite activities.

The Humphrey family includes four children: Nancy, 25, now Mrs. C. Bruce Solomonson, with two daughters, Vickie, 3½, and Jill, 2½; Hubert Jr., 22, a senior in political science at American University and married to the former Nancy Lee Jeffery of Leesburg, Va.; Robert, 20, a sophomore majoring in business at Mankato State College in Minnesota, and Douglas, 16, a junior at Shattuck Prep School in Faribault, Minn.

Woman Donates Fund For More Shotguns

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Lottie Shepherd, 92, read that the Oklahoma City police department was short on funds and needed an additional 25 shotguns.

She donated $1,700 Wednesday and explained, "We're getting to be such a big town we're getting to the point where we've got to be taken care of."

Supreme Court To Hear Case Of Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court agreed today to hear on Oct. 5 an appeal questioning constitutionality of the public accommodations sections of the new Civil Rights Act.

The court's action was announced by its clerk, John F. Davis. The tribunal is now in summer adjournment.

Davis said the argument will concern only the Heart of Atlanta Motel Corp. The Pickrick Restaurant, also of Atlanta, Ga., was involved in preliminary steps in the case but will not be concerned directly in the Oct. 5 argument.

The motel and restaurant were principals in the decision by a special three-judge federal tribunal in Atlanta. The special court upheld validity of the public accommodations section. The case was the first in which a ruling was given under the New Civil Rights Act.

Oct. 5 is the first day of the Supreme Court's new fall term, and ordinarily the tribunal does not hear arguments or transact other than routine business on that day.

PLAQUES PRESENTED—Lt. Gen. Herbert B. Thatcher (right) commander, Air Defense Command, and SSgt. Jack E. Pearcy, coach of the ADC Small Bore Rifle Team, discuss the All-Air Force Small Arms Competition held at Lackland AFB, Tex., earlier this summer. Sergeant Pearcy officially presented the three plaques won by the ADC marksmen to Gen. Thatcher. The awards represent first place in the Small Bore Metallic Sight event and two second places in the Four Position Metallic Sight and Overall Grand Champion categories. Sgt. Pearcy, a native of Colorado Springs and a graduate of Palmer High School, is currently assigned as a F-101 Hydraulic Specialist at Oxnard AFB, Calif. (U. S. Air Force Photo)

Insurance Rate To Be Hiked For Property

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Insurance Department said Tuesday rates on extended coverage insurance on property in many parts of the state will be increased, effective Sept. 14.

Insurance Commissioner J. Richard Barnes said while rates will go higher in eastern Colorado, including Denver, there will be some reductions for property in western Colorado.

Barnes said higher rates were required because of recent costly wind and hail storms, mainly in eastern Colorado. Colorado insurance firms, he said, paid $1.30 in losses and expenses for each $1 in premiums during the five-year period ending Dec. 31, 1962.

Barnes said this meant a net underwriting loss of $9 million.

The commissioner said the rate changes will not affect basic fire insurance policies for property. The extended coverage protects against loss from wind, hail, explosion, riot, smoke, aircraft and vehicles.

Coupled with the new rates is an optional $50 deductible feature, which will limit premium increases or in some cases, result in deductions, Barnes said.

The present rate for a $10,000 home in eastern Colorado with $4,000 in household goods is $36 per year for full coverage and will go to $59.20 per year. But with the $50 deductible, the new rate will be $39.20 per year, Barnes said.

Full coverage for a similar type home in western Colorado is now $15.60 and will go to $20 under the increase. With the $50 deductible, the rate would be $10.40 a year.

Under the deductible feature, the insurance firm does not pay losses of $50 or less.

HOLD THAT FISH FRY

PALMETTO, Fla. (AP)—The Palmetto unit of the Florida National Guard had to call off its fish fry because the general said the cook couldn't cook.

Capt. Don Flowers said the unit planned the fish fry to raise funds to add recreational facilities to the guard quarters. Ex-Sheriff Roy Baden, long recognized as a master of preparing fish for a fish fry, was engaged to preside at the cook fire.

That was the rub.

Baden is a candidate for Sheriff. The guard, as a military unit, cannot mix in politics. Certain critics argued that Baden's presence would be political.

The issue was taken to the state adjutant general, who ruled that Baden couldn't take part. "We've postponed it," said Flowers. "It will be held later."

Big Ed Renews Feud With Kennedy Clan

ATLANTIC CITY (UPI)—Former Colorado Gov. Edwin C. (Big Ed) Johnson renewed his feud with the Kennedy clan Tuesday by saying he hoped Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy would lose his bid for the U.S. Senate seat in New York.

Johnson, kept off the Colorado delegation to the Democratic National Convention by Kennedy forces in 1960, charged the attorney general was engaging in "nothing more than a vulgar display of politics."

Kennedy is seeking to oppose incumbent Sen. Kenneth Keating, a Republican, in New York.

Johnson, who also was a U.S. senator from Colorado, added he hoped Kennedy was beaten, "not by a Republican, but by a Democrat."

NOT ROMANTICS, THESE VOLUNTEERS

TORONTO (AP) — Practical individuals, rough enough to take knocks and shocks, are the demands of the Canadian University Service Overseas.

Those accepted for posting overseas, graduates of universities or schools of higher learning, doctors, teachers or agriculturalists, must sign up for two years for work in Africa, India or the West Indies.

Applicants are tested on their motives, maturity, initiative, ability and resourcefulness. Half are turned away.

Once accepted, they receive a month's summer briefing. How to prepare for what is termed the "culture shock" is stressed.

Some 150 young men and woman leave Canada in September to begin their tours of duty overseas. Another 100 are already working in the three areas.

Black profile portraits, popular in the 18th Century because they were inexpensive, were nicknamed "silhouettes" after Etienne de Silhouette whose drastic economies as public finance controller under Louis XV caused wits to use his name for anything cheap.
